Roosevelt Asks Billion for Great Air-Defense Ring Around U. S.

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Administration late yesterday asked a billion dollar enlargement of the mounting defense program to establish a chain of naval air bases around the United States and man them with 5,500 large patrol-bombing planes.

As this huge plan reached Congress, President Roosevelt declared the emergency should bring no war millionaires, no strikes in key defense industries and no weakening of labor gains.

The President at the same time pictured three to five million civilians fleeing the war zone in Europe being machine-gunned by enemy planes which took a death toll the like of which the world never before has seen. He said he thought the United States would realize the implications of that method of warfare.

Climax Day of Action

These developments climaxed a day of action on Capitol Hill which carried the extraordinary defense program nearer to enactment. The Senate sped toward final action on the military phases of the arms plan and prepared to receive legislation to carry out the naval program today. Committees rushed action on auxiliary measures.

Other developments included:

President Roosevelt announced he would send to Congress today a reorganization order shifting the immigration service from the Department of Labor to the Department of Justice, as a safeguard against "fifth column" movements.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, introduced legislation authorizing the President to turn over Army and Navy planes to the Allies in exchange for aircraft they now have on order here. Pepper declared the planes now building "may be too late to prevent Hitlerism from dominating the world."

The House Military Affairs Committee approved legislation removing the 6,000 Army plane limit next year, and other legal barriers to the emergency arms program.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Compton ordered eight navy yards to operate on a two-shift schedule and to hire at least 15,000 civilian workers within the next 90 days. The local Navy Yard is not affected by these two directions.

President Roosevelt vetoed a bill authorizing $109,985,450 in rivers and harbors improvements, declaring the War Department's nonmilitary activities should give way now for military preparedness.

Byrnes to Answer Lindbergh

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, will take the air at 9:30 tonight to answer Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's speech declaring the United States could avoid war if it minds its own business.

King's Brother Survives Bombing

'Fifth Column' Witness Shocks Dies Prober

Rep. Mason 'Startled' By Dozenberg's Espionage Disclosures

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Nicholas Dozenberg, former Ogpu (Russian military intelligence) agent in the United States, testified before the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities for four hours yesterday.

His testimony, at his own request, was given behind locked doors, but there was every indication afterward that it was of a startling nature.

Representative Mason (Republican), of Illinois, a member of the investigating committee, said that he was "shocked" by Dozenberg's revelations.

Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the committee, said that after hearing the testimony of Dozenberg and other witnesses he had no doubt that Russia has a "large, well-organized spy system at work in this country getting military and industrial secrets."

Dozenberg, blond, bespectacled and shrill-voiced, came into the committee room escorted by a Capitol policeman and two plain-clothes officers. He is under sen-

5 Are Arrested For Walking Over Federal Grass

Five persons were arrested yesterday for walking on the Government's grass—all near the Smithsonian Institution. All other Washingtonians seemed to take as seriously as the Park Police Secretary Ickes' determination to protect the city's greenery, and heeded the numerous "Keep Off the Grass" signs.

Three persons were booked for grass-walking at the Fourth Precinct, and two at the first. They were: Norman Robinson, 32, 2912 Seventeenth street northwest; Mary Butler, 60, 227 K street southwest; Emma Stewart, 36, 1016 South Capitol street; James Davis, 31, 414 New Jersey avenue northwest, and David Jackson, 32, 320 G street northwest.

Arrests were made by Park Policemen R. A. Morrison, J. E. Bracey, Charles McAndrews. Violators of the "Keep Off" signs were faced with the penalty of $5 fines.

England Told To Look Out For Invasion; Navy on Guard

By Edwin Stout,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Wednesday), May 22.—Great Britain mustered her defense power tonight to save the heart of the empire from a threatened German thrust across the English Channel.

German planes bombed England last night, dropping explosives offshore and on land at two places along the southeast coast. The air ministry said they did no damage.

Antiaircraft fire and heavy explosions over the mouth of the Thames indicated an attempted third raid.

The air ministry said the German planes dropped bombs "in two districts in the southeast of England last night. Some bombs fell on land and others in the sea." It added that there were no casualties or damage reported.

Raid Off Kent Coast

One raid off the Kentish coast was in an apparent attempt by a lone plane to hit anchored shipping. An air raid warning was sounded and antiaircraft batteries as well as fighter planes went into action.

[At almost the same time, "waves" of Allied bombers were raiding Aachen (Aix-la-Chappelle) in Germany, the United Press reported. The 20-minute attack was directed at a city, through which run some of the main roads and railways connecting Germany and its troops in Belgium and the Netherlands.]

German claims of an advance to the Channel and isolation of the British and Belgian armies on the continent were said by an authoritative London source to be "grossly exaggerated" and a British spokesman described the battle there as "confused."

However, the menace of a blitzkrieg across the channel—described by Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express as "perfectly feasible"—brought these developments:

1. Prime Minister Churchill asked the House of Commons to hurry passage of a bill providing equipment for the local defense force. A quarter of a million men already have volunteered for a minute man army to combat invaders.

2. The air ministry called for men 35 to 45 years of age to man balloon barrages protecting vital areas from dive bombing.

3. The government announced hastening of enactment of the death

Trains Jammed With Refugees, French Admit Loss of Amiens

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, May 21.—Many civilians left the French capital tonight by train and automobile as the official announcement of the German capture of Amiens and Arras, and Nazi penetration to Abbeville, became generally known.

The gates to the south and west of Paris . . . (here two words censored) . . . with slowly moving lines of automobiles.

Nazi Gains Admitted

Each train carried more than . . . (here four words censored) . . . normal number of passengers, with people standing in the aisles and half-grown children sitting on their mothers' laps.

The French high command's night communique admitted the Germans drove their advance guard to Amiens and Arras, on the edge of the coastal plain leading to the English Channel.

A war ministry spokesman added that German motorcycle troops had pushed on to penetrate the outskirts of the Abbeville region. The city of Abbeville is on the Somme estuary, 12 miles from the Channel's open waters, and about 25 miles west of Arras and Amiens.

The British Expeditionary Force was bearing the brunt of the battle. British troops were installed in the coastal sector fighting with rifles and machine-guns against German planes and tanks in a last stand to keep the Reichswehr from taking control of the Channel.

Hold Out at Cambria

Farther east, the French were reported still holding out at Cambria, behind the German advanced lines.

The French called the situation "extremely grave," but said that with their troops holding Cambria, east of Arras, and the British battling the Germans in other sectors, the Allied command was confident it could "reestablish" its lines.

General headquarters have been out of communication for 48 hours with Gen. Henri Giraud, commander on the Meuse area, and a war ministry spokesman said he could neither confirm nor deny German reports that Giraud had been cap-

Nazis Cut Allied Armies After 12 Days of Fighting

Nazi armies had apparently succeeded today in cutting off the mass of Allied troops fighting for the past 12 days on Belgian soil. In their westward drive of "unprecedented magnitude," the Germans claimed capture of Abbeville (1), Amiens (2) and Arras (3) in their drive for the English Channel; elimination of Allied resistance at Rethel (4), and an advance to the Aisne-Oise Canal (5), where they came within sight of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, only 60 miles away. Broken line indicates approximate German lines. Shaded area is apparently in German hands, with the exception of Valenciennes, where French troops were reported still holding out. Between 500,000 and 1,000,000 French, British and Belgian troops are apparently cut off in northwestern France from the other Allied armies.

Army Smashes To Abbeville, General Giraud Reported Seized

Berlin, May 21.—Crowning the series of staggering blows dealt the Allies in the last few days, the Germans claim to have reached Abbeville on the Picardy Coast 15 miles from Le Treport on the Channel.

Thus they have now practically isolated the combined Allied armies in Belgium and the northwest tip of France. Unless they can fight their way out, this should seal the fate of the Belgian army and numerous divisions of Frenchmen, altogether totalling perhaps between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men, including whatever British are left in this area.

Amiens, Arras Taken

At the same time, they are pushing towards Paris, and it is semi-officially said here tonight that they have taken the city of Soissons, a bare 60 air miles from the French capital. The railroad junctions of Noyon and Compiegne in this same area, appear seriously endangered and likely to be occupied any moment.

The Germans claim to have broken up the entire French Ninth Army, taking prisoner its commander, Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, with his complete staff. The mission of the Ninth Army was to insure liaison between Allied units in Belgium and the Maginot Line south of Sedan.

En route to Abbeville the Germans say they occupied Amiens and Arras. The River Somme up to its estuary, which the Germans vainly tried to reach in their "risk all" drive in March, 1918, should thus be in their hands.

Allies in a Vise

[An Associated Press Berlin dispatch, dated today (Wednesday), quoted German officials circles as saying the German thrust toward Paris had reached the region of Reims, 80 miles east and slightly north of the capital.

[It was not immediately clear whether the German push in this area came from the Leon-Soissons region some 30 miles northwest of Reims, or from Rethel, 25 miles to the northeast, where the Germans Tuesday reported the establishment of a bridgehead across the Aisne River.

[Reims is but 20 miles north of the Marne at Epernay.]

With perhaps 1,000,000 Allied troops hopelessly cut off and squeezed by powerful German armies between the mouths of the rivers Scheldt and Somme, the German air force, aided by submarines and torpedo-carrying mosquito craft, is now claimed to be in control of the straits between Calais and Dover.

German armies apparently hold several Allied army corps in a vise from which they have only a small chance of escape. The fall of Ostend, Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne would thus be just a matter of a few days, and once these ports are in German hands, the situation of Great Britain seems singularly delicate.

All premises favorable for a decisive major battle against the bulk of the Allied forces in France now seem present, according to German

British Vow to Hold Coast; Nazis Trapping 500,000 Allies

B. E. F. Means to Die Rather Than Give Bases to Germany

By Drew Middleton,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, May 21.—The British Expeditionary Force means to die where it stands rather than let the Germans occupy the coast where they could base an attack on the British Isles.

I have traveled over 1,000 miles through the British positions in Belgium in the last ten days, and men I knew well are dead or horribly wounded.

But as I left France this morning (on orders from the B. E. F.), their fellows gave but one impression:

They mean to fight.

Arras, scene of five battles, including Vimy Ridge, in the World War, "is dead and buried"—as one British officer told me.

Amiens, too—jammed with pathetic refugees from France, Belgium and Holland when I saw it Friday—has felt the awful weight of war. Its famous Cathedral of Notre Dame has been shelled and bombed by the Germans, who are in possession as they were for four years during the World War.

The situation is the most serious in the long history of British arms.

The B. E. F., plus French and Belgian units, must stand and fight to

Plans of Enemy Completely Offset, Von Reichenau Says

By Louis P. Lochner
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Western German army, May 21.—From a hill within 1 mile of the retiring Allied forces, I witnessed this afternoon the brilliant attacks along one small sector of Col. Gen. Walther von Reichenau's Eighth Army as it relentlessly drove to complete the encirclement of perhaps 500,000 British, French and Belgian soldiers.

Some German sources said there may be even 1,000,000 Allied soldiers in this trap against the English channel.

The Allies, chiefly British, were below me in a valley withdrawing from the Scheldt Canal, near Renaix, 35 miles southwest of Brussels.

The German artillery was behind me.

Cannon boomed, shrapnel rent the air, and German scouters roared overhead directing the artillery. Ugly clouds of yellow-white or grey smoke indicated when the deadly loads were deposited on the roads upon which Allied troops were withdrawing.

Invisible to us, because they were hidden by trees, were German in-

French Faults To Be Mended, Says Reynaud

By the Associated Press

Paris, May 21.—Premier Reynaud, addressing the Senate under the black shadow of the German invasion, today issued an anguished appeal to the French and others "far off"—apparently meaning the Americas—to rally to the Allied cause "before it is too late."

Recalling the Allies' rally after their setbacks at the start of the World War, the premier declared "it will be the same today if everyone wishes it so."

"They are beginning to understand abroad," he declared. "There are millions of men, women and children far off who are beginning to understand that they themselves and their futures are involved. May they understand before it is too late."

When Reynaud finished, the Senate adjourned indefinitely, giving the government a free hand to cope with the crisis.

Reynaud painted a dark picture of the French military situation and accused the army high command of "incredible faults" which resulted in "the disaster, the total disorganization" of the French forces defending the Meuse.

"These faults will be punished," he declared.

Explaining the disorganization of the army assigned to hold the line of the Meuse River in Belgium, he asserted French divisions in that sector "were less numerous," and vital bridges were left intact to the advantage of the invaders.

Traders Unnerved, Stocks Again Fall

By the Associated Press

New York, May 21.—The specter of a German victory in Europe again unnerved Wall Street today and gave the stock market its most violent setback of the war period.

Leading issues tumbled $2 to $13 to the lowest general level in two years, but thanks to a last-minute comeback, which canceled about a quarter of the declines in many instances, the loss for the day on the average was no worse than last Tuesday's.

Much of the selling was said to have come from investors' strong boxes, rather than from speculative accounts.

The War Today . . .

GERMAN TROOPS stand on the shores of the English Channel after an 11-day, 240-mile mechanized offensive which the Germans say cut off between 500,000 and 1,000,000 Allied soldiers in the triangle of the Somme and Scheldt rivers and the Channel.

FRANCE'S PREMIER, blaming "incredible faults" of the high command for the swift success of the Nazi drive, admitted loss of Arras and Amiens, but the French insisted Allied armies would be able to reform and counterattack.

BRITAIN EXPECTED an attempted invasion of England, put its faith in the Navy and in the government's claim that the Allies have not yet been defeated.

STRETCHING EASTWARD across France from Amiens to Montmedy at the northern end of the Maginot Line, the south side of the German-occupied area bulged southward, to within 60 miles of Paris near Soissons, and 80 miles east of the capital pushed to the "region of Rheims" where the Germans expected a French counterattack. The French late yesterday insisted the Amiens-Montmedy line was holding firm. Civilians were evacuating Paris.

NAZI BOMBERS appeared over England all during last night but no damage was reported.

ITALY'S INTERVENTION appeared closer, with the Allies apparently in a worse situation than in 1914 or 1918, and Yugoslavia reported closing of the Albanian border and Italian munition movements.

Arms Rushed To Albania, Yugoslavs Hear

Italian Barracks Reported Speeded; Border Is Closed

By the Associated Press

Skolpje, Yugoslavia, May 21.—Fear Italy might be girding to strike into the Balkans increased tonight on reports filtering across the suddenly closed Yugoslav-Albanian frontier that munitions were being rushed to Albania.

The frontier was closed by Italian order shortly after announcement in Rome that Foreign Minister Count Ciano was leaving for Albania.

Yugoslavs heard barracks, storehouses and arsenals were being built on 24-hour shifts in Albania, where Italy is reported to have only 70,000 troops, and that vast shipments of war materials were being speeded across the Adriatic.

It was suggested Italy might be preparing to guard her "backdoor" in Albania against an Allied counterblow while she enters the war with a main attack upon France.

Italy's purpose in Albania, above all, would be to prevent the Allies from debarking troops at Salonika, Greece.

This view seemed supported by reports from Fiume, near the northern Yugoslav frontier, that big Italian troop concentrations there were being reduced and apparently moved in the direction of the French border.

'It Was Inconceivable'

Gen. Giraud Walked Into Hands Of Captors, Nazi Leaders Say

Berlin, May 21 (U.P.).—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, commander of France's Ninth Army on the Meuse battlefront and a famous military strategist, walked into the hands of the German army and "dumbfounded" his captors, a Nazi spokesman said tonight.

Gen. Giraud, captured along with the members of his staff, was seized in the Valenciennes sector along the Escaut River east of Arras and Cambrai, it was indicated.

Arriving from Paris to take over command of the Allied attempts to stem the German drive westward, the 61-year-old commander was said to have walked into what he believed to be his headquarters and to have found himself facing German officers and soldiers.

"It is inconceivable to us," said a Nazi informant, "how Gen. Giraud and his chauffeur who brought him there could have escaped noticing the Germans about the headquarters."

It was a twist of fate that Gen. Giraud was captured by the Germans about 10 days after the outbreak of the World War when he was a captain and was wounded in the battle of the Guise. He escaped through Belgium and Holland to England, whence he returned to France and the fighting front in 1917 and was assigned to the staff of France's Fifth Army.

Over the Coffee

TOURIST GARB: We don't have parachute troops here, praise be; we have tourists. Today in the Capitol rotunda I saw a man wearing a pith helmet next to a coatless man with green suspenders.

Harlan Miller

The Capitol guides, male and female, have put on light gray serge uniforms, and they look more elegant than any 20 Senators.

* * * *

Our hero Lindy's ears must be burning this week; the mildest thing I've heard him called in official circles here is "stupid meddling oaf."

* * * *

AMATEURS CRASH: It came out during the CAA squabble that non-airline planes total about 2,600 crashes a year, or about seven a day. Gives you a rough idea of the minor excitement at the airports.

* * * *

TEXAS PATRIOT: A little girl in Texas sent in $1 to the Navy Department toward the construction of a warship. It has been returned to her with an affectionate note from Assistant Secretary Lewis Compton.

It would take $2 from every American under 20 years old—from roughly 40,000,000 contributors—to build one modern battleship.

* * * *

But 30 cents from each would build a pretty good cruiser . . . Such gifts require an act of Congress to enable the Navy to accept 'em.

"it looks authentic now"

INDISCREET WIFE: One of the wives of the Nazi Embassy staff here has a weakness, at dinner parties, for saying bitter, scathing things about Hitler. Her husband overhears a snatch amid the chatter, turns a greenish white.

* * * *

If Mussolini dives into the war for such offal as Hitler might throw him, he will probably be hanged in effigy in 100 American towns. Even the commercial club of Maquoketa, Iowa, is launching a campaign against Italian involvement.

* * * *

PHONY WAR: One of the cynics who wrote and orated endlessly about what he called "this phony war" is now telling everyone who will listen that he predicted the big push months ago, to the very day. No one is listening, though.

* * * *

PLANE JAM: Since a private checkup revealed that American factories are turning out 690 planes a month, and can barely reach 800 monthly this year, the short-of-war statesmen are pessimistic whether the Allied-plus-U. S. plane production will overtake the Nazi production, in 1941 or 1942 or any predictable time.

Earlier calculations had set next midsummer as the witching hour, if it still matters.

NO BELLIGERENTS: At big embassy and legation parties nowadays, diplomats of the nations at war are conspicuously absent. They aren't invited. No Britons, Germans, Dutch, Belgians or French. Even without 'em the parties are none too gay.

* * * *

FEMALE MELANGE: At some of the hen parties, though, the hostesses are less careful. The other day a lady from the Canadian Legation found herself at a luncheon where another guest was from the local outpost of Nazi kultur. She remained clear over on the opposite side of the room.

"—their enemies have long ears"

But I was a little startled the other evening at a stag party at one of the legations to see the Russian Ambassador and one of the Finnish diplomats standing elbow to elbow, inadvertantly greeting the same American at the same moment.

Technically, of course, they're amiable again.

FEMALE SPIES: In one of the offices at the Navy Department I espied a framed poster on the wall headed "Beware of Female Spies." . . . A lieutenant commander quickly explained that it was merely a souvenir of the last war.

* * * *

But the ante-room at the British Embassy is plastered with gay, comical posters proclaiming that "our enemies have long ears" and that good Britons should be on guard.

Most of them show men and women on trams, in restaurants and other public places, with little Hitlers hiding under the tables or big, fat Goerings seated in the next chair, listening.

BLITZKRIEG MEMO: One keeps trying to forget the war for a few minutes now and then. But the first news of the assault on Holland still rings in my ears: "Nazis Invade Holland, British Land in Iceland."

* * * *

There was a Tchaikowsky program on the air that night, too, all torn up with war bulletins. And at intervals girls with squeaky or hoarse voices sang a song called "Fools Rush In."

It sounded like an eerie argument for isolation, or perhaps Nazi control of the static.

Republican Leaders Cool To Coalition

Convention Plans Go Ahead; Landon Due Here Today

By Robert C. Albright

Republican leaders are determined to go through with a two-party campaign, according to schedule, without any change in June 15 convention arrangements and minus any party coalition with the Roosevelt Administration Cabinet.

All talk of convention postponement or Cabinet coalition affecting G. O. P. policy was spiked yesterday by Republican National Committee headquarters and minority spokesmen in Congress.

Coalition reports also received a dash of cold water at the White House, where the President denied any knowledge of them. As for Republicans taking jobs in this Administration, Mr. Roosevelt said there are a great many in the Government now and the same course followed in the last seven years in this respect will be continued.

Landon Luncheon Today

An "off again, on again" White House mix-up in arrangements for a Presidential appointment with former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, meanwhile, was straightened out apparently to the satisfaction of both concerned. The appointment was set for today as originally planned. The President said only that Landon and himself, he supposed, would talk about a lot of things.

Former Gov. Landon has said he is four-square with the President on national defense preparation, and has offered to cooperate on foreign policy. But before his White House appointment was called off and called on again, the 1936 G. O. P. standard bearer opposed any postponement of the Republican convention and declared against any suggestion that his party "lend itself to any coalition which would tend to decrease party responsibility."

An almost identical view of the Republican Party's future course was taken at the Capitol by Senate Minority Leader McNary, House Minority Leader Martin, Senator Townsend, of Delaware, chairman of the Senate Republican campaign committee, and others.

Coalition reports ran wild early this week following word last Thursday that Col. Frank Knox, 1936 Republican G. O. P. Vice Presidetnial nominee, had been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy. Ensuing reports were that Landon would be offered a Cabinet portfolio, as would Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York.

Denies Knowledge of Coalition

Questioned on this score, President Roosevelt said he had never heard of the proposed coalition until he read it in the papers. A newsman asked if he believed what he read. Mr. Roosevelt replied that the reporter probably knew what he would like him to say, but he wouldn't say it.

Specifically, President Roosevelt was asked if Mayor LaGuardia would be offered a post in his Cabinet. The President replied that this was just one of a hundred names he had seen suggested in the public press.

Previously the President had said a great many people who would fit into the picture are coming to Washington to meet increasing management needs. It was when a reporter asked if these would include Republicans that the President pointed out that Republicans have been called into the Government picture since the New Deal began.

The Landon appointment, and a further conference arranged with Representative Wadsworth, of New York, indicated that the President will continue close contact with such G. O. P. leaders who share both his national defense and to a large extent foreign policy views.

Landon was en route to Washington from Topeka Monday when he received word through a White House intermediary that the White House appointment set for today had been rescinded "in view of developments." A telephoned call from the President to Chicago personally explained the mix-up.

Gannett Due Here Tomorrow

Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, explained that the President originally wanted to see Representative Wadsworth today and Landon tomorrow, and suggested a postponement of Landon's visit from today until tomorrw.

Wadsworth, who had been scheduled to lunch with the President today, was asked to come in yesterday instead. But Wadsworth was out of town.

Republicans in and out of Congress, meanwhile, continued to attack coalition proposals. In Boston, Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, released a letter written by former President Hoover last September during the special session of Congress on neutrality. Hoover said that to propose coalition government or adjournment of party action strikes at free government in this country.

"Certainly while we are at peace," the Hoover letter said, "the Republican Party should lend its support to our opponents if they adhere to keeping this Nation out of war and of preparing adequate defense for our country. And in our domestic questions it has a real duty to maintain free debate, constructive opposition, the presentation of alternative domestic policies, and to perform its responsibilities in the election of 1940. That cannot be adjourned.

"As a matter of fact, those functions were not adjourned even in the Civil War. They were not adjourned during the Great War. To propose such actions in times of peace is a proposal to adjourn free Government in the United States.

The Gallup Poll

American Public Has Favored Larger Air Force for Five Years

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., May 21.—President Roosevelt's call for stronger national defenses, and particularly for a larger air force, is directly in line with desires expressed by the American voting public for many years past.

GALLUP

When the blitzkrieg came on the western front, the United States suddenly became conscious of its defense needs.

In view of the general alarm, it is interesting to note that the common people, who are certainly not military experts, have been overwhelmingly in favor of increasing our defenses for the last five years at least.

The voters have laid particular emphasis on the need for a stronger air force. As far back as November, 1935, more than 80 percent of those polled by the American Institute of Public Opinion thought the Nation should increase its power in the air.

Following is the trend of sentiment on national defense as measured by institute surveys.

"Do you think the United States should increase the size of its Army, Navy and Air Force?"

	Army	Navy	A.F.
November, 1935..	70%	72%	84%
After Munich (1938)	82	86	90
After Poland and Outbreak of Present War...	86	88	91

The President and many experts consider that strengthening the Nation's air arm should be the first order of business, and the White House has called for a production of 50,000 warplanes a year. The British find themselves seriously handicapped because they failed to build up their air force when they had the chance.

The institute surveys show that American voters with all their lack of military education and experience were calling for a larger air force five years ago. With each new move of Hitler, the percentage went up—to 90 after Munich, to 91 after Poland and the outbreak of the present war.

Each day's fighting in France and Belgium justifies the American voter's early judgment of the value of air superiority.

The institute is at present conducting a survey to measure public reaction to President Roosevelt's defense message last Friday, and discover whether the Nation wants his program, if passed, paid for by taxes or by further borrowing. Results will be released late this week.

8 Convention Votes Pledged For Wheeler

Helena, Mont., May 21 (U.P.).—A Democratic delegation of 32 members pledged to cast its eight votes for Senator Burton K. Wheeler, for President was named today at the State convention.

Each delegate will have one-quarter vote. Eight of those chosen will serve as delegates-at-large.

Wheeler told the convention that if elected President, he would keep the United States out of foreign wars.

In the convention keynote, Wheeler praised President Roosevelt and the New Deal, saying the President "restored confidence of the people in . . . the Government.

Hoffman Trailing

Newark, N. J., May 21.—State Senator Robert C. Hendrickson, of Gloucester County, forged into a slight lead tonight in a closely contested race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Returns in today's primary balloting from 1,340 of the State's 3,631 districts, gave Hendrickson 91,718 votes to 77,209 for former Gov. Harold G. Hoffman.

Although Thomas E. Dewey alone was entered in the Republican Presidential preferential primary, Wendell Willkie, utilities executive, obtained a "write-in" vote in many counties—his first votes in the Nation.

Cromwell Unopposed

Navy Secretary Charles Edison and James H. R. Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada, were without opposition for the Democratic nominations for Governor and United States Senator, respectively.

In 63 districts Edison had 6,442, while 54 districts gave Cromwell 6,443.

Willkie polled 574 votes in 126 districts in seven of the State's 21 counties. Dewey, who had the support of leaders of both factions of the party in the State, polled 9,904 votes in 159 districts.

The New Jersey delegation of 32 to the Republican convention will be uninstructed, but leaders said it would vote on the first ballot for the man topping the preferential primary.

President Roosevelt was not entered in the Democratic primary, but all 64 delegates, each with a half vote, ran pledged to him.

Senator W. Warren Barbour easily won renomination over two opponents. His vote in 376 districts was 29,811 to 779 for George O. Pullen, of Trenton, and 1,125 for C. Dan Coskey, of Jersey City.

River Projects Vetoed to Put Focus on Arms

President Roosevelt vetoed a $109,985,450 rivers and harbors bill yesterday because, he told Congress, the War Department should devote its energies to "military preparedness" rather than nonmilitary activities.

The measure would have authorized 151 projects for the improvement of rivers, harbors and other navigation facilities and would have required the Army engineers to make surveys of 149 other projects.

The veto message, in full, follows:

I return herewith, without my approval, HR. 6264, "authorizing the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors and for other purposes."

The bill adopts and authorizes the prosecution of 151 projects for the improvement of rivers, harbors, and other waterways. It also directs the Secretary of War to make surveys of 149 additional projects. There is authorized to be appropriated for these purposes $109,985,450.

"Of existing authorizations for river and harbor projects totaling $207,720,140, there are so-called inactive projects in the amount of $49,746,390. There is also carried in the pending War Department civil functions appropriation bill an amount of $25,000,000 for construction work on account of existing project authorizations. This leaves a balance of outstanding authorizations for active projects in the amount of $132,973,750.

"It seems to me that this balance supplies a sufficient backlog of authorizations for appropriation purposes, without the necessity or desirability of adding thereto the large additional amount proposed by the present bill. Moreover, to increase unduly the authorizations for river and harbor projects is likely to produce the undesirable result of throwing out of balance the distribution, as between the different classes of all Federal construction projects, of the amount that, within annual fiscal limitations, may be appropriately devoted to such purpose.

"Regardless of every other consideration, it seems to me that the nonmilitary activities of the War Department should give way at this time to the need for military preparedness. This is a need, not so apparent at the time the bill was under consideration by Congress, that must now be recognized by all as a matter demanding priority of attention.

"With respect to the few items in the bill that are of national defense value, I would be glad to approve separate legislation covering these projects."

House Defeats 3 Amendments To Relief Bill

President Asks Limit Of $50,000 on WPA Projects Be Killed

By John B. Oakes

Post Staff Writer

Three proposed amendments to the 1941 relief appropriation bill were defeated in the House yesterday, while President Roosevelt threw his weight behind another proposed amendment which will come up for consideration today.

The House successively turned down attempts by Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, to give control of relief to local communities; by Representative Casey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, to raise the President's recommendation of $975,650,000 for eight months to $2,232,000,000 for the entire year, and by Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to abolish the provision requiring an average 25 percent local contribution to WPA projects in each State.

President Writes Cannon

In a letter to Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, floor manager for the relief measure, President Roosevelt vigorously attacked a provision in the bill limiting to $50,000 the amount of Federal funds that can be spent on any WPA structural projects—including buildings, bridges, viaducts, stadia and tunnels.

Representative Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said he would sponsor an amendment to wipe out the restriction.

Recalling that the Appropriations Committee justified the limitation on the grounds that "the larger the structure, the lower the proportion of relief labor used on it," President Roosevelt said he had been informed by Works Progress Administrator Harrington that "the proportion of relief labor on large construction projects is in many cases greater than on small projects."

"The overall proportion of relief labor on all construction projects now in operation is between 96 and 97 per cent," the President added.

President Roosevelt said he thought that proponents of the $50,000 limitation might, "with some justification, be charged with a desire to return to boondoggling."

The restriction in the bill would have "a disastrous effect" upon WPA's construction program, the President asserted, continuing: "It would prevent the employment of many needy employable persons at their regular occupations; it would force the operation of numerous small projects of doubtful value . . . and would prevent the execution of much work that is greatly needed."

Furthermore, he said it would have "a particularly harmful effect" on attempts to use the WPA program to further national defense.

Taber Amendment Beaten

The Taber amendment returning relief to the States was defeated by a vote of 87 to 52, while the Casey proposal for a grant of $2,232,000,000 was turned down, 144 to 54.

Representative Casey said his amendment would provide for an average of 3,000,000 WPA jobs. (The Appropriations Committee's report on the relief bill said that if the $975,650,000 is all used in the first eight months of the fiscal year, an average employment of 1,950,000 would be maintained, as compared with an average of 2,042,000 during the current fiscal year.)

Representative Nichols' proposal to abolish the 25 per cent sponsorship requirement was defeated by 118 to 127.

A delegation from the American Federation of Teachers called at the White House yesterday, with a petition bearing 15,000 names, to plead against any reduction in WPA education projects. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, secretary to the President, received the petition.

D. C.'s Supply Bill Argument Headed For Settlement

Speedy settlement of differences between the Senate and House on the District supply bill is expected when the conferees hold their first meeting today.

With House managers prepared to yied on many Senate additions, the parley will be in marked contrast with the fight last year which threatened the District with a payless payday.

Stiffest opposition from the House is expected against Senate addition for school sites, 25 additional policemen, and increases for relief and health services.

Jones-Wheeler Farm Credit Bill Shelved

House Committee Weighs New Plan To Aid Rate Reduction

By Hedley Donovan

Post Staff Writer

The Jones-Wheeler farm credit bill, center of sharp controversy for three months, was shelved yesterday as the House Agriculture Committee took up a substitute measure designed to aid reduction of farm loan interest rates within the framework of the present Federal Land Bank system.

Only surviving feature of the original bill, which was backed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Farm Credit Governor A. G. Black, is the provision for refinancing land bank bonds now held by the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation.

Controversial Provisions Dropped

The new draft eliminates provisions of the Jones-Wheeler bill which witnesses before House and Senate committees contended would destroy the cooperative character of the farm credit system and lead to "socialized credit."

These provisions would have cut farm loan interest rates to a flat 3 per cent, established a Government guarantee of the land bank bonds, and ended the present arrangement by which borrowers take 5 per cent of their loans in land bank stock. The original bill also prohibited deficiency judgments against land bank borrowers and provided for automatic scale down of mortgages whenever the borrower could prove his indebtedness exceeded the productive value of his land.

The new bill authorizes the Federal Reserve banks to rediscount land bank paper and requires the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation to buy land bank bonds at relatively low interest rates.

Republican as well as majority members of the House Agriculture Committee yesterday expressed the opinion that the new legislation would reduce the Federal subsidy necessary to hold interest rates paid by the farmer down to a level of 3½ per cent. The House has passed a bill extending the 3½ per cent rate for five years, while the Senate has on its calendar a bill to set the same rate for a two-year period.

Bill Intact in Senate

No substitute legislation has yet been drafted in the Senate, where the Jones-Wheeler bill is still before a Banking and Currency subcommittee.

Senator Miller (Democrat), of Arkansas, subcommittee chairman, said yesterday, however, that no date has been set for further hearings on the Jones-Wheeler bill.

Group Would Give Allies Planes Free

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).—A Maryland branch of the "National Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies," today proposed a gift of 10,000 airplanes from the United States to the Allied high command.

The planes would be built with a Federal appropriation, and transferred to the Allies through Canada, said Dr. Arthur O. Lovejoy, professor emeritus of philosophy at Johns Hopkins University, and chairman of the branch organized today.

D. C. to Take Income Tax Case to Court

Morgan May Rule Against Commissioners In Residence Issue

Authority of the District to tax the incomes of persons living here but claiming legal residence elsewhere will be sought through a test case before the United States Supreme Court, Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal said yesterday.

Because of a forecast by the District Board of Tax Appeals it would rule against the District on this issue, Seal yesterday conferred with his assistants on plans to save the District some $50,000 sought in refunds by persons who claim they are domiciled in other jurisdictions.

Jo V. Morgan, sole member of the board, indicated yesterday, in view of the Supreme Court's adverse ruling in the Sweeney case, he would rule against the District in the first appeal from the income levy before him.

In the Sweeney case income taxes were not involved. James J. Sweeney, an attorney at the Department of Justice, claimed he was not liable for the old intangible personal property tax. The Court of Appeals held that the District could not levy this tax against Sweeney because he was "domiciled" in Boston, although he had lived here for 20 years.

The case before Morgan, which was brought by Eugene S. Henning, of 930 Randolph street northwest, involves the income levy. Henning, who is an employe of the Navy Department, stated in his appeal that he is a legal resident of Worcester, Mass., where he claims payment of income taxes. He said he is not domiciled here and wants a refund of income taxes he paid to the District. According to officials, 3,814 persons claim refunds.

Meanwhile, Morgan announced a debate on the District tax system would be held Sunday at 4 p. m., in the board room of the District Building. The debate is sponsored by the public relations committee of the District Bar Association, of which Morgan is chairman. Participants will be William E. Hayes, chairman of the tax committee of the association; Herbert S. Wood, senior technical adviser to the commissioner of internal revenue; Sefton Darr, former president of the Bar Association; John E. McClure, tax attorney, ad E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel for the District.

Aid in Supervising Nazi Treatment Of Captives Asked

By the Associated Press

With thousands of British, French and Belgian prisoners of war being transported into Germany, Alexander C. Kirk, charge d'affaires of the American Embassy in Berlin, has appealed to the State Department for help in supervising their treatment.

Kirk has formed a special organization in the embassy to handle such supervision at the request of the Allies. It consists of an American Army officer who went recently to Berlin, an American public health officer attached to the embassy, and two foreign service officers.

This organization is proving insufficient. Berlin dispatches claimed the capture of 100,000 soldiers during the week-end, but no official word has arrived from the Berlin embassy.

In supervising the treatment of prisoners as a "protecting power," the United States is acting under a 1929 pact which guarantees prisoners of war equitable treatment such as they never were guaranteed in any previous war.

Gale Warnings Posted On Atlantic Coast

By the Associated Press

Storm warnings were displayed from Cape Hatteras to Nantucket, Mass., the Weather Bureau announced last night.

An Atlantic disturbance was reported to have increased in intensity and at 7:30 p. m. (E.S.T.) was centered about 31 degrees north latitude and 72 degrees west longtitude. It is accompanied by moderate gales over a small area and is moving slowly northward or northeastward at about 15 miles per hour, the bureau said.

U. S. Circuit Judge, 83, To Quit After 34 Years

Denver, May 21 (AP).—United States Circuit Judge Robert E. Lewis, of the Tenth District, today asked President Roosevelt to accept his retirement after 34 years as a Federal judge.

The jurist, who was 83 years old on April 3, said in a letter to the President that he elected to retire from regular active service on the bench because he had passed the age of 70.

Democrats Back Roosevelt 3d Term In Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., May 21 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Democratic State committee elected Meredith Meyers, Lewistown newspaper publisher, as chairman today and pledged its support anew to President Roosevelt for a third term.

Meyers succeeds David L. Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, who retired after three successive two-year terms.

The committee named Lawrence and Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister of Senator Guffey, as national committee members.

The change in State chairman resulted from Guffey's successful fight against the Lawrence wing of the party for renomination at the April primaries.

Children's Fair Demonstrates Chest Activities

Several hundred city children created a rollicking country fair for throngs of visitors who came to see demonstrations of Community Chest activities yesterday afternoon on grounds of the Charles Carroll Glover estate.

The sloping lawns at 4300 Massachusetts avenue northwest presented a carnival scene, with 40 booths arrayed along a shady promenade. In the natural amphitheater, children who find recreation and guidance through Chest agencies presented folk dances, acrobatics and songs.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived in midafternoon to make a tour of the exhibits. Children crowded around her so enthusiastically that Boy and Girl Scouts and Girl Reserves linked hands to clear a path and escort her.

Jennings Greets First Lady

Coleman Jennings, president of the Chest, greeted Mrs. Roosevelt at one of the booths. Later she, Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, chairman of the Community Chest League; Mrs. Joseph E. Davies and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., sat on the grass to watch the opening of the program in the amphitheater.

The award for the best interpretation was given to the booth of the Social Hygiene Society, which showed dioramas of a wedding and a happy home. A banner for second prize went to Southeast House, a colored settlement which had an exhibit of handicrafts and photographs. Honorable mention was given to the Salvation Army whose booth showed how waste materials are put to use.

First award for artistic effectiveness went to Florence Crittenton Home's nursery scene with a layette exhibit. Second place was won by Health Security Administration which had a chart showing how services from clinics and hospitals reach the people. Honorable mention went to Social Hygiene Society's exhibit.

The judging committee functioned without its chairman, Mrs. Dwight Davis, who had to attend an emergency meeting at the Red Cross as chairman for special volunteer services.

"Indians" Make Pottery

It was a heyday for the youngsters who showed off their skills to the visitors. In the booth of Georgetown Children's House, six boys with streaks of red paint on their cheeks and feathers in their hair busily made clay pottery in an "Indian Lodge."

Andy Shreve, 15-year-old student of Gonzaga High School, in a black and white checked suit, red tie and derby hat, acted as barker for the booth of the Boys Club of Washington.

An "over-night camp," complete with improvised stove made from a large tin can, was shown by Holiday House. Jane Sentman and Gloria Farley explained the rustic fixtures to uninitiated city-dwellers.

The booth of Friendship House and children carving wood, weaving rugs, making pottery and tinkering with puppets.

Forty of the Chest's 67 agencies presented exhibits or demonstrations at the program which was sponsored by the Chest League, an organization of prominent women. Sixty hostesses assisted Mrs. Reed on the reception committee.

Congress to Get Plan Today to Transfer Immigration Service

President Roosevelt moved yesterday to transfer the task of keeping undesirable aliens out of the country to the Justice Department, as antispy officers reported an increasing number of reports of "fifth column" activity.

At his press conference, the President announced that he would send to Congress today reorganization order No. 5, transferring the Immigration and Naturalization Service from the Labor Department to the Justice Department.

For national defense reasons it was advisable to make this change now, the President said, recalling that such a change had been contemplated last winter.

Urgency Stressed

Indicating the urgency with which he viewed the alien problem, the President said he hoped his reorganization proposal would not meet undue delay in Congress.

The change would transfer alien control to the domain of the Attorney General who is leading an intensive spy hunt in cooperation with J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The President's announcement of the proposed transfer followed a luncheon conference with Attorney General Jackson. As a sequel to this luncheon the President was asked at the press conference about "fifth column" activities and he hinted that more news on that may be available in a few days. In this connection, Attorney General Jackson is scheduled to hold a press conference tomorrow.

Spy Reports Pour In

Increased reports of subversive activities are pouring in, the Justice Department disclosed yesterday, at a rate fast approaching the high mark of 215 a day, set last fall. All of the reports are investigated, the Department said.

The Immigration Bureau, which may now be transferred, has charge of preventing illegal entry into the United States, of apprehending all persons who may have entered unlawfully and of prosecuting for deportation all aliens illegally here.

It employs 1,000 inspectors for duty at ports of entry as well as more than 800 patrolmen who guard the Mexican and Canadian borders against illegal entries.

U. S. Seeks Way To Ease Skilled Labor Problem

Doesn't Want to Rob Industry in Speeding Defense Program

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Key Government administrators yesterday were digging deep into the problem of how to speed up the national defense program without treading on the toes of private industry.

Central task, it was pointed out, is to get all the skilled men the Army and Navy need for their projected expansion without taking away labor supplies that private industry needs.

The aim of balancing Government demands for skilled manpower with the demands of industry, so that both can work at full speed, yesterday had brought these developments:

William H. McReynolds, the President's administrative assistant for personnel matters, had started conferences with representatives of private industry and skilled trade organizations.

Offers to Help Pour In

A committee was at work within the Civil Service Commission to collect all available information on labor shortages and bottlenecks in the skilled trades.

A reservoir of volunteer offers to help in emergency were being organized so they can be tapped at a moment's notice.

McReynolds' conferences, it was understood, are intended to make sure that all organizations, which are going concerns with experience and equipment useful for a quickened defense program, will be tied together into the national program.

Underlying the conferences is this thought: The most difficult part of getting a major job done is getting an organization set up, and where valuable ones, such as trade groups, already exist their facilities should be used.

Brightest theme in the picture of civilian recruiting are the scores of offers to help. These have come in from men in all walks of life, from industrial executives, business leaders, former Government administrators, on down the line to apparent cranks.

Letters Classified

The President has received many, some from college classmates, some from political opponents. Other volunteer offers have gone to members of the President's staff, Cabinet members and others.

All these letters have been placed in a central file at the Civil Service Commission. They have been classified roughly on the basis of experience, and graded into four groups on the basis of the man's probable value in an emergency. Yesterday the commission had completed a detailed questionnaire to be sent out to all the volunteers, to get their experience, training, education.

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York City, and Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee, will be among the speakers at an employe rally tomorrow celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Mayor LaGuardia was a member of Congress when the act was passed, and supported the measure in testimony before the Civil Service Committees.

The rally will be held in the Departmental Auditorium, at 8 p. m. The program will include music by the Marine Band, and the Agriculture Department Symphonic Choir.

Delegate King to Speak

Lewis H. Fisher, chief of the retirement division in the Civil Service Commission, said yesterday that more than 60,000 persons now on the Government retirement rolls are drawing an average annuity of $978.

Government employes, he said, have paid $500,000,000 to build up the fund in the last 20 years. Balance in the fund now is about $475,000,000.

Calendar: Samuel W. King, delegate to Congress from Hawaii, will be guest speaker at a National Park Service program "Hawaii—U. S. A." at 8 p. m. today in the Departmental Auditorium . . . U. S. War Position Altered, Grady Says

Denver, May 21 (AP).—Henry F. Grady, Assistant Secretary of State, said tonight the "intensification of the European war had destroyed every argument" for United States isolation.

In Denver to address a group of Colorado exporters, Grady told interviewers "it is utter folly to think we can dissociate our interests from those of the world."

Referring to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's Sunday radio speech condemning United States "meddling" with affairs abroad, Grady said:

Assuring Themselves of a Dance at C. U. Prom

Billion Asked for Air Defense Ring Around U.S.

on to reveal how many members of the German-American Bund are on the association's rolls. He declared the group had solicited members from bundsmen and had sold it rifles.

President Roosevelt's implied rebuke of Nazi war methods did not mention Germany by name. He asserted the country as a whole is united on the defense question and that as fast as the news comes in from abroad, the more united it is.

He then cited press reports of the plane-strafing of refugees, and added the country realizes some of the implications of this disaster and this method of warfare.

What these implications were, the President did not state, but his point obviously was that they showed the need for huge armaments for the United States.

Looks Toward the Future

The vast expansion of naval air facilities was put before Congress by Chairmen Walsh and Vinson of the Senate and House Naval Affairs Committees. It would increase the number of naval planes from 3,000 to 10,000, the number of pilots from 2,602 to 16,000 and spend some $124,132,000 immediately to build air bases in continental United States and on American-owned islands in the Carribean, mid-Pacific, and Aleutian Islands.

In a joint statement, Walsh and Vinson said the program had been agreed upon at a conference with President Roosevelt and naval officials. They said Mr. Roosevelt wants it clearly understood the plan "is not in its entirety to be undertaken at once" but looks toward the future.

Vinson said authorizing legislation will be voted by his committee today and that deficiency funds for for starting the air bases will be asked before adjournment.

New Flying School Planned

The $250,000,000 emergency naval defense fund, now before the Senate naval appropriations subcommittee, includes $100,000,000 for expanding air-training facilities, Vinson said, including a new flying school at Corpus Christi, Tex., and 800 training planes.

Walsh said the aviation needs of the fleet would be taken care of by 4,500 of the planes proposed, leaving 5,500 for the shore bases.

Chairman Byrnes of the Senate naval funds subcommittee later said "a great many" of the air bases proposed in the new program would be included in the 1941 Navy supply bill. Hearings on the measure, which will include both regular and emergency fleet money, will end this morning and the bill will be put before the full committee and probably the Senate later in the day.

President Roosevelt's discussion of war methods and possible strikes or excess profits came in his press conference. The latter resulted from a request for comment on a statement of John L. Lewis that the C. I. O. would endeavor to organize workers in the aircraft and other munitions industries.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that this would be legal, and then after a pause declared the Government would strive to prevent anybody—capital or labor—from getting rich out of world disaster.

He said that not a single war millionaire should be created out of the emergency and that labor unions should not take advantage of the situation to strike for special wages or privileges not held by the rest of labor. He expressed confidence labor would not take such action.

Summing up his comment, the President said the Government proposes in no way to weaken the social gains made in the last few years.

Emphasizes Its Importance

The latter statement was called very, very important by the President, who said he wanted retention of the 40 or 42 hour week, with just as little overtime as possible, in order that more of the unemployed might find work.

Mr. Roosevelt's determination was reflected in the House Naval Affairs Committee's action in rejecting a proposal to suspend the Walsh-Healy Act during the emergency. The committee approved a bill to speed up naval construction by permitting navy yards and Government contractors and subcontractors to work more than 8 hours a day or 40 hours a week, up to 48 hours, with time and one-half overtime pay.

Suspension of the Walsh-Healy Labor Standards Act had been requested by the Navy and voted tentatively into the bill. It was stricken after Chairman Vinson conferred with the President.

The measure also authorizes the Navy to dismiss civil employes suspected of subversive activities or plans, and would suspend the 10 per cent profits limit from naval contracts of $25,000 or less. A $10,000 exemption is now granted.

Unalaska Base Included

Neither Walsh nor Vinson would estimate the cost of the naval air expansion program beyond the $124,132,000 for bases and $100,000,000 immediately for training. Officials pointed out, however, that on the basis of estimates furnished Congress by the War and Navy Departments the purchase price and one year's overall operating costs—personnel, fuel, etc.—alone would run to about a billion dollars for 7,000 planes.

The Administration bill includes funds for an air base at Unalaska, far out in the Aleutian Islands, and at several islands in the mid-Pacific beyond Hawaii. Funds for facilities at Guam, however, which have been rejected by Congress, were not included.

The list of bases, with cost, follows: Norfolk, Va., $13,246,000; San Juan, P. R., $2,300,000; Coco Solo, C. Z., $12,990,000; Seattle, Wash., $4,670,000; Kodiak, Alaska, $2,012,000; Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, $5,807,000; Kaneohe Hawaii, $570,000; Midway Island, $1,870,000; Wake Island, $5,582,000; Johnson Island, $460,000; Quonset Point, R. I., $24,204,000; Quantico, Va., $2,326,000; Guantanamo, Cuba, $2,886,000; Charlotte Amalie, Virgin Islands, $1,510,000; San Diego, Calif., $5,637,000; Alameda, Calif., $6,861,000; Unalaska, Alaska, $2,963,000; Canton Island, $1,500,000; Tongue Point, Oreg., $2,000,000; Corpus Christi, Tex., $25,000,000; total, $124,132,000.

Senators Bid for Army Posts

In the day the Senate approved all major phases of the $1,820,000,000 Army supply bill except the "blank check" for the President. Debate was largely confined to efforts of individual Senators to add funds to the bill for purchasing land for Army posts in their States. By a narrow margin of 36 to 30, $2,311,720 was added to expand six forts.

Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, protested at length against America selling warplanes to the Allies while trying to increase our own air force. His stand went unsupported, and was opposed by Senators Austin (Republican), of Vermont, and Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, who declared such sales a great asset to national defense.

The bill is expected to pass today after a sharp fight on voting the President a $200,000,000 "blank check" appropriation.

Lilienthal Urges Industry for South

Mineral Wells, Tex., May 21 (AP). David E. Lilienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, said today the South, "denied equality of economic opportunity" with the rest of the Nation, must manufacture as well as produce raw materials to raise its income "to a more satisfactory level."

In a study he presented before the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association meeting, he said:

"The fundamental readjustment we in the South must accomplish is to change our way of making a living from an almost complete reliance on production of raw materials . . . If we can process and finish a greater proportion of those raw materials and receive the greater compensation which these manufactured articles will bring to us, then our income will rise to a more satisfactory level.

N. Y. Agency Accused of Plot To Frame Kelly

Wire-Tapping Inquiry Told of Effort to 'Get' Philadelphia Leader

Counsel for the Senate committee investigating wire tapping yesterday charged a New York detective agency with complicity in an attempt to "frame" Jack Kelly, Philadelphia Democratic leader.

The accusation by William P. Maloney climaxed two hours of testimony by Charles J. Brown, vice president of an electrical supply firm and an occasional employe of Frank Bielaski, head of an agency for "confidential investigation."

Brown testified before the special committee headed by Senator Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee, that he had installed recording machinery in Philadelphia and New York hotel suites to record conversation in 1938 conferences between "Pennsylvania politicians" and alleged representatives of a firm marketing a device for installation in State liquor stores.

Microphone in Next Room

Another employe of the Bielaski agency was in the hotel room with Kelly where the microphone was installed, Brown related, while Bielaski was with him in the adjoining room where the recording machinery was set up.

"This other man knew you were making records, didn't he?" Maloney asked.

"I don't know," Brown said. "The undercover men don't always know about those things. If they know we're making records, they sometimes get nervous—mike fright you might call it."

Maloney cut in to say, "This whole thing was a put-up job, wasn't it? You knew it was a frameup."

"My job is just a technical one," Brown replied. "I'm not paid to think about these other things. I don't give any thought to the legal or the sociological aspects of my work."

Pleads Lack of Information

"Or the biological?" Maloney asked.

Brown said he didn't do "that sort of work."

"Isn't it a fact," the committee attorney asked, "that at the end of the last of these meetings one of the men came in from the room where the microphone had been and said to Bielaski, 'Well, we almost got the —— on the hook?'"

"I don't know," said Brown. "I was pretty busy at the time.'

Hines Opposes Pension Bill As Too Costly

By the Associated Press

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, Monday opposed as too costly at this time House-approved legislation to provide pensions for dependents of all deceased World War veterans.

Hines, appearing at a Senate Finance subcommittee hearing, said he had no doubt that Congress ultimately would provide service pensions for the World War veterans and their dependents, but said he doubted this was "the time to make a start" in the light of "other demands on the Government."

He estimated the first-year cost of the legislation without provision for dependent parents at $19,957,000, but said that the amount would probably increase in later years. If provision were made for parents he said as has been done in the House bill an additional first-year cost of $8,472,000 would be incurred.

12 Investment Men Indicted In Mail Fraud

SEC Charges They Fleeced Business Seeking Capital

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 21.—A Federal grand jury today charged a dozen New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Ohio investment counselors with defrauding money-needing businesses of "advance fees" which a prosecutor declared totaled $1,000,000.

They were indicted for an alleged scheme to collect "front money," represented as necessary in advance for procurement of desired capital and financing. The Government charged the defendants—with no intention of producing such capital—collected unnecessary incorporation and prospectus fees, as well as other moneys, from small or prospective companies.

Individuals indicted were: Samuel J. Lewis, Edward Schofs, Arthur L. Rose, Rowland S. Mott, Victor de Villiers, W. M. Harvey and William H. Gould, all of New York City; Bernard B. Gross, Chicago; Paul E. Reinhardt and C. Wayne Gould, Los Angeles, and Edward M. Hill and Carl J. Barth, both of Cleveland.

"First Real Break"

Jerome N. Frank, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, commented:

"This is the first real break we have had in a drive to clean up a racket which has victimized honest business, particularly small business, in many parts of the country.

"It is my hope that in the future businessmen will consult responsible local bankers before becoming entangled in these schemes."

SEC said it was continuing to investigate other individuals.

The joint indictment was brought under the mail fraud statute. It charged the alleged chicancery was carried on since 1934 by the defendants operating in their own names and names of various companies.

The companies, not indicted, were named as R. S. Mott Co., Victor de Villiers Co., Victor de Villiers Staff, Inc., and W. M. Harvey Co., all of New York; Reinhardt and Co., of Los Angeles, Chicago, New York and Brussels, Belgium; Warren Franklin Corp., Chicago, Monarch Co., Youngstown, O., and the Cosmos, Lincoln and Arley Investment Companies of Cleveland, assisted by Corporation Fiscal Co., Delaware Registration Trust Co. and Commonwealth Trust Co., of Wilmington, Del.

Dan T. Moore, regional director, said SEC originated the investigation through evidence uncovered last year in revoking broker-dealer registration of certain firms.

Investigation "failed to reveal a single instance in which a share of stock had been sold or capital or financing secured," SEC said.

Tenth of War Fund Raised By Red Cross

Taylor Cables Story Of Urgent Need to Aid 5,000,000 Refugees

The American Red Cross announced last night that it had passed the $1,000,000 mark in its drive for a $10,000,000 war relief fund.

A cable was received from Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Red Cross delegate in Paris, that food supplies are in danger of immediate exhaustion. With 5,000,000 Belgian and French refugees flooding central France, Taylor added:

"The impact on the food and other supplies of France is staggering. Resources here will be immediately exhausted."

Two hundred ampules of thorotrast, which is used in brain surgery, were shipped by clipper plane to the British Red Cross yesterday. More than 1,000 pounds of surgical dressing went to France on the same plane.

The Marquis de Lillers, president of the French Red Cross, yesterday cabled thanks for "the valuable and effective assistance so generously provided by the American Red Cross." A $500,000 gift was sent to France Monday.

Among the contributions received yesterday, the Red Cross announced were $50,000 from the United States Steel Corporation, $10,000 from Western Union and an anonymous gift of $10,000. Other large sums included $10,000 from the J. L. Hudson department store in Detroit, and $5,000 from J. B. Scholtman, of Detroit.

Young to Launch D. C. Red Cross Drive

Commissioner J. Russell Young will officially launch the District Red Cross war relief fund campaign with ceremonies at 4 p. m. today on the front steps of the chapter house, 1730 E street northwest.

Participating in the exercises will be Bruce Baird, chairman of the drive; Miss Mabel Boardman, American Red Cross secretary; Otto Lund, District chapter manager; Gen. F. R. Keefer, District chapter director; and representatives of the nine volunteer services.

Following the ceremonies, auxiliary chairman of the sewing and knitting units will hold a meeting in the chapter house. Surgical dressing chairman will have a luncheon meeting at the home of the general chairman, Mrs. Reginald Huidekoper, 2934 Edgevale Terrace northwest.

At a pre-campaign luncheon in the Mayflower yesterday, Chairman Baird urged his committee to pass the quota of $150,000 for the District. He announced the following assisting leaders: Admiral Charles R. Train, U. S. N. retired, chairman of the Speakers Bureau with Miss Stellita Stapleton as co-chairman; Joseph Hines, co-chairman of the Special Gifts Committee, to serve with Miss Boardman and William B. Briggs, chairman of the publicity committee.

House May Kill Silver Bill Under Legislative Rights

The constitutional prerogatives of the House will be called upon in an effort to kill the Senate-approved Townsend bill halting the Government purchase of foreign silver it was learned yesterday.

Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee said yesterday that "revenue measures" such as the Townsend bill could, under the Constitution, only originate in the House. The Townsend bill is a "revenue measure," members of the Ways and Means Committee said, because it contains a repealer of the Federal tax on profits obtained from the purchase and sale of foreign-mined silver.

It is understood that Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee, will probably move tomorrow that the House refuse to accept the Townsend bill from the Senate on this ground. Motions of this sort are almost always approved in the House.

If the House does refuse to act on the Townsend bill, the measure—without the tax repeal feature—probably will be tacked as a rider on the first convenient legislation that comes from the House.

Adult Education Project program, Wheately School, 8 p. m.

Swing concert, Dunbar High School, 8 p. m.

Three art exhibitions will be open to the public, one at Corcoran Gallery of Art and the others at the 816 Independence avenue galleries.

Col. R. W. Hills Is Found Dead In Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., May 21.—The body of Col. Ralph W. Hills, 65, lawyer, diplomat, author and intelligence officer in the Army Reserve Corps, was found here today in the boarding house room he rented Sunday.

HILLS

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle said that he had apparently suffered a heart attack while asleep. Col. Hills, who lived at 1820 Nineteenth street northwest, in Washington, came to Cumberland to find a summer home.

A graduate of Columbian College and Law School (late George Washington University), he practiced law in Washington for many years, then in 1911 was appointed a member of the Morgan Shuster Commission, which sought to straighten out the finances of Persia.

The czarist Russian government, which had come to an agreement with Great Britain whereby Persia was divided into spheres of influence, objected to the mission and Shuster was ousted within a year, Col. Hills with him.

Upon his return to the United States, he was appointed third secretary of the American Embassy in Rome. He remained in Italy until 1917, when he returned to the United States and enlisted in the officers' training camp at Fort Myer, Va.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Gorman Hills; two sons, Dr. Ralph G. Hills, of Baltimore, and Arthur G. Hills, of Washington; two daughters, Mrs. Stuart Gilmore, of Washington, and Mrs. William Roone, of Wolfeboro, N. H., and a sister, Mrs. Henry Morris, of Washington.

Wreath for Grave

A wreath will be laid on the grave of Martha Washington at Mount Vernon today, the 138th anniversary of her death, by the Martha Washington Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, of Alexandria, Va.

Chapter members will leave Alexandria at 10 a. m. and the ceremony will take place at 10:30.

Group Begins Move to Form Girls' Clubs

Baker, Young, Others Discuss Counterpart To Boys' Organization

Sibyl Baker, director of the community center, yesterday was appointed chairman of a committee to survey Washington's recreational facilities for girls as a forerunner to organizing a girls' club movement.

Miss Baker, with eight civic and District officials, met yesterday with Commissioner John Russell Young to discuss such a movement. All present concurred on the need for a centralized program to care for the girls in a manner similar to that provided by the Washington Boys Clubs.

The community center director said that a preliminary survey revealed some 39 recreation centers with programs suitable for girls. Miss Baker and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, also present, agreed adequate personnel is lacking.

Suggestions were made that the Community Chest be requested to supply funds for the girls' club movement. A report by Miss Baker is expected in about two weeks.

Present were Mrs. Doyle, Miss Baker, Commissioner Young, Judge Fay Bentley, of Juvenile Court; Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Women's Bureau; Mrs. Horace Phelps, chairman, department of welfare, Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Frank Linzel, president, Washington Council of Church Women; James S. Vance, Roy Klomparens, and John Paul Jones, of the Georgetown Lions Club.

2 Construction Workers Hurt in Accidents

Two workmen were treated at hospitals yesterday for injuries received at construction projects. Samuel Ennis, 40, of 665 South Carolina avenue southeast, sprained his back and lacerations when he fell from a ladder at the new Social Security Building, Third and C streets southwest. A rung gave way, fellow employes told police, and Ennis fell about 10 feet.

A cave-in of a Water Department excavation in the 1200 block Carrollsburg street southwest, trapped James Tyler, colored, 41, of 1308 R street northwest. He escaped with body bruises.

Dentist Cries Out at Kibitzing Mothers

Over indulgent mothers who take their children to the dentist frequently cause him more pain than the patient suffers.

The above is upon the word of a specialist in juvenile dentistry who unburdened himself yesterday.

"Mothers mean only the best, of course, but the worst generally comes of a parent's kibitzing while Betty is in the chair," Dr. John M. Clayton, of Kansas City, Mo., told the Five-State Post Graduate Clinic at the Willard Hotel.

When mamma takes junior to the dentist, she'll be doing (1) junior (2) the doctor and (3) herself a great service by cuddling up with a good magazine in the waiting room while the young patient is having the molars examined, according to Dr. Clayton.

Echo Always There

"There is the type who repeats, over and over, 'Mother knows it hurts but——' until the dentist is in greater pain than the child. Also the type that thinks it is necessary to echo every order given by the operator.

"He says, for example, 'Open your mouth, please,' whereupon the parent tells her child the same thing. Whether it's 'bite down' or 'close tight' or 'spit it out,' the echo's always there.

"One woman flushed and walked out the other day when I stopped work momentarily and politely asked her, 'Do you think my speech isn't plain enough for the boy to understand?'"

Gifts Win Confidence

Dr. Clayton was equally critical of the parent who "insults an older child's intelligence by trying to divert his attention to a passing automobile."

"That will work—for 3-year-olds," he said. "After that age the child is too smart to fall for the trick."

Bribery with ice cream or anything else also is poor business, Dr. Clayton told his audience of fellow dentists. However, such inexpensive gifts as small dolls and balls given by the dentists as a surprise when the work is finished go a long way toward winning the child's affection and confidence for succeeding visits, he declared.

Birthday cards provide still another inlet to the youngster's heart, he added. Another aid is plenty of magazines and comic strip books in the waiting room.

"Give the kids something they will enjoy, rather than culture reading," the speaker declared. "Five years ago I placed in my waiting room, at the same time, an expensive volume of children's verses and a comic strip book. The one is still like new. The other was worn out in a month and had to be replaced."

He advised parents: Let junior brush his teeth in the morning but, in the evening before sending him to bed, you better do the brushing yourself because the child is probably too tired to make a good job of it.

And dentists: In treating a youngster, bear in mind that he is not a miniature adult. His teeth present problems of their own.

Ohio Garment Workers Quit NonpartisanLeague

Cleveland, May 21 (AP).—Ohio locals of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union announced today they were withdrawing from labor's Nonpartisan League in Ohio in protest against league refusal to indorse President Roosevelt for a third term.

Abraham W. Katovsky, manager of the organization's joint board in Cleveland, reported the action was decided on after the Nonpartisan League's Ohio officers "refused to call a meeting to indorse a third term."

Saber to Be Presented To Cadet Officer Today

Lieut. Col. Richard J. Evans, commanding the cadet regiment of Western High School, will be presented a saber by a committee from the Lions Club of Washington at general assembly in the high school auditorium at 9 a. m. today.

Heading the Lions Club committee is Dr. Harold E. Warner, principal of Hine Junior High School. Other members are Bertram H. Piers and Elgie G. Purvis.

Final Reports On Symphony To Be Heard

Luncheon Today To Determine Whether Sufficient Is Raised

Final reports in the drive to raise $107,600 for support of the National Symphony Orchestra in its 1940-41 season will be made at a luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today at the Carlton Hotel.

Approximately $77,000, or 71 per cent of the fund needed, had been collected at the end of the first ten days last Thursday.

Whether a sufficient additional sum has been realized to give assurance of next season's concerts will be determined after nine committee reports have been read at today's luncheon.

In addition to committee chairmen and volunteer workers, the following guests of honor have been invited to today's luncheon: Mrs. Frederick Davenport, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times-Herald; Mrs. Edwin M. Watson, concert pianist and wife of General Watson, secretary to the President; Mrs. J. G. Wentz; Representative Bruce Barton (Republican), New York; Ralph Bradford, secretary, U. S. Chamber of Commerce; Merle Thorpe, editor Nation's Business; Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, president, American University, and four members of the National Symphony Orchestra—Paul Freeman, contrabass player; Fritz Maile, violinist; Alberto Martins, cellist, and Kenton Terry, flutist.

Arrangements for the luncheon were made by a committee composed of Mrs. Milton W. King, chairman; Mrs. George Hewitt Myers, Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, Mark Lansburgh, and A. F. E. Horn, general chairman of the drive.

Judge Talks on Court

Judge Fay Bentley, of the District Juvenile Court, will be guest speaker at the Federal Bar Association's weekly luncheon today at 12:30 o'clock in the Army and Navy Club, Seventeenth and I streets. She will speak on work of the juvenile court.

Col. Echols, Army Teacher, Beaten to Death

Former West Point Mathematics Head Slugged in N. Y. Park

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, May 21.—Col. Charles Patton Echols, U. S. A., retired, 72, former head of the department of mathematics at the United States Military Academy at West Point, died of a skull fracture at 4:30 a. m. today in Bellevue Hospital, an hour and a half after he had been slugged and kicked and robbed in Bryant Park, behind the New York Public Library.

Col. Echols retired in 1931 after 36 years' service at West Point.

Police reasoned he was attacked by three or four men, and that he was thrown down a flight of cement steps when he fought back. He was found unconscious in a pool of blood.

Seen Monday Afternoon

Col. Echols lived alone in Englewood, N. J., and made periodic trips to New York. On May 13 he registered at the Hotel Roosevelt. He was seen there last at 4 p. m. on Monday.

At 3:35 a. m. today, a passerby, Wesley Mann, heard cries for help coming from Bryant Park as he walked east on Forty-second street. A few seconds later he saw three or four men run out of the park and west on Forty-second street.

Mann entered the park and at the bottom of the steps leading down from the back of the library, found Col. Echols, bleeding and battered, his pockets were turned inside out. A number of park bench sleepers appeared and they stood over the body while Mann summoned police.

Beer Containers Found

On the ground nearby police discovered his billfold, emptied of money, and a penny. Two beer containers found beneath a bench were tested for fingerprints. Bryant Park is not a recommended strolling place at 3:30 o'clock in the morning and police rounded up 17 bench sleepers for questioning, who were later released.

Where Col. Echols was found is fairly open, but nearby are walks shaded with low-hanging trees, which, on a dark and misty night, are almost in pitch blackness. Police were puzzled over why Col. Echols was in the park at that hour.

Col. Echols was known to two generations of Army students as "P." Echols and nearly every officer in the Army today studied mathematics under him. He was born on September 6, 1867, at Huntsville, Ala., and was appointed to the Academy on June 16, 1887. He was graduated third in the class of '91.

Gallinger To Keep Using WoodBuildings

Ruhland's Committee Approves Structure For Convalescents

Continued use of the old frame structures at Gallinger Hospital for convalescent patients, despite erection of a $450,000 ward building, has been approved by Health Officer George C. Ruhland's special advisory committee.

Last year a verbal agreement was made between health officials and the then chairman of the House District appropriations subcommittee, Representative Ross Collins, that the Civil War structures would be demolished.

However, it was explained by health officials yesterday that the increase in tuberculosis patients has made it necessary to utilize this space. The ward building, built under the public works program, will provide 226 beds, which will be filled as soon as the ward is opened and still leave patients without hospital beds. This is the reason for the continued use of the structures, it was said.

A group of District officials today at 9:30 a. m. will inspect the new ward building before officially accepting it. A pending deficiency bill provides funds for equipment.

King Is G. W. Medical Society's President

Dr. Leslie French, secretary and treasurer of George Washington University Medical Society, yesterday announced election of the following officers of the society:

Patrick Ford Death Studied by Coroner

The coroner last night was investigating the death of Patrick Ford, 74, of 1151 North Capitol street, at Gallinger Hospital, apparently from head injuries.

Ford was treated at Sibley Hospital, Sunday, after he fell on the sidewalk in the 1100 block North Capitol street. He was transferred to Gallinger.

An autopsy will be performed this morning.

Tompkins Submits Low Base Bid For Armory Unit

Charles H. Tompkins Co., of this city, yesterday submitted the low base bid of $1,182,800 to construct the first unit of the National Guard Armory.

The amount, however, is $82,800 above the estimated cost. Col. David McCoach, jr., Engineer Commissioner, said 12 alternates were included in the bid, which could bring the base bid down about $20,000. He said District engineers and architects will study the remaining units of the armory in an attempt to shave off the difference in the bid and estimate. The completed armory would cost $2,750,000. The first unit will contain the drill hall.

George A. Fuller Co., of this city, had the second low base bid with $1,196,000, and William R. Goss Co., of Chicago, third low with $1,198,000. Eleven firms placed bids.

THE "STARLIGHT ROOF." That's the beautiful new name for the former Powhatan roof on the Roger Smith Hotel. The new Starlight Roof will open Friday, May 31, with Arthur Herbert and his polished dance music which has been glittering around various Manhattan bright spots. Bert Stevens will be featured at the piano and will also play the afternoon cocktail hour between 5 and 7 in the air-cooled Cafe Caprice, which pretty place, praise be, will remain open for the summer.

The new Starlight Roof, 12 stories up, overlooking the countryside and river for miles around, will be one of the most delightful spots in town, and should be a mecca and a magnet for customers. Alert Manager Dan Wathey, of the Roger Smith, is making the tariffs attractive, too. No cover charges and a minimum of $1 week days, $1.50 Saturdays and holidays.

ONE-ARMED MAGICIAN. J. W. McDonald, one-armed magico who's just arrived in the Shoreham cocktail lounge, is a plenty marvelous fellow. His stunts with cards and glasses of wine would be remarkable if he had two hands. But considering that he's lost his right arm, they're nothing short of miraculous. "He's the best I've ever seen," says Shoreham's Max Lowe. And Max, let us tell you, is practically impossible to please. Magician McDonald was a diamond broker and amateur magico before he turned professional. He taught Houdini some of his earlier tricks.

L'Escargot Terrace, that completely charming sample of Paree, opens tomorrow eve for the summer. Johnny Cathon will sing for the opening party, Sasha and Ralon will be on hand regularly, playing from 7 p. m. until midnight.

MARY LA MARR, who warbled a solid year and seven months at the Madrillon, has just joined Bill Downer's Nightingale orchestra. This gives Nightingale a trio of really modernistic singers, Mary, Kenny White and Don Gordon.

AROUND THE BANDSTANDS. Ken Whitmer at the Lotus is doing the practically impossible—giving a grand impression of the daddy of all trumpeters, Louis Armstrong, blowing the dickens out of "Tiger Rag" . . . The Flagship's Jack Schaeffer is another trumpet man who can blow a la Armstrong with great effect. Between his singing, clowning and trumpeting Jack is making a daring you can't top "Admiral" Jimmy Byrd, of the Mayfair. Jimmy's pet afternoon snack on cool days is onion soup topped off with hot mince pie and vanilla ice cream . . . Oscar, of the Hi Hat, is absolutely allergic to sea food. The most luscious Maine lobster evokes nothing but a sniff from Oscar . . . Maestro Angelo di Bella, of the Lido, has an epicurean preference for veal scallopini, especially in its savory incarnation at the Lido . . . Joseph B. Wilder is the genius who figures out all those novel entrees and desserts that you encounter so gratefully on the Neptune Room menu . . . Great big chickens are used for the Virginia style chicken dinners at River Bend. They're cooked according to a secret recipe that preserves flavor to perfection.

Pete Macias and his Lounge Riviera Orchestra recently set a No. 1 hit at the Flagship . . . The Casino Royal's Abe Clar is both composer and pianist. He's been playing his own compositions brilliantly in the C. R. revue . . . The Anchor Room's Matt Windsor says he positively will not write another song this summer. But there was a gleam in his eye . . . Dick Leith, who toots trombone in Paul Kain's Glen Echo band, used to play in both the Central High School and Catholic University Orchestras . . . Tommy Johnson, of the Robin Hood, is the smartest organist in town. He goes bicycling regularly with cunning canary Loraine Roberts.

S. A. R. Backs Roosevelt's Defense Plans

Resolution Urges Noninvolvement In European War

Three hundred delegates to the fifty-first annual congress of Sons of the American Revolution yesterday unanimously pledged support of President Roosevelt's national defense program but declared this country must avoid "entanglement" in the European war.

Members suspended the rules in a general session at the Wardman Park Hotel for immediate passage of a resolution warning that "the feelings and emotions of our people are being aroused to such an extent that the voice of reason . . . in our national life may be imperiled."

The three-fold proposal recorded the "adherence of the congress to the traditional policy of our country . . . to avoid foreign entanglements and keep out of European wars;" declared that it "stands squarely behind the President . . . in the principle of his proposals necessary to ward off any invasion of our shores;" and urged approval of "all stringent laws necessary to root out and destroy the efforts of all subversive influences."

In reference to fifth column activities, the resolution declared, "In the prosecution of this war, military success is sought . . . by flouting international law, disregarding all neutral rights and inviting treason and by planting fifth columns within the confines of the countries attacked."

Senator Nye Speaker

"It is well known that for many years there has been insidious propaganda carried on to poison the thoughts of our people and destroy our institutions."

Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, declared last night this country is on the road "back to Europe" at a banquet at Wardman Park Hotel.

He urged making national defenses "so strong no country would dare attack" the United States and advocated improved educational systems to create a "defense of intelligence" against fifth-column movements.

Senator Nye declared an economy based on war profits had brought this country into the first World War and urged measures that would prevent Americans from making "one penny of profit" in the present conflict.

To avoid involvement in the war —"the best way to guarantee the loss of our liberties"—the legislator said this country should avoid a philosophy of hate and cease adopting "European troubles as our own."

Cites Steps Toward Involvement

The Senator listed the repeal of the arms embargo and "quarantines and sanctions" against foreign powers as steps leading us toward embroilment in hostilities.

He urged this country to "keep faith with those . . . who accomplished American divorcement" from Old World affairs in the Revolutionary War and who said "Never again" after the Armistice in the World War.

Other speakers at the banquet included Mrs. Henry M. Robert, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. John M. Kerr, national president of the Children of the American Revolution, and Messmore Kendall, president general of the S. A. R.

At an afternoon session Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, declared the registration and surveillance of all aliens in the country should be made mandatory immediately by Congress.

U. S. Sets Up World's Largest X-Ray Machine To Study Maximum High-Voltage Treatment

Bureau of Standards To Work Out Scale For Treating Patients

The Bureau of Standards showed its giant X-ray machine, largest and most powerful in the world, to the press yesterday with predictions that it may prove of inestimable value in the treatment of cancer.

"For the first time in the history of science we shall be able to measure high-voltage X-rays and thus provide doctors with the answer to how much the patient can take," said Dr. Lauriston Taylor, bureau physicist who is in charge of the new high-voltage laboratory, on Van Ness street near Connecticut avenue, where the equipment is being installed.

"Heretofore, physicians have been forced to use high-voltage rays with utmost caution, since they have had no means of determining just how large a dosage will be beneficial before it becomes dangerous. It has been like telling a patient to take a certain amount of aspirin or opium without knowing definitely how much he will react."

Some Dosages Standardized

By measuring the penetration and wave length of the rays with this machine, bureau scientists will be able to work out a set of standards which can be applied to other machines in hospitals.

"We also expect to determine what advantages high-voltage radiation has over low-voltage radiation," said Dr. Taylor.

In 20 years of experimentation the bureau has standardized dosages—the strength of the X-ray beam plus the time of exposure—up to 400,000 volts, but this new machine will take the voltage on up to 1,500,000 to generate rays equal to those radiated by $50,000,000 worth of radium. The largest X-ray machines now in operation will generate 1,000,000 volts, and there are only a dozen of those in the world, half of them in the United States, according to Dr. Taylor.

The apparatus took on the appearance of something out of "Worlds to Come" as workmen hoisted its parts into place in a five-story hall especially designed for it. Tremendous gray cylinders and silver domes were swung about by a 10-ton crane and hoist.

Room Lined With Copper

Extreme precautions had been taken in construction of the building. The main chamber, where a 28-foot transformer-rectifier is being assembled to generate the 1,500,000 volts, is lined with $10,000 worth of copper. This will prevent radio waves from entering the chamber and interfering with the X-rays.

Scientists will observe the rays from pillbox-like observation rooms, surrounded by 16-inch concrete walls. Peepholes are protected by two sheets of plate glass, insulated with water.

Uncontrolled exposure to the powerful rays would result in death, bureau physicists said.

The laboratory, which cost $500,000, including equipment, is slated to begin operation about the middle of June.

License for Baby Placing Agencies In D. C. Proposed

A proposed bill to require licenses for all baby-placing agencies in the District is now in the hands of the child welfare committee of the Board of Public Welfare for study, Robert E. Bondy, welfare director, said yesterday.

No prospect for the bill to be introduced at this session of Congress was foreseen by Bondy, "unless Congress stays here all summer." It is designed to prevent commercialization of adoptions, and was sent to the board by the Council of Social Agencies.

At a recent meeting the board approved the bill in principle, but it was hinted that it may be broadened to include child-caring agencies such as private boarding homes, before the bill is sent to Congress.

Contract Bridge

From a New England source comes this hand which concerns itself entirely with play. The object is to make four spades. Can you do it? Here are the cards:

♠ 9763
♡ A74
◇ Q109
♣ 653

WEST
♠ A2
♡ Q963
◇ 8653
♣ J94

EAST
♠ 54
♡ K853
◇ K74
♣ A1087

SOUTH
♠ K Q J 10 8
◇ A J 2
♣ K Q 2

The opening lead by West is the deuce of hearts. Here is the way the New Englanders say you should play it:

"North wins the first heart and leads a club, East letting South make the king. South leads the king of trumps, which holds, and then West wins the ace of trumps.

"West plays another heart, and South ruffs a third heart with the ten spot. South leads the spade eight to North's spade nine and North plays the queen of diamonds. If East does not cover, South plays the jack. Another diamond follows and nothing can stop North from leading a second club, so the defense wins only a trump, a heart and a club."

South makes four spades by careful unblocking.

Crawford Asks House Inquiry Of Stock Drop

Michigan Member Condemns SEC for Failure to Move

By the Associated Press

Calling for a Congressional investigation of current stock market declines, Representative Crawford (Republican), of Michigan, told the House yesterday that investors had lost $15,000,000,000 "while the Securities and Exchange Commission apparently did nothing to protect them."

Crawford proposed in a resolution that the House Banking Committee learn the names of all foreign holders of American securities, all buyers and sellers of securities between May 1 and 21, and all holders, buyers and sellers of commodities during the same period.

"Can it be," Crawford said, "that the SEC is permitting Germany, through manipulation or otherwise, to dump Danish-owned American-issued stocks and bonds on our market? . . .

"The way our capitalistic system works would permit German agents, and God knows there are plenty of them here in Washington, to bear our markets, wash out the equities of our own people, depress prices and thus pave the way for those who represent the German nationals to step in and purchase at bargain-counter prices large equities in not only stocks and bonds but commodities as well.

"The secrecy which is being protected or is maintained by the SEC is indefensible."

Picture of Signing Of Constitution To Be Unveiled

Described by Speaker Bankhead as "one of the finest historical paintings in the world," a gigantic picture of the signing of the Constitution will be unveiled next Wednesday in the rotunda of the Capitol.

The painting, executed by Howard Chandler Christy, has been hung behind two enormous American flags on a scaffolding in the rotunda, where it has aroused the curiosity of hundreds of tourists. It cost the Government $30,000.

Speaker Bankhead said yesterday that the special commission directing acquisition of the picture—consisting of Vice President Garner, Capitol Architect David Lynn and himself—had not yet decided where it would be permanently placed.

The painting, 20 by 30 feet, was ordered under authority of a joint resolution passed last year in connection with the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution.

Living Here Does Not Forfeit Residence in State, Pine Rules

Justice Rejects Claim in Divorce Action That Florida Decree Was Void Because Defendant Lived in Washington

Justice David A. Pine ruled in the District Court yesterday that living in Washington 19 years will not forfeit a person's citizenship and legal residence in his home State.

Justice Pine dismissed the divorce action of Mrs. Mary L. Albritton, 1454 Spring road northwest, against Maurice Albritton, 40, automobile worker, 2413 Eighteenth street northwest, to whom she was married here April 27, 1921.

Mrs. Albritton sued for divorce November 10, 1938, charging her husband with misconduct. Through Attorney Frank J. O'Connor, Albritton replied that he had divorced his wife for desertion in De Soto County, Fla., June 16, 1938, and married Mrs. Ilga Bisselberg the following August 31.

Justice Pine rejected Mrs. Albritton's claim that the Florida divorce was void because Albritton lived in Washington.

The law of the District, said Justice Pine, is that no person loses his citizenship or legal residence in his home State, no matter how long he may stay here, if he takes steps to preserve his original domicile. Albritton paid his poll taxes regularly and voted by absentee ballot.

Justice Pine indicated that he treated as the most recent authority the Sweeney case upheld Monday by the Supreme Court. The United States Court of Appeals here said in this decision that a Washington lawyer was a legal resident of Massachusetts although he had not lived there for 22 years.

Nazi 12-Day Push Surpasses 4-Year Drive Last Time

By the Associated Press

The German high command, in reporting capture of Abbeville, Amiens and Arras, northern French cities, claimed a farther western advance in 12 days of war than the Imperial German Army gained at any time in four years of the World War.

Abbeville, used as a British base throughout most of the World War, lies 10 miles west of the farthest advance of Kaiser Wilhelm's forces.

The Germans entered Amiens August 24, 1914, but abandoned the city a wek later. In 1918 it was defended successfully against German attacks. It was the scene of a German victory over the French in 1870.

Arras, 120 miles north of Paris and 35 miles northeast of Amiens, was the scene of five major battles in the World War. This ancient Burgundian city became so famous for its tapestries that its name was given to tapestry hangings.

PRICED AT $3.15 PLUS TAX THE FIFTH

The Finest of Canadian Whiskies

There's One you can't pass by!

They're rolling out fast... and your Buick dealer keeps them rolling by making swell deals

ENTICING are the offerings flagging your eye from behind the plate glass along Automobile Row—how in the world can a poor mortal pick the best of the bunch?

You can't try them all, it's plain. But there's one thing you can do that makes a lot of sense.

Just give yourself a yardstick to start with.

Take the car that all the talk's about. Give yourself something to go on by trying a Buick first.

Of course, it may be tough on the next fellow once you've sampled Buick's swift and thrifty Dynaflash straight-eight—no other engine made is balanced after assembly to slick-as-watch-works smoothness.

Buick prices begin at $895★ for Business Coupe (Illustrated)

But it isn't only Buick's six-dozen new features that make this the car you can't pass by—it's also the price.

Current prices† start at $895 ★for the business coupe, delivered at Flint, Mich. — transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), and optional equipment and accessories extra.

That adds up to delivered prices that will open your eyes wide—so why not ask your Buick dealer for the whole story and a free demonstration?

And stout, soft coil springs all around, especially when combined with ride-steadying torque-tube drive, may spoil you entirely for any other kind of ride.

Again, there are things like recoil-mounted Knee-Action, pressure-sealed cooling systems, Two-Way Direction Signals with automatic cut-off and so on that you simply can't find elsewhere.

That puts a really great car within your reach. It buys not only a lot of exclusives and extras, but gives you more of the basic things, such as power and size and deep-rooted sturdiness — a longer car and the sturdiest frame at the money.

†Prices subject to change without notice.

Note Of Realism

A welcome note of realism is being injected into the discussion of the Administration's new armament program by the testimony of Army and Navy experts before Congressional committees. The data they have given Congress will help to set at rest expectations in some quarters that the United States will soon have an air force of 50,000 planes.

In his recent address to Congress President Roosevelt expressed a belief that "this Nation should plan at this time a program that would provide us with 50,000 military and naval airplanes." But most of the money he requested would be spent for rifles, antiaircraft guns and similar equipment for the Army and for acceleration of the naval building program. Apparently it is not contemplated that the United States will or can acquire a gigantic air fleet in the very near future.

Chairmen of the Senate and House Naval Committees have proposed legislation authorizing a fleet of not less than 10,000 naval planes, after consultation with President Roosevelt. Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, has asked the House Military Affairs Committee, to extend the limit on Army planes from 6,000 to 10,000. At present the Army has less than half the number of aircraft now authorized.

It is obvious that the air strength mentioned by the President is only a tentative mark to shoot at if future conditions warrant such a program. It would require a long time to build that many planes even with our production capacity substantially expanded. Moreover, the Administration is following a policy of permitting a large number of airplanes to be shipped to Great Britain and France, apparently in the belief that our need for a huge fleet is not urgent at present and that by taking later delivery a better type of plane will be obtained.

The testimony of Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Corps, that it would cost $3,500,000,000 to build a fleet of 50,000 airplanes, and as much more to operate them, will also help to keep discussion of this objective on a realistic basis. The United States may be expected to spend only so much of this vast sum on aircraft as is shown to be essential to adequate defense. And that need cannot possibly be foreseen, through the chaotic events of today, for any substantial period in the future.

Tragedy Of Louvain

For the second time within a generation the famous library of the University of Louvain has been reduced to a black and broken shell of masonry. For the second time a priceless collection has been devoured by the fires of war. For a second time Belgian voices echo the cry of Cardinal Mercier, when news of the first destruction of Louvain reached him at Rome: "Why all this sorrow, Lord? Hast thou forsaken us?"

But this time the destruction of the library and of the city is even more complete than in 1914. The Germans are armed with new and more frightful gifts of that civilization they have apparently set about to obliterate. Some eight months before a German bombardment had reduced to rubble another monument to medieval culture, the ancient capital of Cracow. A like doom may have overtaken the Cathedral of Amiens. And perhaps only the providential intervention for which the Parisians prayed so fervently last Sunday can save the great edifice of Our Lady of Paris that so many centuries of wars and plagues and revolutions have left unharmed.

With what bitterness the world now recalls the controversy over an inscription which the American architect Whitney Warren proposed to place on the facade of the new library building at Louvain: "Destroyed by German fury; rebuilt by American generosity." The postwar Belgian rector of Louvain protested that such words could serve only to feed an un-Christian spirit of vengeance, and in the end his view prevailed.

The inscription was rejected and Mr. Warren's words were not there last week to mock the conquerors of Louvain, who, nevertheless, have burned those words forever into the memories of men.

The Men Behind Defense

As the United States comes face to face with its problems of defense in a chaotic world, the need for new men in several strategic posts is no less acute than the need for more effective weapons. National strength is not simply a matter of appropriating money for military equipment. Trained executives to direct our defense efforts may be far more important in the end than the amount of money to be spent.

There is much encouragement in the fact that the need for new blood in the President's Cabinet is generally recognized. For the most part, however, discussion of personnel changes has centered upon the formation of a coalition Cabinet. It seems to be widely assumed that the infusion of a few Republicans into the President's official family would give it the efficiency, foresight and fortitude needed to meet any emergency that may grow out of the European war.

That line of thinking rests on a major fallacy. It seems to imply that antagonism between the two parties is hampering the essential work of rehabilitating our defense system. On the contrary, both parties are eager to insure the security of the United States against any threat. It is highly improbable that the Administration will encounter any substantial opposition to any reasonable defense measure it may propose.

With a general election approaching, a bi-partisan Cabinet would function under a terrific handicap. Republican members might find it impossible to work in complete harmony with the Administration without repudiating their party affiliations. Such an arrangement might easily result in injecting politics into the defense program instead of lifting it above all partisan considerations.

Some members of the present Cabinet are poorly equipped for the tasks confronting them precisely because they were chosen for political or personal reasons. The strongest possible Cabinet would be comprised of men selected solely for their training, experience and executive capacity to manage the departments assigned to them. Such a Cabinet is now urgently needed. And such a Cabinet can be assembled if the President is willing to drop all political considerations and summon to Washington men of the highest qualifications for the work awaiting to be done.

It is probable, of course, that a search for men specially adapted to direction of the Nation's new defense effort would bring Republicans as well as Democrats into the Government service. By all means Republicans, Progressives, Socialists and men of no party should be asked to serve wherever their special talents, skills or experience are in demand. But the test applied should be their qualifications for a specific post and not their party affiliations.

Pursuit of the policy here suggested would lead toward a nonpartisan rather than a coalition Cabinet. Instead of merely adding politicians of a different stripe, it would give the Administration the additional counsel, technical knowledge and directive force it needs to avoid the ghastly mistakes that have characterized the French and British defense programs in recent years.

The Administration should have learned long ago that a mere coalition of politicians is not sufficient to insure the success of any policy. If administrative tasks had been assigned exclusively to men of experience and executive capacity during the last seven years, there would be less need today to reorganize the Cabinet in the face of disturbing upheavals in Europe.

Losses resulting from this policy in the past cannot now be obliterated. In launching this new program, however, the least that can be asked is that men who have already demonstrated their capacity for leadership be drafted to see it through.

Trojan Horseman

The annals of the Trojan Horse, twentieth century style, lengthen steadily with the multiplication of Hitler's victims. Norway had its Quisling, Czecho-Slovakia its Heinlein, the Netherlands its unnamed but numerous German "tourists" who repaid Dutch hospitality by stabbing their hosts in the back. But, chronologically speaking, the name which leads all the rest in this legion of Fifth Column commanders is that of Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart.

Dr. Seyss-Inquart was the utterly obscure individual who carried out the betrayal of Austria to the Nazis. During the tenure of Engelbert Dollfuss as Austrian chancellor, Seyss-Inquart was not openly a Nazi, although he did not actively oppose the Hitler regime. He was merely an opportunist biding his time. And he kept biding his time during the first years of the chancellorship of Dr. Schuschnigg who took the reins from the dying hands of Dollfuss.

It was not until after the ill-fated Berchtesgaden meeting of Schusnigg and Hitler that Seyss-Inquart achieved success in his Fifth Column activities. Hitler demanded—and Schuschnigg was forced to capitulate to the demand—that Seyss-Inquart be made minister of the interior, a position which enabled him to give carte blanche to Nazi activities in Austria. And following Hitler's ultimatum of March 11, 1938, and Dr. Schuschnigg's resignation Seyss-Inquart became chancellor.

The entry of the Nazis into Austria followed as a matter of course and Seyss-Inquart, having concluded his task, relapsed into the obscurity out of which he had risen. He remained there, so far as the outside world is concerned, until this week when Hitler named him the commissar for conquered Holland. The circle is thus complete. The man who betrayed the first of Hitler's victims is now being rewarded by being named the puppet ruler of the last.

France In Peril

Premier Paul Reynaud of France was indulging in no empty rhetoric when he told the French Senate yesterday that "the fatherland is in danger."

During the past 12 days the position of the Allies has been progressively worse. Now, as a result of the German army's latest lightning thrust, their plight appears to be desperate.

The importance of the capture by German troops of Amiens, Arras and Abbeville—the latter town only 12 miles from the English Channel—cannot be exaggerated. With these cities in their possession, the Germans will be astride the network of railroads connecting Paris with the Channel ports of Boulogne, Calais and Dunkerque and with the railroad system of southwestern Belgium where a combined Anglo-French-Belgian force said to number a million men is battling bravely to stem the Nazi tide.

If the Germans manage to hold Amiens and Arras, it will be relatively easy for them to sweep on to the Channel and, from that vantage point, to launch that blitzkrieg on England which Winston Churchill has warned his people they must expect. But for the time being the more immediate danger for the Allies is the probability that their army in Belgium will be cut off from the main Allied forces in northern France. Unless Amiens and Arras can be recaptured or a junction effected between the Allied forces now threatened with separation, the British, Belgian and French forces in the northwestern sector may be annihilated.

Since the invasion of the Netherlands and Belgium began the German army has carried out two great enveloping movements in addition to the one which in five days resulted in the surrender of the Dutch army. The first, achieved by the rapid penetration of Belgium's frontier defenses and a thrust through the Ardennes to a point below Sedan, enabled the German forces to circumvent the barrier of the Maginot Line.

Having achieved that aim, the German forces succeeded in overcoming the barrier of the so-called Little Maginot Line along the French-Belgian border. They were unquestionably aided in this task, as Premier Raynaud has revealed, by the "unbelievable faults" perpetrated by the leaders of the French forces in the Meuse sector. A rapid thrust to the east resulting in the capture of St. Quentin, Laon and now Amiens, Arras and Abbeville followed.

What was at first a bulge has now become a wedge capable of dividing the Allied forces in two. And difficult as the situation of the Allies has been, given their inferiority in mechanized forces and airplanes, it is now worse.

Their plight cannot yet be described as hopeless. The main French and British armies in France and Belgium are still intact and as long as they are in a position to fight they still have a chance of turning the tide. But the sands are running out.

Crumb Of Comfort

Gloomy as is the news of the fighting in France, the British people can find some measure of comfort, at least, in the fact that the Royal Air Force has been doing effective work.

Over a period of days British bombers have harassed communications behind the German lines, broken up columns and done considerable damage to oil refineries and oil depots in places as deep in the German interior as Bremen and Hamburg. That they have managed to carry out such operations at all suggests that the German air force has been so largely occupied in supporting the troops rushing forward in France as to be unable fully to cope with the British bombers. It also suggests that the Allied inferiority in the air has not been such as to reduce the British and French air forces to impotence.

Given time, the skill and valor which the Royal Air Force has displayed would undoubtedly help to balance the scales as between Germany and the Allies. For in time British and French production of planes might overtake and surpass the German output. But whether such time will be vouchsafed the Allies is not at all sure. Certainly the exploits of the British airmen have not been sufficient to stem the relentless German advance, though it may have inflicted serious losses on the Nazi war machine.

A Pittsburgh man has made six unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide. As a last desperate resort, he might try smoking a two-for-a-nickel cigar in a telephone booth.

"Dumb women aren't handicapped," declares a psychologist. Men have always taken the position that what a woman doesn't know doesn't hurt her.

On Picketing

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Alexander S. Lanier is completely wrong in his observations in The Post of May 13 on the right to picket. The management of a modern business institution of any size involves the management of human beings, their wages, their working conditions, their activities, their morale. To say that any proprietor has the right to free and untrammeled conduct of his business is simply to say that he has the right to free and untrammeled control over the lives and fortunes of others. It is simply saying that he has the right to be a petty autocrat and not a very petty one either if the "proprietor" happens to be a vast corporation. Mr. Lanier appears to be trying to stretch the guarantee of property rights in the Constitution into a guarantee of full authority over any human beings who may be engaged to operate or maintain the property. Fortunately, the justices of the Supreme Court are a little more rational.

It ill behooves Mr. Lanier to make any reference to totalitarian regimes abroad while at the same time he jibes at the duly elected Representatives of the American people as "politicians" who follow "political expediency." Public officials in a democracy are expected to follow political expediency; only thus can we be assured that the will of the majority will be fulfilled. The real threat to democracy comes from those privileged groups who do not want the majority will to prevail. American labor is wholly on the side of democracy and with good reason. Labor does not have wealth or the prestige wealth gives. It does not have the instruments of propaganda which wealth can buy. Labor does have numbers. For that reason democracy, whether in politics or industry, is labor's mightiest defense and surest hope for progress in the future.

Need For Sacrifice

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was with a sense of humiliation that I read in a recent issue of The Post that a group of mothers from Maryland and Virginia went before Congress with a plea that their boys be spared from being sent to another war. The painful fact is that so many mothers are ruled by their emotions instead of clearly thinking through the issues at stake. Such sentimentalism is exactly what pleases Hitler and I don't doubt that many of his agents are here simply to cultivate that emotion. Note that there is no such sentimentalism in Herr Hitler. He takes the boys at an early age and prepares them for cannon fodder, and I suspect those same boys are dear to their mothers.

Do these mothers ever read our good columnists and editorial writers—men who know whereof they speak and tell us exactly where this country will be if Hitler wins the war? If they do read, they class it as propaganda to get us into the war.

It seems to me that Americans have had liberty for so long that they have forgotten what it means to them. They think because we gained our liberty from England in 1775, that we will always have it, forgetting that all worth while things must be eternally guarded and perhaps fought for.

I believe that our liberty is such a precious thing that all really patriotic mothers will be willing to make any sacrifices, even to their sons, and my sons are as dear to me as any mother's sons. I am also thinking of our grandsons and what kind of country they will have to live in, if we fail in our duty now. And surely that duty is to uphold all that is right and decent, cost what it may. C. I. B.
Chevy Chase, D. C., May 13.

The Johnson Act

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many peculiar ideas have come from the State of California, such as "ham and eggs," passports for American citizens entering California, etc., but none of these can boast the lack of vision of Hiram Johnson's antilending bill. This was sold to the peace-wanting American public as an important phase of the Borah-Lodge-Johnson plan to save America from war. Those who now feel that the avoidance of war by this country is no Sunday school picnic, but the gravest problem before us, would do well to remember that it was the counsel of these men that has prevailed for 20 years, and if the present situation is grave it is because they failed to anticipate the inevitable consequence of their folly. If there is still a problem it is because these men, who had their way, are on the wrong track. Personally, I would rather pay someone else to do my fighting; but when I have to go out and fight the battles that these myopic pseudostatesmen have brought to our doorstep, as I expect I will, I prefer to do it as far from home as possible, as I can see no virtue of dying at home with the discouraging reflection that all the landmarks and scenes that are dear to me are being destroyed at the same time.

On Auto Tags

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It occurs to me that the Washington Chamber of Commerce is muffing a wonderful opportunity for a bit of subtle, refined boosting as long as it tolerates the drab, boxcar automobile license tags that Mr. Van Duzer serves up.

Our Capital City, of course, has no basic industries like codfish and iodine to brag about, but we've got some swell architecture, and nifty little colored vignettes of this, varied from year to year, might tempt the provincials to visit, elevate their souls, and, incidentally, spend a buck or so.

Royal Flight

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to submit a few lines anent the flight of the Queen of Holland and her family to England. Much ado is made about the care taken of the royal baby, but what strikes one above everything else is that sovereigns flee to other lands and then shout to their subjects to carry on the fight. I don't think all so-called "Fifth-Columners" are from the outside. Unfaithfulness of rulers and their inconsideration of the masses are what cause the so-called "fifth column."

Island For Fuehrer

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Information, please. Could anyone tell me when Hitler plans crossing over to "protect" these United States of America, for I should very much like to know, as there lies far away in the Caribbean Sea an island, whose dark mountains are infested by serpents and other fearsome creatures, where hurricanes rage and heat withers, but where "protection" is unknown.

Reply To Pegler

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems that Mr. Westbrook Pegler's justifiably large share in the good work of exposing the Scalise scandals has swollen him all out of proportion. He turns to maligning a considerable number of people with whom he has had little intercourse and no sympathy. He calls them (all of them, presumably) "Italians or half-Americanized Italians."

Why not Americans, Mr. Pegler? That the Italian government, being what it is, must assuredly be inimical to our own American Government is a fact well-known by all, and Mr. Pegler can hardly claim a "scoop" for repeating it under his byline. But when he categorically accuses three or four million people, whose homes are in America, of being enemies and traitors to American democracy, implying meanwhile that all of them are "on relief" and that it is relief money with which they are filling an Italian war chest, then Mr. Pegler owes it to the rest of us Americans to make known the facts.

Don't remain crouched on Page 9 of the May 9 Washington Post and spring at me with a prejudiced finger thrust out, screeching "traitor!" Mr. Pegler. You see, I am of Italian descent—but a darn good American, in spite of it! I am no more an internal enemy or traitor of my country, because of my ancestry, than you are because of your freckles!

I am glad Mr. Pegler mentioned the word blackmail. It implies, at least, that some of the sheep he calls colonists are unwilling contributors to this blackmail system he has uncovered. But blackmail is a serious offense, in this case against Federal law. Puerile bleating accomplishes nothing. By all means Mr. Pegler should turn what information he has, if any, over to the F. B. I. or the Dies Committee. He should not use it to stir up a fading prejudice—to humiliate the children of Italians whom, I am sure, even he cannot brand as traitors. AN AMERICAN.

Praises Festival

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a staff member of the National Folk Festival Association, I want to extend my thanks to you for the splendid work The Washington Post is doing in making it possible each year for a National Folk Festival to be held in Washington.

This is only my second year with Miss Knott but I feel it to be a needed and worthy project.

It is difficult to name any specific group as outstanding because each contributes to our country's customs and beliefs. However, with the Scandinavian countries so much in the news I believe having them appear on the same program with a German group was most timely and the most outstanding event of the festival this year.

It shows that our country upholds all races within our borders and accepts their contribution as essential in the growth of our country. You are doing much toward making these people feel their native offerings are appreciated and shouldn't be allowed to die. The Folk Festival is a good way to accomplish this end. HELEN G. SOMMER.

Business Regulation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If President Roosevelt were to remove the throttling clutch of unsound legislation from business, there would be no need of fantastic schemes for new sources of revenue.

Business is now as severely regimented, regulated and censored as railroads are under the Interstate Commerce law, and in course of time will be confronted with bankruptcy in a similar manner.

The Post Impressionist

A Bit Of Old Washington

THERE ARE NO TREES, no foliage here at all to be unwrapped by the spring air. The buildings that wall in the street are as bare as piled-up boxes in a warehouse. But just as any wood or field or garden patch, this street has its own peculiar spring crop. It is the only evidence of spring that many of its residents ever see or care to see. For people have taken root here. In some cases the ecesis is complete.

The sun is getting at the winter dampness in brick and concrete, drying up puddles of saliva, chasing out the pain of neuralgia, rheumatism, rickets from ailing bodies. Loiterers instinctively linger about, talking in groups or leaning against the fenders of parked cars. The curb becomes a sort of veranda lined with chairs facing inward where whole families sit: old grandparents who stuck out the winter, fat babies on fatter laps that roll over the edges of the chairs like rising dough. And all around them, under their feet and behind their backs, blossom those perennial bright-colored gutter flowers: orange and banana peels, cigar bands, chewing gum wrappers—wintergreen, peppermint, spearmint . . .

The dark little stores have popped open. Second-hand suits, some of the most gorgeous checks and stripes, dazzle in the sunlight. Flowered gowns, broadened and stretched in places by their former occupants, wave with a "silken and uncertain" motion in the warm air.

A used furniture store has given the street a homey touch by spreading out its wares: carpets to walk on, looking very buggy and filthy; overstuffed chairs, long grown weary of their overstuffed condition; washstands, complete; rickety tables covered with chipped dishes of the cheapest make, teakettles, waffle irons, frying pans; cast iron cook stoves with the ashes still in them . . . Altogether a forlorn and inauspicious collection of junk to start housekeeping with.

Here and there, haphazardly, radio loud speakers blare a salute to spring. The one nearest me has caught up Grieg's concerto in A minor. The piano is alone now, and those little sounds, played with one hand it seems—simple, profoundly arresting, of a quality not of this earth—have their way a moment. But back in the store the clerk, all the while talking to a customer, reaches for the radio dial, annihilates Grieg, gropes around until he finds something about moonlight and starts making a fool out of somebody.

Farther up the street a little colored boy has crawled into a large pasteboard box that lies on the sidewalk near the curb. He sits inside overjoyed at having such a fine house. If his clothes had lain in the gutter all winter they could not be dirtier. A big tear in his shirt hangs open exposing a right-triangular patch of brown skin drawn tightly over washboard ribs. His bare, bony legs would make a fine illustration in a medical book on malnutrition.

A cat, with the grime of many alleys in her fur, passes by his open doorway. He crouches close to the pavement, puts his face low to hers, and talks to her with an unintelligible child language—as gracious and sweet as anything I have ever heard. The cat sniffs and blinks and draws back sourly in that nasty, touchy way some cats have.

A blind man comes down the street shaking furiously a cup of pennies. They whirl around in unison, holding together like water in motion. He wears a heavy, tightly-buttoned overcoat, apparently given to him by somebody who worked in a coal yard. On his back he carries a large burlap bag that seems to be full of bones—horse bones. It is knotty and bumpy all over. He blunders into a display in front of a furniture store and drops his heavy bag. After groping about unsuccessfully for a while he gives up and stands still, waiting. Finally a sour-looking man leaves the fender of a car, grudgingly lifts the bag to his shoulders again and starts him off down the street. He goes whirling his pennies.

It is getting late. It seems later than it really is because it is going to rain. A bilious-looking green cloud hangs in the west. Little winds spring up. Bits of paper whirl and jump rapturously on the pavement, gather together and spout up in a spray like a fountain. One large piece of brown wrapping paper has blown high up over the street where it flaps mournfully like a great bat before coming down again. Over there on L street a low thick boom like a tom-tom accompanies chanting voices—wah . . . wah . . . Here and there lights go on and hulking figures are long-armed shadows down the street. It is cockroach time in a hundred little kitchens.

Somewhere nearby a robin is singing. His voice is sweet and distinct in spite of all this clattering traffic, this everlasting river of tin cans. Some back yard in the midst of all this squalor, some old neglected bush not yet killed by garbage has beguiled him from far-off, lusher woods. And there he is, singing away.

"Ful loude he song, 'Come hider, love, to me.'"

Reflections On The Party System

S. S. Washington, May 21.

"GOVERNOR LANDON demurs against the President's proposal to make a coalition government, on the ground that he does not wish to impair the vitality of the two-party system. Democrats generally withhold public comment but privately see the proposal as stupid and silly." Item From the Ship's News.

IT WOULD SEEM to this column that the vitality of the two-party system has been almost extinct for the last eight years and that there is little probability that it will be revived in the next four.

While sitting at Gibraltar—the rock on which an empire is so precariously resting, and with half of western civilization at stake—the forthcoming party conventions seem to belong to another epoch and to have little relation to reality. In fact, the remembrance of the last ones, with their atmosphere of a Shriners' jamboree, fills one with a faint nausea.

However this war turns out in Europe, one prophecy is fairly safe to venture: The party system of political government, as it has been practiced for a generation in most democracies, will not survive. Already in Paris the word "politician" has become an expression of contempt, for the people of France are furiously aware of how much of the nation's essential and priceless time has been lost in irrelevant party bickering; how often necessary plans have been wrecked or delayed for purely partisan reasons; how often the party leaders have frivolously pandered for votes, instead of telling the people the truth; how criminally they have sought the interest of special pressure groups, regardless of the crisis of the nation.

A DEMOCRACY which degenerates into a party squabble in which the interests of the politicians transcend those of the nation as a whole is a menaced or lost democracy in this hour.

Nor is such party politics the inevitable accompaniment of democratic government. I have seen a democracy in Europe which can be extinguished only from without and by force, and that is the Swiss. It is the freest country in the world today, in which the tolerance of divergent opinion goes so far as to permit four separate languages and a degree of cantonal autonomy far surpassing our State rights; numerous parties and active political life; an emphasis on differentiation expressed in a flag for every city and village, and a hatred of dictatorship which goes so far that Switzerland has no President even for four years, but government by a council of seven, which changes its chairman every 12 months. Yet, in emergency, the instinct of this, the oldest existing democracy, is to fly together and accept a voluntary discipline in behalf of Switzerland which is imposing—as tough and as closely knit as a totalitarian state.

And Switzerland, almost alone among democracies, can say with confidence, "A hundred years from now Switzerland will be a democracy or she will not be."

IN THIS HOUR it would be well to bring out again Washington's often quoted but seldom read "Farewell Address" and read what he had to say on the evils of factions—and by factions Washington meant just those sort of bodies which our political parties have become, groups whose object is less to furnish constructive criticism, honest opposition and proposals for the modification of policy and more to take or to turn over offices for the benefit of existing or would-be job holders and of organized or sectional groups.

Such an operation of the party system invariably moves away from government by, for and of the people, to government of, for and by the pressure groups. The least represented of all in our party system, the real forgotten man, is the citizen who, able to stand on his own feet, earn his living, support his family and pay his debts, asks least of the state for himself but carries its greatest burden. He pays his taxes without grumbling and volunteers first for its wars; he is the patriot, the man with the sense of the whole community.

There are hundreds of thousands of such men and women in America who, in the forthcoming elections, will see a new ticket for which they can vote without serious reservations.

REALIZING the exceptional qualities of the President's leadership, which rise to their greatest under pressure of emergency when action must be swift and courageous, and conscious, too, of his prestige in the world, they would like to avoid a change. They would like to retain the experience, imagination and intuition which the President has regarding world affairs, in which he stands head and shoulders above any candidate yet proposed.

What they think of the President in this connection does not extend to all his advisers, and not at all to the fundamental economic philosophy of the New Deal—to that popular frontier that believes that the less you produce the more you will have, the more you spend the richer you will be; the philosophy that mortgages uncreated wealth the while it slows down creative profit; that dissipates and discourages saving; that makes the population increasingly lax and increasingly dependent in the very moment when it must face the most formidable competition from the tough and the toiling.

FRANCE is paying today with the lives of her men for the same philosophy which struggled for a 40-hour week while her neighbors were being forced to work 60 hours. It is better—and the people of France now know it—to work long enough to produce a tank than to be rolled into the ground by one, or to capitulate and work the 60 hours for a foreign overlord.

MR. LANDON
He fears for the two-party system

But France is also paying for the cupidity of her capitalists, who sterilized their wealth rather than put it at the service of the nation; who withdrew in haughty disgust rather than face the issue; who set the very standards which they criticized in their workers, unwilling to match sacrifice for sacrifice.

Now, today, they all fight side by side, with unexampled heroism, with the sacrificial devotion of a really great people, knowing at last that there are values common to all of them, values for which they offer not a few working hours or a percentage of profit, but their life's blood.

BUT, WHATEVER the outcome may be, God help the politicians, whether they have been politicians of labor or politicians of capital! For they have been below the level of the Nation itself. No one will survive who has thought more of himself, or of his group, or of his interests than his country.

Foresight is not a quality of democracies. It seems to have become a law of their natures that they must teeter on the very brink of a precipice before they realize their danger. Then they are firm. But while they teeter on the precipice one big shove may send them over.

Scattered Army

GREAT IS THE NEED for coordination of the effect to rearm, but only a trace more pressing than the need for coherent information on the state of things today and the capacity or lack thereof to do big things tomorrow.

A general, at the war games in Louisiana, boasted that the Regular Army was, next to that portion of the Germany army which slaughtered Poland, the toughest in the world.

That was heartening, but his estimate was divided by the fact that the Regular Army is badly scattered and cannot possibly be assembled in continental United States.

Gen. George Marshall, the chief of staff, then reported that the numerical strength was dangerously low and that weapons for a sudden increase were nonexistent, to which depressing but obviously frank statement may be added some observations in an editorial in the New York Times. This studious piece holds that the regulars get too little experience in large-scale maneuvers and the handling of modern arms; that there are only 400 tanks in the country, or less than the complement of one German division; that the standard antitank gun is "just beginning to reach the service in small quantities," and that only a few of the World War's 75s are fit for reconditioning.

HITLER TRAINED soldiers in the guise of a German CCC by drilling them with shiny spades and, if he could do that, the United States, too, might save time by teaching at least the rudiments of soldiering with rakes borrowed from the multi-billion-dollar-leaf-raking projects improvised in the critical unemployment period of the New Deal. Even a few sample weapons to a camp would suffice to impart some idea of the anatomy and habits of guns and tanks, but no such move has been made, probably for some good reason not apparent to the laity.

Eddie Rickenbacker and Maj. Al Williams agree on the weakness of the air arms and the dolefulness of the prospects, but against their opinion and those of some high aviation officers of the regular service there comes a round-up of opinion from men engaged in the production of planes who seem positively cheery.

Col. John H. Louett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, says there are no bottlenecks in the manufacturing department, and adds that President Roosevelt's aviation program of 50,000 planes could be produced in a year by trebling the floor space of aircraft plants, doubling the area of the engine factories, trebling the present staffs and operating full shift. The Herald Tribune quotes Donald Douglas, president of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, as saying, also, that the industry could expand rapidly to a production capacity of 50,000 ships a year. Tell Berna, manager of the National Machine Tool Builders Association, said the machine tools for a major war effort could be produced in the time it would take to gather the staff to operate them and to recruit the Army.

OTHER AUTHORITIES were equally confident, but Gen. Hugh Johnson, about the same moment, was writing "we couldn't get to 50,000 a year in time to be of any use," and that, anyway, it would be folly to make that many, because many would be obsolete on delivery. He added that 500,000 men would be needed to serve the ships, all in addition to the troops of the regular corps.

From Detroit the A. P. reports that the motor industry, now turning out 100,000 vehicles a week, could double that capacity and turn to munitions within a week. And the Ford Dearborn plant is "understood" to be ready to go into munitions as quickly as raw materials can be delivered.

It has seemed alarming to laymen that there are only a few batteries of antiaircraft guns in the country, but a Washington dispatch says the Army doesn't want many, preferring to hope that an enemy's raiders could be destroyed before reaching their objectives here. It would seem that a few more guns wouldn't do any harm just in case the enemy should get through, but this isn't my story; it is the Army's.

TRUBEE DAVISON, former Assistant Secretary of War and chairman of the United Republican finance committee, says the New Deal has spent $8,000,000,000 on defenses to produce the alarmingly weak establishment of today, and I believe Hugh Johnson says the same, except that he puts the figure at $6,000,000,000. Elsewhere I read that the New Deal didn't actually spend the money, but just appropriated it and let the money and defenses rot.

Plainly the public needs information. If there is reason to be scared the citizens want to get good and scared, and if there is reason to be sore they should know whom to get sore at. In the stately phrase which Gen. Johnson himself sometimes employs, something is cockeyed here.

MR. CHURCHILL
Would he, no matter how badly Britain may be beaten, ever consent to surrender the fleet? See Ernest Lindley's discussion of this possibility

The Stark Realities

By Ernest Lindley

The American Defense Problem

IN THE SUPREME interest of our national security, diplomatic and naval steps of the most delicate and critical character may have to be taken within a few weeks. This sharp possibility arises from two facts:

(1) That within a matter of weeks the Germans, with or without Italian help, may win a victory over the Allies. Not a partial victory, followed by a negotiated peace, but a total victory, involving the destruction or surrender of the French army and the destruction or successful invasion of Great Britain.

(2) That we are unprepared to do what we should do to guarantee our national security in the event of an Allied debacle, especially if Hitler should fall heir to the Allied fleets.

The stark realities are that the German war machine is even more formidable—very much more formidable—than it was generally thought to be, and that the Allies are very much less well prepared to resist it than was generally thought—or than they thought. Various of our experts saw parts of the picture clearly long ago. A few voices were warning of the supremacy of Germany in the air and of its effect on the operations of armies and fleets. Our Army experts knew some time ago of this superiority of the German army in mechanized equipment, both in numbers and quality. But the total picture was probably not clear to many, if any, people.

In appraising the picture, almost everybody has been wrong. The pacifist isolationists and the pacifist internationalists were more thoroughly wrong. Those who advocated defense of the Western Hemisphere—or even the Western Hemisphere plus Oceania—saw the trend but, in most instances, underestimated the time we would have to prepare for the moment of action. The President sensed the danger, but befogged the situation with a political melange of meddling in Europe, futile expressions of indignation and insufficient economic, military and aerial preparation. If he had not misjudged the situation he would not have supported the will-o'-the-wisp trade policies of Hull, and would not have indulged in the luxury of moral condemnation and halfway economic sanctions, unsupported by armed force. He would have talked, instead, in terms of defense of our national security.

BUT THAT is all water over the dam. The question now is not one of "meddling" in Europe but of our national security. Within a few weeks the Nazis may be able to line up in Norway, Holland and Belgium and on the French channel coast 6,000 or 7,000 bombing planes and fighter escort planes. (Meanwhile they may or may not have occupied Paris or knocked out the French army.) If that happens we may expect the most gigantic blackmail in the history of the world: "Surrender the British fleet intact or Britain will be devastated." Whether the British would give up at the first threat is extremely doubtful—especially with a man of Churchill's fighting spirit at the head of the government.

But suppose the Nazis convert London, the nerve center of Britain, into a shambles and then say: "Are you ready now to give up and surrender the fleet?"

Churchill has warned that the battle for the British Isles impends. The British have very considerable defenses against aerial attack but perhaps nothing like what may be necessary if Hitler is willing to gamble all on victory. Even if the British are able to withstand such punishment as no urban people have ever endured, the possibility cannot be eliminated that Great Britain will be successfully invaded and beaten to its knees.

In British shipyards a navy larger than the present Italian and German navies combined is under construction. If Hitler gets these ships, he will have in short order, with the German and Italian navies, a formidable force. If he gets, in addition, the Allied fleets afloat, or even part of them, he will have at his command by far the greatest navy afloat, in addition to by far the greatest air force and the most powerful army.

The power of the German land forces is not our imminent concern. The power of Germany in the air is more important to us. German naval power may be a life-and-death matter to us.

GERMAN AIR POWER may be indicated by the fact—or belief of our best-informed people—that the German production of military planes now exceeds 3,000 planes per month and will reach 6,000 per month by fall. The German production at present is believed to exceed the total world production outside Germany. Ours, this month, is about 600 planes and we won't reach 1,200 until about December. The Germans have a vast reserve of fully or partly trained pilots.

German superiority in the air need not worry us unless, or until, it is accompanied by sea power.

With Japan to watch in the Pacific, we cannot defend the naval and aerial approaches to the Western Hemisphere if the Allied fleets, in whole or in considerable part, shortly should fall into the hands of Germany or any firm ally of Germany.

This may prove to be an unduly dark picture. But any national policy which does not take account of the darkest possibilities is foolhardy.

A preeminent concern of American policy at the moment must be to assure that the Allied fleets are never surrendered. If they are scuttled, our situation will be bad enough in view of our inadequate preparations for defense, especially in the air.

We are powerless to influence the result of the great battle now being waged in France and Belgium. But we may be able to do a little to preserve the morale of the Allies if that battle goes adversely to them. To prolong their resistance it might help to guarantee to them unlimited economic assistance. If promptly given, such a pledge might influence the attitude of Russia and even of Italy. Both Stalin and Mussolini must be quaking in their boots. For if the French army cannot withstand the German onslaught, the infinitely inferior Russian army would stand no chance whatsoever. And Mussolini must sense that any spoils he might grab as a momentary ally of Germany could be taken from him about as quickly as the Nazis drove through Poland.

In return for whatever we can do to bolster the morale of the Allies and to accelerate economic assistance to them, we should seek to obtain the most solemn assurance that the Allied fleets will never be surrendered, and that if by air power they are forced off their present bases they will fall back on the Western Hemisphere and Singapore.

Baptist Leaders At Convention

Many lay and clerical Baptist leaders of the Washington area are are attending the annual Northern Baptist Convention which opened yesterday in Convention Hall, Atlantic City.

They include Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention, and Mrs. Weaver; the Rev. Charles B. Austin, moderator of the District convention, and Mrs. Austin; Dr. William S. Abernethy, president of the Washington Ministerial Union, and Mrs. Abernethy; Dr. J. Raymond Nelson, pastor of the Bethesda Baptist Church; Mrs. J. G. Yaden, president of the District Baptist Women's Missionary Union; her predecessor, Mrs. George A. Ross, and Mr. Ross; Dr. Gove G. Johnson, pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church, and Mrs. Johnson; Dr. John Compton Ball, leader of Metropolitan Baptist Church; Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, president of the Washington Federation of Churches, and Mrs. Pruden; Harwood Hall, minister of music at First Church, and Mrs. Hall.

Income Tax Case Heads Docket of Md. High Court

Annapolis, Md., May 21 (AP).—The Court of Appeals will reconvene here tomorrow to hold consultations and to file opinions in cases argued during the April term.

Foremost among the cases to be decided is one involving the Constitutionality of the State income-tax law—the backbone of the State's fiscal program—and one seeking to ban a referendum this fall on a conservation bill passed by the 1939 Legislature.

Books And Things

Boy With A Big Grin

"WHEN THE GOING is good," says Carl Sandburg, "he is equal to the best of Artemus Ward and Petroleum Vesuvius Nasby . . . As an entertainer he has the skill and the quizzical humility of Will Rogers or Mark Twain." That may be high praise for Oscar Ameringer, who calls his autobiography "If You Don't Weaken" (Holt, $2.75), but it suggests the personality of the wittiest and, next to Eugene Debs, most lovable of the oldtime American Socialists.

Oscar likes beer, strikes, and cornets, and handles all three well. He is a natural-born story teller. I doubt if any one who knows him ever disliked him, and while he has put some pretty fierce hates on paper, in and out of this book, I doubt that he ever disliked any one he ever met—certainly not any one who could carry a tune, handle a stein or just sit and talk.

He was born in south Germany in 1870; he went to the same village school as another boy who ran away to America, Carl Laemmle; his father was a cabinetmaker, and the boy learned early to handle tools with precision; he also picked up a knack with flute and trumpet that stood him in good stead in later life. He hated the school teacher who used to discipline him with a hazel switch. And it was after he had been ordered, as punishment, to go on a pilgrimage to the shrine of "Mother Anna," in Schoenenberg, 10 miles away, and had forgotten the pilgrimage while shaking dice for pretzels in a tavern, that he ran off to America.

He was a little disappointed in America at first; there were no Indians and no buffalo visible from the windows of the train that took him to Cincinnati. He joined the Knights of Labor, and lost his job in the famous eight-hour-day strike of 1886. But Oscar never went hungry. He had a broad grin, and he could play the cornet. A funeral was worth $1.50 to a cornetist; an all-night dance, $3.

He was billed as Oscare Americolini with a group of Italians in an ingenious vaudeville act called "The Street Pavers of Paris," wherein the artists played tunes on musical paving blocks. When he walked across the Ohio countryside he found that he could always get a free meal by walking up to a farmhouse door and asking for the loan of shoe blacking and a brush. He didn't have to beg; the farmwives always begged him to eat. He was willing to work and ready to laugh, and he found the America of 50 years ago a kindly, friendly, hospitable land. One farmer posted his land: "Hunt as long as you damn please, and when you hear the dinner bell come up to the house," and lived up to his sign.

Oscar painted portraits of Ohio farmers, too, and landscape scenes on screens for barrooms; after his English improved he began sending comic stories to "Puck" in New York. In 1896 he played second alto and clarinet in the band which greeted distinguished visitors to Mr. McKinley's front porch in Canton, Ohio. Thence he drifted down to Texas, blowing his cornet to advertise Marlin, "the American Carlsbad," and attempting to establish a conservatory of music in the city of Calvin. When the Spanish War broke out he helped organize a volunteer band whose service the Governor declined in a laconic telegram, reading: "We want men to fight and not to blow." Back in Ohio, Oscar read Henry George and "Looking Backward" in idle moments; then a Catholic priest, Msgr. Soenthgerath, converted him to Socialism.

SO OSCAR AMERINGER discovered his career as a labor editor. His first paper was The Columbus (Ohio) Labor World; an editorial printed there led to his being drafted into organizing for the brewery workers in New Orleans; still later he founded and edited a Socialist newspaper in Oklahoma; he went up to Milwaukee to help Victor Berger edit his Milwaukee Leader before and during the World War; for nearly a decade he was an editor of The Illinois Miner. There is a lot of American history in Oscar Ameringer's story; his Midwestern brand of Socialism had its roots in the Abolitionism of Lincoln's day, and the Populism of Bryan's, and Oscar, something of a historian in addition to his other talents, is aware of the significance of that dynasty of prairie thought.

Oscar doesn't pretend that he has always been right. He was long devoted to a mine union leader who, before resigning from the union, signed a contract to serve the most powerful operator in his territory as "labor adviser," at $25,000 a year. Oscar throws no stones at him; he still likes the man. He also liked the man whom his Farmer-Labor group elected as Governor of Oklahoma. This gentleman sold out to the Ku Klux Klan. That ruined Oscar's paper and made him sore. In the last issue of his paper Oscar bade the Governor farewell and ran a quotation from Robert Browning's "Lost Leader:" "Just for a handful of silver he left us." The Governor, Oscar says, read the paper next morning, rang for his secretary and gave him orders: "Go and find out who this guy Browning is," he said, "and give him some sort of a job that will close his mouth."

Oscar Ameringer and Victor Berger and The Milwaukee Leader were all opposed to America's involvement in the World War in 1917, and they soon discovered that a war waged to make Europe safe for democracy didn't apply democracy to pacifists at home. Oscar tells of that episode with a little less of the gay humor than marks most of his reminiscences of battles on the home front. It's a sobering story to read today.

Dead Sea Fruit

By Barnet Nover

After 20 Years Of Indecision

FOR MORE THAN 20 years the people of the United States have been discussing the problem of America's foreign relations as though it were a matter of choice rather than necessity.

We were neither wise enough to give wholehearted support to the new world order which we had helped usher into being in 1919, nor courageous enough to pursue to its logical conclusion the alternative policy of isolation. Now, perhaps too late, we have discovered that the final collapse of that world order would threaten our very existence and that, whether we like it or not, we shall have to pay the fearfully burdensome costs of isolation.

LET US BE realistic. If the Allies lose, the additional billion dollars which President Roosevelt has asked for defense purposes will be only a mere starter. We shall then have to reckon with a Europe cast in an altogether different mold than the one to which we have so long been accustomed, a Europe completely under totalitarian domination, a militarized Europe with a master race and enslaved populations, a Europe operating under a regimented economy on a gigantic scale.

But if that will be true for us it will equally be true for the other 20 republics of this hemisphere. This is important. For as the problem of our national defense begins to be envisaged many are beginning to regard as absolutely indispensable the strengthening of the present very loose federation of American nations. At the very least we shall need the tacit cooperation of those other nations in the execution of our defense plans. There will be questions of naval bases at points on this hemisphere where no American naval bases at present exist. There will be questions of military airports and fuel depots. There will be questions of closer diplomatic understanding. There may, in the long run, be the problem of cementing a straight-out alliance between this Nation and its neighbors.

WILL WE receive that cooperation? Most Americans assume as a matter of course that we will. But they assume an inter-American solidarity which does not exist today and which, to the extent that it does exist at the present time, may crumble in the face of a totalitarian victory in Europe.

To be sure, every one of the Latin-American nations, like the United States, is jealous of its independence and determined to preserve it. But this does not necessarily mean that all of them will view the problem of safeguarding their independence as one necessarily involving an alliance with the United States. On the contrary, conditions may arise which will make it appear to them that too close association with this Nation would involve a threat to their safety.

Like the United States, like Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, they may decide that a policy of isolation is safer than a policy of linking their fate with the fate of other nations. In other words they may be as afraid of offending Europe's masters as were the little neutrals who have been trampled under Hitler's iron heel.

HOLLAND, a compact little country, was unable to deal with its Fifth Column in time. In the sprawling lands to our south does anyone imagine that the governments can be any more successful than was the government at The Hague in coping with this problem?

The technique of revolution has been developed in Latin America to a high art. Is there any reason to believe that it will not be appropriated and employed by the Nazis for their own ends should they find it necessary to do so? And even if the Fifth Column menace can somehow be averted, there is the greater menace of economic strangulation which may threaten them should they refuse to bring their policies in line with those of a victorious Reich.

THIS DOES not mean that the United States will sit by with arms folded while the totalitarian masters of Europe wreak their will on this or that nation of Latin America. There is every certainty that we will consider such pressures on our neighbors as a threat to ourselves. We shall do what we can to see to it that governments favorable to the United States are kept in power. That may require action of the kind which we have scrupulously avoided during the era of the Good Neighbor. But as long as the economy of many of the nations of the south is based on the unavoidable necessity of exporting their surpluses and as long as these surpluses can only be exported to Europe, the pull of Europe will be great enough to counteract pressures from the United States.

Isolation means expansion. Our Good Neighbor policy in this hemisphere has been made policy by virtue of the fact that we have not been, in any real sense, isolated. We only thought we were. We were protected much less by the Atlantic Ocean than by the European balance of power and the fact that any challenge to us in this hemisphere involved, since Great Britain was not prone to make such a challenge, the upset of that balance of power.

That protection is now threatened with destruction. We may, very soon, have none of the outer and invisible barriers of defense we have enjoyed practically through the whole of our history. To build new barriers on this side of the ocean will not be easy. It will not be cheap. And it will not be pleasant.

German Planes Cross Into Sweden; Crowd at Rail Station Machine-Gunned

One Killed; Sharp Protest Sent Berlin

Incident in Narvik Area Among Many Border Violations

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, May 21.—German planes late today crossed the border into Sweden along the iron ore railway from Narvik, Norway, returning to Norway after the Swedish neutrality guard had fired warning shots.

Other planes were seen in other parts of Sweden during the day.

The Swedish foreign office said earlier a sharp protest was being made at Berlin against the machine-gunning of a railroad station at Vassijaure, across the Swedish frontier east of Narvik.

Stockholm newspapers said a German seaplane flew over the frontier yesterday, firing into a crowd of 50 persons waiting for a train. One was killed.

The melting ice barrier far north in the Gulf of Bothnia clearing the short route from the Swedish iron ore fields to Germany, posed a new problem for neutral Sweden.

Germany, whose war machine needs iron, has been awaiting the thaw. With the ice gone, ore can be shipped directly down the Gulf between Sweden and Finland from the key port of Lulea, 70 miles south of the Arctic circle.

That ore would help supplant the supply which the British cut off at Narvik, on the Norwegian coast.

There have been insistent rumors of German demands for access to Lulea to improve loading facilities with German engineers and German equipment.

Authoritative sources have denied emphatically that such improvement even has been discussed. Also denied was a report that Germany had asked permission to transport troops to the Narvik area from Lulea.

In 1936, Lulea shipped 2,700,000 tons of ore. It has been estimated that shipments from Lulea and the nearby ports of Gavle and Oxelosund could be boosted to 8,000,000 tons.

Dozenberg 'Shocks' Dies Committee

tence of a year and a day for violating the passport laws.

He pleaded with photographers not to take his picture. It was learned on good authority that when he left Moscow, after resigning from the Ogpu, he gave a pledge that he would never give away any information concerning "fifth column" activities.

When J. B. Matthews research expert committee for the Dies Committee began to question Dozenberg about his work for the Soviet military intelligence, the witness jumped to his feet and began to talk excitedly.

"I won't make any public statement concerning a foreign power," he shouted.

'You want to protect the United States, don't you?' asked Chairman Dies.

"Yes," said Dozenberg, "and I want to protect myself."

He said he would be willing to talk if the spectators were ordered away and the committee went into executive session. Chairman Dies conferred with his associates and it was decided to lock the doors.

"Shocked and Startled"

Representative Mason, in a statement sent later, said he could not reveal what Dozenberg had to say.

"I will say," he added, "that I am both shocked and startled at the revelations of the widespread espionage system that the Soviet government has had in the United States—and especially at the evidence of the laxness and negligence the Department of Justice has shown in this matter, and at the failure of the department to uncover and prosecute these undercover agents of the Soviet government.

"I consider it very necessary that a counter-espionage system be built up in this country to counteract the activity of these Fifth Column agents of a foreign government."

Chairman Dies predicted that the American people will soon come around to demanding legislation to outlaw the Communist party and the Nazi Bund in this country. All suggestions along this line, he recalled, have been denounced by liberals, but he thought the exposure of "fifth column" activities in the European war might bring a change in sentiment.

Naturalized in 1911

At the outset of yesterday's hearings, Dozenberg testified that he was born in Latvia on November 15, 1882. He said he came to the United States in 1904, and was naturalized in Boston seven years later while working as a railroad machinist.

He said that as a member of the Socialist party he shifted with the "left wing" in 1919, and went over to the Communist party. In 1922 he became business manager of "The Voice of Labor," a paper which Investigator Matthews charged had helped incite the bloody mine riots in Herrin, Ill., when 19 non-union workers were shot by strikers.

Dozenberg denied that he had anything to do with this slaughter.

"Those statements," he said, "are absolute lies. I had no part in the riots."

Ritchie Highway Permits Rejected

Annapolis, Md., May 21 (AP).—Applications for permits to erect two vegetable stands along the Ritchie highway between Earleigh Heights and Robinson were rejected today by the board of Anne Arundel County commissioners.

The permits were sought by Vinton and William Jennings, colored brothers. John J. Levay, president of the county board, said the stands "would not be in keeping with the highway."

Two other applications for permits along the highway were voluntarily withdrawn by property owners. The State roads commission, garden and civic clubs have opposed the erection of billboards, hot dog and other commercial stands along the highway, asserting that this type of commercialization has made the Washington boulevard "unsightly."

Nazi Influx Continues In Mexico

Country on Guard For 'Fifth Column' Work of Foreigners

By the United Press

Mexico City, May 21.—Large groups of Germans continue to enter Mexico, it was reported today simultaneous with announcement by the department of the interior that foreigners are being closely watched for "fifth column" activities.

"More Germans are entering weekly now than monthly in normal times," one informant said.

An accurate estimate of the number was not possible, however.

The interior department announcement emphasized that so far investigations had not substantiated charges of the workers national anti-Communist bloc and other groups that a "fifth column" already exists here.

The department reminded all foreigners that they must comply fully with immigration regulations.

Colombia to Probe Nazis

Bogota, Colombia, May 31 (U.P.).—A sweeping investigation of alleged Nazi activities and German propaganda in Colombia was ordered tonight by the government following reports of the danger of sabotage by an "admirably organized Nazi fifth column" along this country's oil pipelines.

The reports, published in a New York newspaper and reproduced here, caused a sensation and stirred widespread indignation.

The propaganda is printed on single sheets distributed to passers-by and at doors. It consists of violent attacks on the Allies and arguments in favor of Germany's invasion of the Low Countries.

The foreign office referred an extensive dossier on Nazi propaganda to the ministry of interior, which handed it over to the attorney general's office for action. The attorney general was asked to indicate the extent of the government's authority to restrict such propaganda.

The government was also reported to have drafted a bill providing for stricter control of immigration "to prevent the entry of dangerous or undesirable elements."

Training of Women Suggested For Duty as Liaison Pilots

English Girl Aviators Drafted in Limited Fashion for Such Service and to Ferry Planes Across Channel, Flier Reports

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer.

New York, May 21.—Liaison flying behind the battle lines was urged today as work for which the United States would be wise to enlist and train women pilots in the Nation's new program of air expansion.

In a limited way, English women pilots have been drafted to perform such services. Aline Rhonie, one of the Nation's foremost women fliers, said today before she took off on a two-month aerial tour of America.

England's competent women pilots have been used to ferry military planes across the Channel to French airdromes, thereby releasing male pilots for front-line duty. Miss Rhonie tried to enlist for such service, but was rejected because she was not a British subject. Since then she has been driving an ambulance in France, and is now on leave to raise funds in America to establish canteens for Allied pilots at the front.

"Women can be very valuable in liaison flying," said Miss Rhonie, one of the first women in this country to qualify for a transport pilot's license. "All Europe, however, has soft pedalled any discussion of such work since the world-wide repercussions which followed the shocking revelation that Russian women pilots had bombed civilians in the Finnish war.

"But women make not only capable pilots, but trustworthy auxiliaries. They would be excellent in cross-country and communications work. You give a woman flier an important message to deliver and 99 times out of 100 she'll get it there if humanly possible."

Miss Rhonie agrees with Jacqueline Cochran, ace woman flier who yesterday proposed the formation of a women's air corps, that women pilots should be confined to duties behind the lines which would release male pilots for front-line duty.

"Our place is not in the front line nor even in test pilot work," she said.

"Women make good teachers, and I agree with Miss Cochran that they could be most valuable in giving cadet pilots the first 75 hours of instruction before turning them over to military fliers for tactical instruction.

"But I think the Government should not overlook the fact that women develop into good aeronautical technicians and engineers when given the chance."

Allegany County Warden Is Fired For Misconduct

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).—Deputy Game Warden Harry R. Kenney, of Allegany County, was dismissed from the State service today by Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones, who fuond him guilty of "conduct unbecoming a law enforcement officer."

Commissioner Jones, who held a hearing for Kenney in Cumberland Saturday on charges preferred by State Game Warden E. Lee Le Compte, noted in his findings that:

"It appears to be clear that the respondent's sense of obligation as a law enforcement officer of the State has, on frequent occasions, been made the subject of investigation and admonition, and equally clear that his further employment is not in the best interests of the State service."

Americans Feared Dead in War Zone Ambulance Duty

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 21.—J. V. Sparks, colonel of the American Volunteers Ambulance Corps, announced tonight four drivers and one inspector now are missing or killed somewhere in northeast France.

They are Laurance A. Jump, of Nantucket, Mass., reported missing last Thursday; Al Raymond, 52, Chicago; Louis Wehrle 44, of Berne, Ind.; Murray Shipley, 46, of Cincinnati, reported missing last night, and Jan Glowacki, 36, of Jersey City.

The missing men had been operating north of Rethel and were last reported the night of May 15. Efforts are being made to trace them through the International Red Cross.

The corps' headquarters further announced that in addition to the five ambulances missing with their drivers two others are a total loss and many others have been subjected to intense bombardment and machine-gunning and now require constant repair. An appeal is being made for relief drivers since most of the 70-odd men now at the front have been driving almost steadily for 10 days with little or no sleep.

Sixteen drivers from the United States are expected here on the Manhattan.

U. S. Out of War Held Aid to Allies

Louisville, Ky., May 21 (AP).—Frank E. Gannett, of Rochester, N. Y., a candidate for Republican Presidential nomination, asserted tonight that the United States would help the Allies "more by not going into this war."

The newspaper publisher, in a speech prepared for a campaign meeting, said: "If we should become involved we would at once cut down the amount of supplies and the number of planes the Allies are now receiving from us, for these would be diverted to our own use."

B. W. Henderson Quits

The Justice Department announced yesterday the resignation of Berkeley W. Henderson, special assistant to the Attorney General. Henderson, who was born in Kenton, Ohio, and formerly practiced law in Cleveland, has accepted the post of trial counsel for the reorganization division of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

U. S. Army Masses 200 Planes To Simulate Lightning War

Early Maneuvers Were Handicapped By Lack of Air Strength; 450 Tanks In Games Would Be Dwarfed by Nazi Monsters

By the Associated Press

Camp Beauregard, La., May 21.—Europe'e war, blitzkrieg style, reverberated in America today as the United States army called more than 200 planes to this section for participation in the biggest war maneuvers ever held in this country.

In the first three phases of the war games, which started two weeks ago, only a score of bombers were used with the 70,000 mechanized troops and there was little simulation of the air power now on display in Europe's great war.

Staff officers said the greatest weakness of the maneuvers had been in the air. Only 24 bombers had been used so far with possibly 50 planes of all types involved.

Dwarfed by Nazi Tanks

The 70,000 troops engaged in the maneuvers are reported to approximate the combat troop strength of the army which now totals 227,000 men. Many troops and men are assigned to other, non-combat work.

A total of 380 of the Army's 450 tanks are in action here, but the largest of these—36 medium tanks of 17½ tons weight—are dwarfed by the 50 and 75 ton tanks Germany is reportedly using. All the remainder of the tanks here are about ten tons in size.

Quartermaster's corps worked day and night for months assembling supplies and equipment to put the 70,000 men in the field here and supply the troops for a little more than two weeks.

Picked as an ideal location for the war games the wooded, rough country west of here has given the Army many new problems to solve in perfecting and protecting communications.

Supply Lines Cut

Before the Blue army even began to move its forces from Fort Benning, Ga., the Red invaders seized the air and theoretically blasted out of commission all the available Mississippi River bridges and many smaller bridges approaching the endangered zone.

Many of the remaining bridges over the Red and Sabine Rivers, bounding the combat zone, have since been theoretically destroyed, and troop movements have been difficult at times over the narrow, winding forest roads. Many a colonel trying to rush up reinforcements has longed for the four lane highway system Germany perfected as a preparation for war.

Police Disperse Communist Parade in N. Y.

Peace Demonstration In Times Square Ties Up Traffic

By the Associated Press

New York, May 21.—Police drove several thousand Communists and their sympathizers from crowd-choked Times Square tonight after they had touched off a quietly planned "peace demonstration."

Because the normal complement of Times Square patrolmen was unable to handle the surprise demonstration, about 200 police and 50 mounted officers were summoned and they squelched the disturbance about a half-hour after it began.

Crowds disgorging into the Square from theaters at the time of the demonstration added to the confusion as the police drove the line of demonstrators, ten blocks long, into side streets.

Fist fighting between police and paraders broke out when officers attempted to confiscate banners and flags.

Police put the number of demonstrators at 4,500. Marching two abreast, they blocked pedestrian traffic on Broadway between Forty-second and Forty-seventh streets and caused a partial tie-up of cross-town automobile traffic.

They carried placards bearing such words as "Roosevelt, Dewey and Hoover Are United for War" and shouted "No sir, the Yanks are not coming," "Let God Save the King," "We Want Peace" and "Keep America Out of War."

More Canadian Troops Landed

Ottawa, Canada, May 21 (AP).—The defense ministry announced tonight that a new contingent of Canadian troops has reached England. They are auxiliary troops and further reinforcement for the First Canadian Division.

The defense ministry announced also that two new destroyers have been ordered built in England for the Royal Canadian navy.

Nazis Narrow Wedge Driving To Channel

Position of Allies, Or Strength in Battle Zone Is Undetermined

By G. H. Archambault

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, May 21.—Twelve days after the Germans invaded the Low Countries any consideration of the operations resolves itself into a series of interrogations.

Where exactly are the retreating British and Belgian armies?

The military situation, viewed from here, is anything but clear. The confusion is increased with the realization that recent communiques have come 48 hours after the events they reported.

So far as can be gathered here they are facing east, fighting a defensive battle.

It would seem that British and Belgians are in the vicinity of the frontier, probably southwest of Tournai in the region of the Scarpe River. This is the stream which flows through Arras, now occupied by the enemy.

Slower in North

They may be even further south. An important point in Premier Reynaud's speech was the information that 48 hours ago the German advance had reached a line marked by Le Quesnoy, Cambrai, Perrone and Ham. A glance at the map will show that this line is a curve and that the enemy's progress to the sea appears less rapid in the north than in the south. This may well be due to the presence of the British and Belgians in those parts.

In any case, the German push appeared to be taking the form of a wedge, narrowing as it comes nearer the English Channel. This raises the second question: What force have the French on their left? No one outside the general staff can answer.

This holds true of the third question: What force have the French on their right? The only information on this point was given by an authorized military spokesman this evening when he said that from the head waters of the Somme—which rises near St. Quentin—to the Rhine the French armies are on their positions.

Main Army to the Rear

There is another question: What German forces are engaged? It is insisted here tonight that the point of the wedge consists of light mechanized columns representing strong advanced guards, certainly not armies in the military sense (the minimum strength of an army is some 60,000 men).

Possibly, it is said here, the units which occupied Amiens and Arras did not exceed some 3,000 or 4,000. It is known that the Germans have withdrawn some divisions from the Swiss border and sent them west, but they do not exceed three or four in number. The main enemy reserve remains concentrated in areas to the north of Switzerland—between 20 and 30 divisions in all.

Finn Aid League Asks U. S. Adoption Of War Orphans

The American League for Finnish War Orphans is planning a campaign to get Americans to take care of Finnish children whose parents were killed in the war between Finland and the Soviet Union, Madame Hjalmar J. Procope said yesterday.

Madame Procope, who is British, came to the United States only recently and was married to the Finnish minister March 30. She is working hard not only for Finnish children, but also at the mastering of Finnish grammar.

Madame Procope said today that there were between 20,000 and 30,000 orphans who had lost either one or both parents during the fighting in eastern Finland, and that a committee had been formed in Washington to get Americans to adopt Finnish children and provide for their care. The cost will range from $80 to $200, depending on the child's age.

"We are trying to form additional subcommittees in other cities. Madame Procope said. "At present there is only the one committee formed here, but already we are in touch with persons in Boston, New York and New Orleans who will, we hope, eventually organize committees in those cities.

King's Favorite En Route to U. S.

MAGDA LUPESCU, longtime favorite of King Carol of Rumania, arrived in southern France yesterday, en route to the United States, it was reported in a copyrighted dispatch from Paris by the New York Daily News. The titian-haired Jewess, an influence in Rumanian politics because of her friendship with the King, is reported to have rejected a Nazi offer to induce Carol to place the kingdom under "German protection." The News says that she and Carol have ended their "long-standing love affair" and adds that it has learned that she had been secretly wed for three years to Maj. Ernest Urdarenau, Carol's secretary

D. C. to Mark Maritime Day At Navy Yard

Inspection of Ships, Speeches, Boat Race Slated for Today

National Maritime Day will be observed today with exercises in the Navy Yard at 1 p. m.

Invited guests will inspect the Maritime Commission's training ship American Seaman, which arrived Monday with a CCC crew, and the Massachusetts State training ship Nantucket. Members of the American Seaman crew will compete in a lifeboat race at 2:30 p. m.

Speakers at the exercises will be Senator Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee; Representative Schuyler L. Bland, of Virginia, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee; Max O'Rell Truitt, member of the Maritime Commission, and Comdr. W. N. Derby, chief of the Maritime Service.

In connection with the celebration, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lewis Compton yesterday paid high tribute to the Navy's Hydrographic Office, which, he said, "stands today as a most vital adjunct to the Merchant Marine, safeguarding that service . . . by providing the necessary charts, publications, radio advice, and all such other assistance that modern ingenuity can devise."

National Maritime Day, celebrated first in 1933, commemorates the salling May 22, 1819, of the Savannagh from Savannah on the first successful transoceanic voyage under steam propulsion.

Nazis Loose Terrific Fire To Halt Tanks

German Tells How Guns Stop Attack In Point Blank Shots

By Percival Knauth

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 21.—Through northern France from Luxembourg to the sea German motorized advances led by swiftly moving tank patrols have cut their destructure furrows, just as they did on the plains of Poland last September.

From German reports it would appear that the supermobile "blitzkrieg" which sliced Poland's army into so many isolated pieces and which were later encircled and destroyed, is proving equally successful in the west.

Upon German antitank defenses, warding off attempts of the enemy to break through thin lines which push forward so swiftly, so precariously, far ahead of the main bodies of troops, devolves a large measure of responsibility if ultimate success for this spearhead strategy to be assured. For it's obvious that if the enemy were able to cut off the advance guards they would stop the blitzkrieg.

To forestall this, however, the Germans are using every weapon in the book against Allied tanks from 10.5-centimeter howitzers to deadly little antitank guns, firing a high-explosive shell of great penetrating power at point-blank range.

German Describes French Loss

A German photographer, attached to the troops advancing along the road somewhere in Northern France, tells how one flank attack by French tanks died aborning, in a deadly hail of German shells of all calbers. Every available gun, he states, was unlimited when the French attack was reported, to repel the attempt to cut off the advance troops from their main body in the rear.

"Somewhere, way up front, thick dust-clouds were sighted — plain signs of advancing tanks. What followed is a striking example of soldierly discipline.

"Brief orders were given and the complicated mechanism began to function. What just appeared to be a hedge was ripped aside and well-hidden guns became suddenly visible, among them 10.5 centimeter howitzers. From underneath the bushes appeared guns of our antitank defenses, and from somewhere finally came antiaircraft artillery, which was also set up as antitank defense.

"By now we could hear a dull rumble and the first enemy tanks began to appear. And now, they had reached the road which cuts through the middle of the battlefield. They turned to lumber, like medieval dragons, up the steep bank at the roadside to drive with tremendous impetus towards us. They were only 200 meters away when our guns opened up a roar and a crash.

"All Shells Score Hits

"Our guns were shooting at point-blank range. The roar of the gun and the detonation of the exploding shell merged into one ear-splitting din. Not a single shell missed its target.

"It was a grand but spine-chilling spectacle to watch from the immediate vicinity the effect of German artillery, antitank and antiaircraft guns. The crash on crash of shells were heard as they smashed into steel-armored walls.

"In this witches cauldron, time became eternity. I had already taken 20 pictures. A glance at my watch showed that the duel had lasted only ten minutes. Six tanks were burning at the roadside. Of the four-man crew of one of them, only two were able to escape.

"They were lucky, for a German shell had ripped off the whole conning tower from this fortress on wheels, so that they quickly were able to escape.

"Later I heard at divisional staff headquarters that in this sector 30 of the heaviest enemy tanks were destroyed in the fire of German defenses."

New Deal Thinks It Can Buy Anything, Willkie Charges

New York, May 21 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie, utilities executive and potential candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, declared tonight that the Roosevelt Administration was operating "upon the cynical theory that you can buy anything with money."

"This Government has sought to buy employment with money—the so-called pump-priming theory," he added in an address at a "Hoosier box supper" held in his honor by present and former residents of Indiana, his native State.

"It has sought to buy freedom with money—the so-called 'relief' program, which barely keeps Americans from starvation. It has bought political power with money. Now it thinks it can buy defense with money."

"Some things," he continued, "have no price . . . cannot be bought . . . can be created only by sweat, by courage and by a belief in the principles of freedom. And until we have in Washington a Government that recognizes that fundamental political fact, we shall not have prosperity in this country—no, we shall not even have defense."

German Consul Quits Out of Loyalty to U. S.

Galveston, Tex., May 21 (AP).—Julius W. Jockusch, German consul for Texas since 1923, resigned today with the comment:

"According to the attitude of the United States Government as enunciated by the President and the Department of State, I feel that my position as consul of Germany is inconsistent with loyal American citizenship."

British Calmly Weigh Grim Threat of Nazi Invasion Across Narrow Channel

2,000,000 Men Train at Home To Enter War

Official Buildings Are Put Under Guard; Barricades Ready

By the Associated Press

London, May 21.—Two million men of Britain's war-time army are training on the threatened soil of their homeland, ready to enter the field at any point with war-strength equipment.

Government buildings already are under guard, highway traffic is under surveillance and barricades are ready to be thrown across strategic roads.

Today's final editions told London newspaper readers of German claims of advances toward the English Channel, but smaller headlines added "London treates claims with reserve."

All evening papers carried French Premier Reynaud's speech admitting capture of Amiens and Arras by the Germans.

In earlier editions there were headlines that German thrusts had been repulsed and editorials that Britain "can take it—and win."

"Bad, But They'll Pull Through"

The average Briton viewed the plight of the British Expeditionary Force as "pretty bad, but they'll pull through."

The public found reassurance in afternoon newspaper banner headlines by the Daily Express painted a grim picture of how Germany's air superiority might enable Nazi forces to cross the Channel under the "protection" of a curtain of bombs.

The newspaper, whose directing head is Britain's minister of aircraft production, warned that the German air force could escort troopships across the Channel, only 20 miles wide at its narrowest point, while coastal batteries set up in France hurled a protetcive barrage to England's shore and swiftly laid German mines fenced in the invasion.

Shore guns are more than a match for weapons of a similar caliber in warships—as proved in the World War failure of the Gallipoli campaign to force the Dardanelles.

German submarines, marketdly inactive in recent weeks, are believed in Britain to be held in reserve for a mass attack on the empire's home fleet at the moment any invasion is attempted.

Bomber Wave Feared

At the same time, waves of bombers might be directed at British surface vessels. Although no capital ship has been admitted by the British as sunk by air attack, some sources say it is unlikely battleships could withstand continued attacks with 2,000-pound bombs.

Just as in the days of Phillip and the Spanish Armada and Napoleon and his fleet of flat-bottomed vessels, with which invasions of England were attempted, the British today depend chiefly upon their fleet.

However, the ships are backed by coastal defense batteries around the whole of Britain.

To resist invasion from the air she has hundreds of fighter planes scattered at numerous bases, a thick network of antiaircraft batteries, and a nation-wide air raids precautions system.

Germans Are Proud

Berlin, May 21.—(AP).—"We Germans always were good soldiers," was the proud expression frequently heard today from citizens who freely admitted their own astonishment at the Nazi army's lightning thrusts to the English Channel.

They have been accustomed to bulletins of military success in this war, but today's communique bowled them over.

"We expected a successful thrust, but not this fast," was the consensus.

The lightning drive turned German eyes especially toward England.

"The British fleet already has learned the power of our air force," it was remarked. "So there is no need to say what this means for England should the Channel ports fall into German hands."

Since the western offensive was started, the most popular pastime in Germany has been to sit close to a radio to hear the frequent bulletins.

India Restricts Import Dealings

The Department of Commerce disclosed yesterday that the government of British India has established an import license control over a wide range of products from non-empire sources, and for a few products, also of empire origin, shipped after May 27.

Licenses are to be required for the importation of such products as the following: Raw cotton, motor vehicles, rubber tires, other rubber manufactures, exposed motion picture films, radios, patent and proprietary medicines, toilet preparations, coal, tobacco products, fresh and preserved fruits, jams, pickels, beer, hardware, clocks, stationery, sports goods, leather, haberdashery and wearing apparel. In the case of motor vehicles, patent and proprietary medicines, rubber goods and stationery, licenses are to be required also for imports from empire sources.

Eight days ago France was invaded. The Fatherland is in danger.

"The first of my duties is to tell the truth to the Senate and the country about the military events and the present situation.

"You know that the fortifications which protect the country are divided into two parts: The Maginot Line, which runs from Basle to Longwy on the Luxembourg frontier, and a lighter line of fortifications, from Longwy to the sea.

"The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg having been invaded, the left wing of the French army left its fortifications between Sedan and the sea and pivoting on Sedan went forward to a line between Sedan and Antwerp and even to Bois le Duc in the Netherlands.

Mistake on Meuse

"Confronted with this situation, which he had foreseen and provided for, the enemy launched a formidable attack against the hinge of the French army which was behind the Meuse between Sedan and Namur.

"The Meuse, which is in appearance a difficult river, had been mistakenly considered as a serious obstacle to the enemy.

"For that reason the French divisions which had been charged with its defense were not numerous and were spread out along a great length of river bank.

"Moreover the troops of the army of (General) Corap, which were in position there, were less solidly officered and less well trained, the best troops having been sent on the wing which advanced into Belgium.

"While it is true that the Meuse is a river which appears difficult it is precisely because it is sinuous enclosed, and wooded that it is difficult to defend. Flanking fire by machineguns is impossible there. On the other hand, infiltration by manuvering troops is easy.

"To that should be added that over half of the infantry divisions of the Corap army had not yet reached the Meuse although it had the shortest movement to make, being nearest the pivot. That is not all. Through unbelievable faults which will be punished, bridges over the Meuse were not destroyed. Across these bridges the Panzer (German armored divisions passed to the attack preceded by fighting planes which attacked our scattered, badly-organized, badly-trained divisions. You understand now the disaster, the total disorganization, of the Corap army.

"It was in that way that the hinge of the French army was forced.

Breach in Front

"When I arrived at the Ministry of War the day before yesterday I was joined by Marshal Petain and General Weygand and we found this situation:

"A breach of 110 kilometers (62 miles) wide had been opened in our front. Through this breach a German army, composed of armored divisions followed by motorized divisions, had poured and after opening a large pocket in the direction of Paris was turning toward the west and the sea, taking in the rear our whole system of fortifications along the Franco-Belgian frontier and threatening the Allied forces still engaged in Belgium, to whom the order to retire had not been given until the evening of May 15.

"The day before yesterday the armored divisions had reached the line of Le Quesnoy, Cambrai, Peronne and the Somme, at Ham.

"In these last 48 hours the German advance has continued. This morning, at 8 o'clock, (2 a. m. E. S. T.), the high command informed me that Arras and Amiens were occupied and even that a bridgehead had been established at Amiens, south of the Somme.

A New Conception

"How did we get into that position?

"The moral value of our army is not to be questioned. The fighting which took place in Belgium during the first days proves it.

"The truth is that our classic conception of warfare has run counter to a new conception. The basis of this (new) conception is not only in the massive use of armored divisions and of fighting airplanes. It is in the disorganization of the enemy rear by deep raids by parachutists, who in the Netherlands just failed to capture The Hague and who in Belgium seized the most powerful fort of Liege. I shall not mention false news and orders given by installed telephones to the civilian authorities, provoking precipitate evacuations.

"The Senate will understand that of all the efforts at recovery which are essential the first is of an intellectual order. We must consider the character of this new war which is being waged against us and take immediate decisions.

Not the First Surprise

"This surprise is not the first that we have known and overcome in the course of our history.

"At the outset of the last war we knew the weakness which resulted from our lack of heavy artillery. We suffered from our lack of machine guns. We had the dreadful surprise of the treacherous arm of gas. And yet we answered back, we adapted ourselves, we ended by dominating.

"It will be the same today if everyone wills it, if every soldier understands the immense role he is playing, if everyone of these workers who is now working 12 hours a day bends to his lathe with passionate energy, if every man and woman understands the grandeur of the hour in which we are living.

"Abroad they are beginning to understand. There are far away millions of men and women and children who are beginning to understand that what is happening affects them and their children.

Petain and Weygand

"Let them not come to this understanding too late.

"In the misfortunes of our country we are proud to think that two of her children who had the right to rest on their laurels have come back in this tragic hour to the service of the country—Petain and Weygand.

"Petain, the victor of Verdun, the great leader who knew how to be humane, the man who knows how a French victory may be dragged from the depths.

"Weygand, Foch's man who stopped the German rush when the front was broken in 1918 and who knew how to change destiny and lead us to victory.

"I thank them both in the name of France.

"Gen. Weygand yesterday took over his command. He is today on the battlefield. The direction of the military operations depends on him alone. What I want to tell the Senate is that with regard to the plan for the conduct of the war there is between Marshal Petain, Gen. Weygand and myself complete agreement of ideas.

"We have begun an enterprise of public safety.

"The government has already taken its decision. You know its first acts.

"No weakness will be tolerated.

"Death is inadequate punishment for any error against the vital interests of the country.

Private Interests Silenced

"While our soldiers are dying there will be no more dilatory procedure against the traitors, the defeatists and the cowards.

"Private interest has no longer any right to speak.

"Let us rise to the height of the misfortunes of our country.

"I have told you the truth because it alone can save us in giving us the strength to act.

"Have confidence in the great leader who has taken command of the armies. Have confidence in the soldier of France. He will be worthy of his ancestors.

"France Cannot Die"

"Our airmen are covering themselves with glory.

"And may I be permitted to thank the admirable Royal Air Force for the complete help which it is giving France both on the battlefield and against the enemy's sources of supply.

"These two great peoples, these two empires linked as one in a great bond cannot be defeated. France cannot die.

"As for myself if you tell me that tomorrow only a miracle can save France I shall reply: I believe in miracles because I believe in France."

Molotoff Cool To Curtailment Of Nazi Trade

To Continue Dealing With Both Belligerents, Russia Tells Britain

By the Associated Press

Moscow, May 21.—Tass, the Soviet news agency, said tonight Premier Molotoff has informed Great Britain that Russia "cannot subordinate the trade policy of the U. S. S. R. to the war aims of any foreign state" in connection with new British-Russian trade negotiations.

Foreign trade both with belligerents and neutrals on the basis of principles of complete equality of parties and reciprocity of obligations," Molotoff said.

Britain has sought to limit Russian trade with Germany in seeking a trade agreement with Moscow. In this connection Moltoff stated:

"The Soviet government notes that the very fact that the British government has raised for discussion questions coming solely under the competence of the Soviet government does not testify to the desire of the British government to conduct trade negotiations with the U. S. S. R."

British Held Responsible

The Soviet gave new assurances, however, that proposed imports from Britain were intended for its own requirements and not for re-export to Germany.

British explanations concerning the detention of two Soviet freighters, Selenga and Mayakovsky, which were seized by the British several weeks ago and taken to Far Eastern ports, were termed not "convincing." The Soviet said it was holding Britain responsible, even though the freighters in question have been turned over to French jurisdiction.

In a review of the trade discussions, Tass said the Soviet Ambassador in London, Ivan Maisky, on April 29 had replied to British feelers by declaring that Russia "has traded and will trade with both belligerents and neutrals, being guided by its own requirements," and "observes and will observe" its trade agreement with Germany.

Questions Submitted

In reply, Tass said, British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, instead of concrete proposals for a trade agreement, submitted a number of questions which sought to learn the exact status of exchange of materials between Russia and Germany.

If the European war is of long duration, the "time factor" favors the Allies because of their huge resources, raw materials and the economic backing of the United States," Trud, organ of the Russian Trade Unions, declared today.

"The productive capacity of the American steel industry," it said, "is twice as much as Germany's . . . a war of exhaustion, prolonged for years, would serve in the Allies' favor."

Hitherto the Soviet press has been unanimous in predicting that the outcome of the war would be favorable to Germany.

Greek Generals Confer

Athens, May 21 (AP).—Dictator George Metaxas conferred tonight with his council generals, then went to see the king.

It was assumed defense measures were discussed in the light of the present Mediterranean situation.

The Greek-Albanian frontier remained open.

Officials said they had no reason to believe attack from Italian "protected" Albania was imminent but that the Greek public, strongly pro-Ally, was dismayed by the news from the western front. Considerable tension was evident.

Women Flee Gibraltar

Gibraltar, May 21 (AP).—Women and children of Gibraltar began to leave for French Morocco today under a compulsory scheme of transfer.

An official announcement said, however, there was "no need for anxiety" over the intentions of Spain, which "has reiterated her strict neutrality."

Italy, Germany Study Outlook For Colonies

Mussolini Discusses Future With Nazi Territorial Expert

By the Associated Press

Rome, May 21.—Premier Mussolini and Germany's colonial expert, Gen. Ritter von Epp, held a long talk today, presumably on the outlook for colonial expansion of Italy and Germany, while Italians awaited a call to arms.

Nothing was disclosed as to the conversation, but foreign circles said the outlook for expansion in the war or afterward naturally would be discussed at least in general terms.

The country's newspapers reported the country merely was awaiting Il Duce's orders to go into action as blackouts and air-raid drills in Rome, the munitions center of Terni, 45 miles northeast, and the northern cities of Milan, Turin and Genoa made it appear the country was preparing to enter the war.

Blue Lights Return

Blue lights on Rome's street lights reappeared as if by magic tonight, for the first time since last September when they were removed as a sign of Italy's nonbelligerency.

Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper Il Telegrafo, wrote that it is obvious that "the hour is near in which our influence on the course of events must become more active."

When Italy does move, he said, one of her objectives will be "territorial increases."

"Too Late," Says Ansaldo

Although Britain and France undoubtedly would react differently to Italian aspirations than they did eight months ago, Ansaldo declared it is "too late."

He emphasized that the choice of the actual moment for Italy to move is up to Il Duce.

The British, nevertheless, pressed efforts to reach a trade arrangement with the Italians. Principal difficulty in the trade negotiations has been Britain's determination not to allow Italy to build up raw material stocks which might be useful in war.

Susquehanna Bridge Work In Final Stages

Havre de Grace, Md., May 21 (AP). Construction work on the new Susquehanna Bridge here moved into the final stages today and State Roads Commission engineers predicted all of the structural steel would be in by the end of the week.

Concrete has been laid on about one-fourth of the steel grid flooring which, itself, is approximately 60 per cent completed.

Toll booths and the administration building are 80 per cent finished and 10 per cent of the electrical work, involving navigation lights, lights on the piers, and wiring of the booths and administration building has been done.

About 1,200 feet of one 12-foot lane of the bridge approaches has been paved and painters are already at work on the steel superstructure.

Chicory Ads Hid German War Plans

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).—Chicory—the wartime substitute for coffee—indirectly contributed to Holland's collapse under German invasion, Miss Charlotte Cook wrote her parents here from Paris.

Nazi "fifth column" agents concealed code messages giving instructions for German troops" under chicory advertisements posted on walls and billboards. In Holland, Miss Cook said in a letter airmailed from Paris last Tuesday.

Miss Cook, 22, is a graduate of Western Maryland College.

The letter was received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Cook, of Baltimore, today.

Germans Push on to Build Trap for Half Million Allies

fantrymen relentlessly pushing after the enemy.

Where we stood English artillery observers had been only a day before. Thus quickly do the fortunes of war change in this area.

[An International News Service correspondent watching the engagement said the British troops retreated in the direction of Ypres, and that the Germans immediately threw pontoons across the Scheldt and moved on to capture Courtrai, 30 miles from the coast at Ostend.

[This correspondent said German troops had entered Ghent, 30 miles northwest of Courtrai, but were forced to withdraw under heavy fire.]

More Troops Move in

We had threaded our way with the stench of putrid cadavers of horses and cows in our nostrils, with abandoned tanks, motorized guns and horse-drawn French artillery scattered here and there.

All day and night battalion after battalion of German infantry and artillery had been pouring into this section from conquered sections of Belgium and there was many a halt before we could move out again in the midst of vehicles moving in three columns.

At noon we had been with the man who bears the responsibility for this action, namely Von Reichenau.

At 3 o'clock this morning he had moved into new headquarters, this time into a delightful seventeenth century modernized chateau at Enghien, property of the Duke of Arenburg.

Greeting us warmly on the terrace, he observed that until now the German troops had not encountered the main body of the Allies.

"We are facing the future with utmost confidence." Von Reichenau said.

"This is no mere phrase. But we have no illusions.

"We have not yet come into direct contact with the Allied main forces. That's why we do not propose to claim victory prematurely.

"We know we have completely offset plans of our enemies for present operations and we also know we are bound to win in the end."

Von Reichenau declined firmly to make any prophecy regarding the duration of the war.

"I pride myself on never yet having had to take back any report I have made to my superior," he said. "That was true of the World War of 1914 and 1918 and I want it to be true also this time.

"I report only what I absolutely know. I hope that after what you yourself have seen you will agree our high command reports are accurate."

Von Reichenau, who often switched from German to perfect English during the conversation, spoke with the greatest adoration of Adolf Hitler.

"He not only is the political leader of the Reich he also in truth is the supremest commander of the Reich's armed forces. I talk to him every day. He knows just where every army is operating."

GEN. WALTER VON REICHENAU,

British Without Planes

With the German Army on the Western Front, May 21 (U.P.).—The British army in western Belgium apparently is without support of airplanes to challenge Germany's terrifying dive-bombers.

Col. Gen. von Reichnau said today he was "amazed" at the lack of any real British strength in the air.

He said he traveled about 125 miles a day along the front and had yet to see a British air attack.

Two bombs were dropped last night near his headquarters, he told us in a matter-of-fact way, but "not near enough to awaken me."

Asked whether he believed the British had any planes available for counter blows in the air, he said:

"The English might be holding them back for a decisive showdown." He said the British and Belgians had two army corps drawn up opposite him (perhaps 250,000 troops on the basis of six divisions to an army corps).

Text of Duff Cooper's Speech

London, May 21 (AP) Via Radio). Following is the text of the speech broadcast tonight by Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information:

Last week I warned you to be prepared for bad news and asked you to meet it as bravely as our troops are meeting the attacks of the enemy. Well, the news today is grave. It is no good pretending that it isn't.

There is no cause for serious alarm, still less for panic. In employment of a new technique, small bodies of the German army have succeeded in penetrating to great distances, but that they are small bodies only and the successes that they have achieved involves them in fearful danger.

The army of Great Britain and the far greater army of France are still there. They are neither in retreat nor have they suffered heavy losses. It is bad enough to understand what has taken place at a battle after it is over; it is quite impossible to understand what is happening while it is still going on.

Armies Are Undefeated

The fog of war hangs over the vast area where the conflicting forces are engaged. Flashes of news come out of it from time to time, and they are subsequently contradicted or confirmed. We heard that one vantage point has been gained, another lost, another regained, and out of these sparse scraps of news imagination is inclined to build vast structures of conjectures.

Three facts alone can be definitely stated:

First, that the present objective of the enemy is the Channel ports from which they hope to launch war upon this island.

Second, that small parts of the mechanized troops have succeeded in eluding their opponents, in advancing great distances, and coming near to their objective.

Third, that the armies of France and Great Britain are undefeated.

In enormously superior numbers they (Allies) occupy the battlefield and the counter-attack, when it comes, should prove formidable. The swaying fortunes of the fight matter little; it is the end of the battle that counts, and, as I told you last week, the end of this battle, whatever it may be, cannot entail the defeat of Great Britain or France in the war.

"We Are All Soldiers"

Meanwhile, it is the old story which has been told again and again, but which, nevertheless, always comes as a surprise to everyone. By the unexpected character of the attack, the initial gains are greater than were anticipated. It is the story of August, 1914, and of March, 1918, and let us hope that it will find the same ending as those stories found.

Meanwhile, it is for each one of us to play our part. The battle is being fought so close to our shores that each and every one of us is taking part in it; therefore, we are all soldiers and as such we must acquit ourselves.

The first quality of a soldier is courage, the quality in which I am confident we shall not be found lacking.

Let me repeat to you the warning I gave the other day against the danger of rumor. I experienced such a good example of it myself this afternoon. I was told by a perfectly reliable and truthful reporter that the prime minister of France had said that nothing but a miracle could save his country.

I could hardly believe that so brave a fighter as M. Paul Reynaud said anything of the sort, and indeed when I came to read the full account of what he had said I found that he had said something quite different.

Inflexible Determination

His message was one of superb confidence. He firmly announced his faith that nothing could defeat the united forces of his country and the British Empire, and added that if today or some subsequent day any faint-hearted person were to come to him and say nothing but a miracle could save France, he would feel confident that a miracle could be performed, because he had faith in the salvation of France.

I think that these grave events will act, indeed as they have already acted, as a tonic to the nation. I find wherever I go, the calm spirit of inflexible determination.

The House of Commons this afternoon was a very different assembly from what it was before Whitsun. It reminded me of the words of Macaulay: "Then none were for a party; then all were for the state."

Our own party differences, which have so often been so bitter in the past and may be so in the future, have been laid aside as playthings for which we have no longer any use; something of so much greater importance has taken place.

There is only one sentiment in the House. It was a united House of Commons, united as perhaps it never has been, the danger is so great and so close.

I do not believe there is one member of that great assembly who does not love his country more than all beside. We were all, I am sure, impressed by one passage in the prime minister's speech last Sunday. You remember he said: "If the bombs begin to fall on our own soil, we will have at least the gratification of knowing that for every one that falls here, there will be one less to be hurled at our troops, to be hurled on soldiers and sailors and airmen."

It is that fact that gives us the high privilege of calling them our comrades.

You remember the splendid close of Henry V's speech before the Battle of Agincourt, when he was reproaching his staff for expressing the wish that some of the idle people in England could be present to assist them in the coming battle. He said that the contrary was his opinion, that the fewer men, the greater share of honor, and he concluded:

And gentlemen in England, now a-bed
Shall think themselves accurs'd they were not here.
And hold their manhoods cheap whiles any speaks
That fought with us upon St. Crispin's day.

"We Are All One"

These things are all changed in our century. Neither gentlemen nor ladies who will shortly be going to bed, neither hold their manhood or womanhood cheap, because, as I have said, we are all one, and all engaged in the great battle. We here behind the lines must play our part as worthily as those who are keeping watch tonight in the front lines, or those who may spring to the attack at dawn tomorrow.

Let them feel, let them know, that behind their steady lines and stalwart hearts, there exists the vast reserve of a calm, a faithful, and a united people.

British Vow To Hold Coast At All Costs

protect channel ports, beyond which, a scant 30 miles away, are England and the Britons' homes.

With their feet planted in the soil hallowed by generations of warring sires, the Britons appear to have but one hand left to play.

This is a counterattack from the British on the north and the French on the south in the region of St. Quentin and Cambrai, which, if successful, would recover the old British line and wipe out the salient.

The invaders, following their precept of divide and conquer, command the situation. They can check the British in the north and turn on the French in the south, or they can lay siege to the British lines with their superior numbers, armament and aviation, and attempt to wipe out the grim line of khaki that stands once more with its back to the wall.

Machine Guns Hold Town

All along the British line there was hot fighting. In Arras there was fierce battling in the streets—one of the war's heaviest actions yet.

The British sifted through the narrow cobblestone streets with machine guns to hold this town, center of a railway network that reaches into central France and Belgium, and also center of vital French coal mines.

But the German mechanized forces screened the German infantry masses, and Arras fell.

Raiding German planes undoubtedly were aided by spies who worked with parachute troops, signaled fliers at night, gathered military information and spread untrue tales of disaster.

All a parachutist needs, in order to appear as a refugee, are tattered clothes and a forged identification card.

The British are handicapped in attempting to hold their line by lack of prepared battle positions and gun emplamcements with which to smash the armored Nazis.

Against waves of Nazi tanks and armored cars they are throwing flying columns of infantry in trucks and a few tanks while their Blenheims swoop low and plaster the German motorized sections with explosives.

The B. E. F.'s withdrawal—which was not due to its own failure—was a stubborn, rearguard operation carried out under bomb and shell by night and day. The Tommies got sleep and food when they could and were hindered by thousands of terrified refugees.

"Their Tails Are Up"

But still they were saying today, as I left, "let's have a crack at that —— Hitler."

In their own language, "their tails are up."

I know something of the punishment the British went through.

As I walked along an old cobblestone street on a soft May night "it" started—the sky was lighted up by searchlights, and I saw a plane dropping bombs on what probably was a storage dump.

The German pulled up, as he always does, to about 20,000 feet, his motor purposely nonsynchronized to confuse the British listening apparatus and sounding like a huge mosquito in a dark room.

I went to bed. I do not know how long I was asleep before I was awakened by a thump on the wall behind my head.

Two holes had been made by machine-gun bullets from a German plane strafing an antiaircraft battery on the bluff behind the house.

"I went away from there."

A moment later, as I groped for the door, another German bomber, diving, let three 500-pounders go hardly 100 yards away.

The terrific concussion knocked me flat.

I left the building amid falling plaster and broken windows, the hideous noise of clanging army ambulances and the screams of some wounded.

That went on the rest of the night. A dozen times I heard that whistle which precedes the bursting of a bomb.

Crouched in a shelter I heard the clang of bursting bombs on the roof.

Not until 4 a. m. did the last German bomber leave. When he did go he left the town and its people shaken.

Committee Kills Hatch Act Curb On Press Powers

The House Judiciary Committee, it was learned yesterday, has defeated an amendment to the Hatch antipolitics bill which would require newspapers to cease "political activity" if they take advantage of the special postal rates for publications.

Since virtually all newspapers use the special rates, the effect would have been to require newspapers to quit expressing political opinions or forfeit the lower postage.

Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama, introduced the amendment.

The main provision of the measure as passed by the Senate would forbid political activity on the part of any person "who exercises any function in connection with" a State or local government, if any of his or her salary comes from Federal funds. The House committee voted to change this to any person "whose principal employment is" working for a State or locality.

Laon Base Used By Big Berthas

Paris, May 21 (U.P.).—French evacuation of Laon, textile city 80 miles northwest of Paris, today recalled that it was from a wood near Laon that the Germans in 1918 shelled Paris with their "Big Bertha" gun.

It has been rumored that Adolf Hitler has built several huge guns of still greater range than the famed "Big Bertha" and shelling of Paris again would not surprise the French.

Allied Army Is Isolated, Berlin Says

circles. German domination of the River Somme all the way down to the coast sharply reduces the liberty of movement for the Allies. From the east the German center is mercilessly squeezing the adversary through Arras. In the northern branch of the pincer in the River Scheldt sector in the vicinity of Ghent, the Belgians are still offering valorous resistance, but this is likely to turn out to be in vain, collapsing at any moment, the Germans predict.

But so long as the Belgians can hold out up there it would be too early to say the last phase of this war had already begun, in the opinion of qualified neutral observers.

As seen from here, the Allied position is not altogether hopeless so long as Italy remains out of the fray. The French front, stretching from the Somme estuary by Abbeville, Amiens and Soissons south to Rethel and Montmedy, is substantially shorter, and the French have a better chance to hold, even if France must hold it alone.

Neutral military experts here say that only news of Italy's entry on the side of Germany would signify that the French situation has grown hopeless, but in the absence of such news, France must be conceded to have a chance, at least to hold on, or even a shade better than that. England's prospects are viewed from here as less bright.

Germans Expand Grip

The Reich troops in Abbeville, closing the sack of the Channel port sector, it is said here, are composed not only of light tank vanguard but of strong motorized units, by now supported by numerous infantry, well able to hold and expand their grip down there.

The advance of German tanks detachments, it is said, has been so rapid that the French had no time to blow up some of their vital bridges across the Somme River.

The Belgians, stubbornly holding what remains of their country, were again paid tribute by the Germans for the valor of their defense, in which they were aided by some French units who are desperately trying to save whatever can be saved at this crucial stage.

In the Valenciennes salient, which the Germans now liken to the Polish campaign's Kutno battle, they claim to have driven a disastrous wedge into the French army, dividing it into two parts—one now in the forest north of the city and the other in the woods southeast of Valenciennes.

Similar to what happened in Poland, the Germans here were able to detach numerous Belgo-French detachments from their main body, encircling each unit separately. It was in one of these sacks that the French Gen. Giraud and his staff was captured.

British Threaten Near

Berlin, May 21 (AP).—The German armies of the west tonight made their death threat to England one of the immediate hour.

In a vast "encirclement within encirclement" maneuver, which Germans estimated had trapped a million soldiers of the French, British and Belgian armies, Hitler's armored men on the twelfth of their great offensive swept westward over Arras and Amiens and reached Abbeville.

With the Allies in the north fighting what Germans proclaimed as "the battle of desperation," the German advance southward toward Paris appeared moving on schedule.

Reports from the field said the Eiffel Tower was clearly visible to the advance troops who moved south from Laon 12 miles to reach the Oise-Aisne Canal and, 40 miles to the east, completed the occupation of Rethel. At their point farthest south, the Germans thus are about 60 miles from Paris, in the northeast.

Ready to Battle British

The plunge from the Cambrai-Peronne front to Abbeville, 70 miles from the English coast, was said to have put the German army in position for a battle to destroy the British expeditionary force.

The massed German air force now is bombing the seaports of Zeebrugge and Ostend, Belgium, and Calais and Boulogne, in France, above Abbeville, to cut off this path of escape.

Then comes England's turn, the press warned.

240 Miles Since May 9

At several points past the furthermost penetration of the imperial German armies during the World War, the German troops now are declared by military sources to have raced a total of 240 miles since they crossed the Belgian frontier May 9.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

U. S. Navy Silent On Report Ships On Way to Lisbon

The Navy Department declined to comment yesterday on reports that a second United States squadron was due to arrive in Lisbon soon. The department explained that all news of the movements of naval vessels had been rigidly restricted since the start of the war last September and the inauguration of a neutrality patrol.

There was speculation, however, that more ships might be on the way to evacuate Americans.

Secretary of State Hull reported yesterday that despite repeated official warnings Americans in Europe have been slow to flee the dangers of war.

Americans in England have been urged to go to Ireland, and those in western Europe to go to Bordeaux, France, or to Spanish or Portuguese ports.

None has gone to Ireland, Hull said, and only 75 have reached Bordeaux, so far as he has heard. This, he indicated, lessened the likelihood of sending a special refugee ship to Bordeaux and made it possible the Americans there would be transported to some Mediterranean city at which an American vessel could be made more easily available.

Peru's Tokyo Minister Lauds U.S. Preparedness

San Francisco, May 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt's preparedness plan was described today by Ricardo Riveria Schrieber, Peruvian minister to Japan, as "an investment in the peace and safety of the entire Western Hemisphere."

Britain Prepares For Nazi Invasion penalty for the treachery bill to combat "fifth column" activities.

Lord Beaverbrook, newly appointed minister of aircraft production, appealed to all employes of airplane factories to work full speed throughout the next two week-ends.

Churchill, after the first session of the House of Commons attended with his new ministers, was received in audience at Buckingham Palace by King George.

Allies "Still There"

Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, acknowledged last night the "grave" news of German successes, but told the people:

"The army of Great Britain and the far greater army of France are still there!"

He added that the Allies "are undefeated," but warned that "the present objective of the enemy is the Channel ports from which they hope to launch war upon this island. . .

"In enormously superior numbers they (Allies) occupy the battlefield and the counterattack, when it comes, should prove formidable. The swaying fortunes of the fight matter little; it is the end of the battle that counts . . . the end of this battle, whatever it may be, cannot entail the defeat of Great Britain or France in the war."

He insisted there was "no cause for serious alarm, still less for panic,' although it was "no good pretending" that the news was not bad.

The air ministry announced British bombers had been "continuously engaged" over the French and Belgian fronts throughout yesterday.

It reported repeated British aerial forays Monday also in the embattled northern French regions of Arras, St. Quentin and Cambrai, especially on German armored columns and troop concentrations.

Five Blenheim bombers, it acknowledged, failed to return.

An earlier communique said that on Monday heavy bombing attacks were made by R. A. F. aircraft on the enemy's lines of communication and troop concentrations immediately behind the fighting fronts . . . The attacks were continued during the night. In a night raid on Rotterdam oil tanks were bombed and set on fire."

The navy, on which the first shock of any lightning attack would fall, disclosed the loss of the 9,550-ton cruiser Effingham and the minelayer Princess Victoria with 84 men and officers feared lost. The Effingham, first cruiser officially listed by the British as lost, was said to have gone down after striking a rock off Norway.

To add to the picture, an authorized spokesman said four British merchant ships totaling 8,955 tons, one Allied vessel of 316 tons and three neutral ships totaling 5,737 tons had been sunk "by enemy action" in the week ended May 12.

The admiralty spokesman, however, said no British transports or tankers had been sunk in the Dover straits on Monday night. A German communique claimed six transports and tankers totaling 43,000 tons had been sunk.

Far more reassuring to the average Briton than the statement that "the B. E. F. is fighting on positions assigned" to it was the faith in the navy as a bulwark against invasion.

This first line of defense against any attempted German blitz blow is Britain's home fleet with bases at Devonport, Chatham and Portsmouth, skirting the channel.

Even without many wartime auxiliaries, the home fleet is three times as large as the entire German navy and is supplied with antisubmarine and antiaircraft ships. The admiralty in addition has called for all privately owned small craft of more than 30 feet to aid in coastal defense.

The naval craft are backed up by coastal defense batteries around the whole of Britain.

To fight invasion from the air Britain has hundreds of fighter planes based on the islands, a network of antiaircraft batteries and a nation-wide organization of civilian defense in the air raid precautions system.

U. S. Not Preparing For War, Asserts Gen. Johnson

St. Louis, May 21 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson declared today the United States is not preparing for war and probably will not get ready for war at the rate it should.

The former member of the World War Industries Board, in an interview, conceded Washington officials had commendable plans for defense but asserted they didn't know how to get factories into production to make the necessary equipment.

If he were asked to prepare the Nation's defense, Johnson said: "The first thing I'd do would be to call the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, knock their heads together and tell them they were playing on the same team."

He criticized the Administration's plan for 50,000 planes as ridiculous, explaining planes became obsolete in 18 months, and said the real need was to build up productive capacity.

Einstein Asks U. S. Aid for Allies

Princeton, N. J., May 21.—Eighteen of Princeton University's leading scientists, including Albert Einstein, wired President Roosevelt today urging immediate assistance to the nations now opposing "totalitarian aggression." The message was in answer to a resolution recently sent to the President by 500 members of the Association of Scientific Workers asking support of all programs which seek to preserve peace in the United States.

"We believe," the message said, "that the interests of the United States as well as those of civilization everywhere are placed in imminent danger by totalitarian aggression and that our best national defense consists in assistance to those forces which are now opposing this aggression."

Citizens Flee Paris by Train and Auto

The war ministry spokesman said he believed the French still held Abbeville itself, but that "I can give no official confirmation."

German motorcycle units thrust along roads to the west of Arras and Amiens behind advance bombardments and machine gunning from Nazi planes.

Other roads radiating from the French towns, filled with refugees, were reported strafed by the Germans from the air.

Amiens and Arras were enveloped in flames by the time they were reached by German motorized elements of 3,000 to 4,000 men each.

After their fall, the French said the front became "extremely confused."

The Germans unleashed their full blast of destruction as they neared the sea. Towns, villages and fields were reported burning.

The Allies called upon all the force they could muster. The high command announced that dive bombers had been taken from the fleet to harass the German land columns, in cooperation with scouting and bomber formations.

At the close of the twelfth day of the German offensive, the Western Front ran nearly 400 miles from Belgium, south through Arras and Amiens, then east along the Aisne River to Montmedy and down the Maginot Line to Switzerland.

The Germans turned most of their power to the west, racing to cut off the Allied armies falling back from Belgium into northern France but persisting also in attacks on the Aisne River front toward Paris, less than 100 miles to the south.

The French had withdrawn from Laon, on the southern edge of the Nazi "bulge" into France.

Champagne in Blackout

Sections such as the great Champs Elyssees, running from the Place de la Concorde in the heart of the city, were almost deserted.

Along the boulevards, however, sidewalk cafes were full of people sipping coffee or champagne in the shadowy light of blacked-out windows.

Orchestras played gay music in the brightly lighted interiors.

It was almost impossible to find taxis. Bus service was suspended several days ago. (37 words censored).

Subway trains were almost the only means of transportation. (4 lines censored).

Policemen Push Trucks

At the Austerlitz station policemen in steel helmets were pushing hand trucks piled with refugee luggage.

Red Cross nurses and doctors were in attendance on every train helping mothers care for their children. Many of these children had been standing in the trains since nightfall and were faced with an all-night ride to the south of France.

Remodeling Rules Urged To Halt Fires

Petworth Citizens Ask Permit Plan; Group Also Seeks Paving of Upshur St.

Seeking to prevent fires like the one which damaged historic St. Peter's Catholic Church March 28, the Petworth Citizens Association called last night for regulations making a permit from the fire marshal necessary for reconditioning or reconstructing any District building.

The church fire has been attributed by a Fire Department official to a blow torch being used by roof painters who were renovating the edifice.

The association also adopted a resolution urging the paving of Upshur street between Kansas avenue and Fourteenth street and planting of shade trees on both sides. The proposed improvements to the street, described in the resolution as "long neglected," are aimed at beautifying surroundings of the Petworth Branch Library, the Powell Elementary School, the Roosevelt High School and the site of the new Wilson Teachers' College.

Another resolution favored enlargement of the District police force by 100 men.

The association appropriated $25 for the Central Union Mission.

New members admitted last night brought the organization's total membership to 1,276.

Those accepted were A. O. Mellington, Mrs. J. W. Burch, Mrs. C. B. Boyd, Francis Harding, Mrs. Jessie Worch, Mrs. J. J. Gorman, L. P. Satterfield, Mrs. Kate W. Embrey, Mrs. Katherine M. Vogel, Mrs. C. V. Weakley, W. E. Hayes, W. F. Raymond, John P. Kirlin, Foster A. Ellis, J. C. Dallanger, R. S. Pohlen, Mrs. Bessie M. Alberding, G. W. Mehefelt, Mrs. Cora Compers, Mrs. E. L. Benner, Stanley P. Simpson, L. J. Jones, Mrs. G. Korth, B. M. Bassford, Henry C. Yates, S. G. Lineker, William H. Lanham and William Powers.

Columbia Heights

The Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights last night urged "the leading financial institutions" of Washington not to negotiate real estate loans which would be used to place "residents of one race into sections predominantly owned and used by persons of another race."

The association held its final meeting of the spring season in the Powell Junior High School.

The resolution instructed the president of the forum to send copies to "selected financial institutions, the Real Estate Board of the District" and other interested organizations.

The forum heard Serge N. Benson, a member of the Community Chest speakers bureau, present an illustrated lecture on the work of Chest agencies. The slides showed "before and after" pictures of many neighborhoods aided by the Chest.

Peacock Funeral To Be Tomorrow In Arlington

Funeral services for William Peacock, jr., 46, former Washington resident who discovered a process permitting mass production of mirrors, will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be Arlington Cemetery. He died Monday at his home in Philadelphia.

Born in Glasboro, N. J., Mr. Peacock came to Washington at the age of three. He attended Technical High school and the University of Maryland. In the World War he served as an ensign in the Navy, then settled in Philadelphia.

He founded the Peacock Laboratories, Inc., there and was president of the company. Surviving are his wife, and two daughters, Mrs. Lila Zaimes and Miss Helen Peacock, both of Middletown, N. Y.

There are also four sisters and a brother in Washington: Mrs. Natalie Haripon, Mrs. Katherine Stahl, Mrs. Isabel Beadle, Mrs. Ruth Hagerty, and Samuel Peacock. The body is at V. L. Spear's funeral home, 1009 H street northwest.

Montgomery Jury Indicts Eleven; 2 in Steer Theft

A Montgomery County grand jury, in session at Rockville, Md., yesterday, indicted 11 persons.

William J. Steinbaugh and Garlon Lee Goble were indicted for larceny of $175 from a Bethesda delivery boy after allegedly telling him they were Secret Service operatives; Allen D. Scheaffer and John H. Haines, were indicted for larceny of a steer.

Indicted for assault with intent to rob a Washington cab driver were Lawrence W. Van Arsdall and William J. Reed, and Claris K. Krooler was accused of embezzlement. Other indictments charged Floyd Turner with rape and assault; Clifford Sikes, rape; John Henry Walker, colored, rape, and Jasper Stotts, perversion.

Edgemoor Citizens Oppose Rezoning

Edgmoor Citizens Association last night went on record in opposition to the rezoning of two lots in block 13 on Edgemoor lane for construction of apartments.

At the meeting in the County Building in Bethesda the association planned for representatives to appear before the Montgomery County commissioners at the hearing on the rezoning question. Richard H. Akers, president of the association, was in charge of the meeting, the last before the summer recess.

2 Win Awards For Developing New Iris Types

Mrs. C.H. Popenoe High Scorer in Woodbridge Garden Club Show

A Catholic University professor and a Takoma Park flower fancier yesterday were honored with awards of the American Iris Society for their exhibits of new seedlings at the eighth annual iris show of the Woodbridge Garden Club and the society, held at the Sherwood Presbyterian School, 3202 Twenty-second street northeast.

The awards to Winn T. Simmons, of Takoma Park, and Prof. J. P. Parker signify that, according to American Iris Society experts, their seedlings are worthy of introduction as new varieties of iris.

Winner of the society's silver medal for high point scorer at the show was Mrs. C. H. Popenoe, of Silver Spring. The bronze medal for the runner-up, went to Mrs. Ida McKeown, of Mt. Rainier. Highest score for arrangement was made by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shiner, of Villa Heights, Md., who received a year's subscription to the American Iris Society. An Iris Jellaway plant was presented to C. E. Ross, of Falls Church, Va., for getting the best score for new exhibitors.

Services Tomorrow For Mrs. Corley

Mrs. Anita Regina Corley, wife of Commander William A. Corley, U. S. Navy, retired, died yesterday at her home, 1830 Sixteenth street, after a long illness. She was 47.

Born in New York City, she was married in 1915 and came to Washington the following year. She leaves, besides her husband, her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bray, and a son, William, all of Washington.

Services will be held tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery. The time had not been decided last night.

Capital News In Brief

Senator's Aide Robbed

A mysterious black hand yesterday reached through the living room window at the home of Miss Sadie Snee, secretary to Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, then disappeared. Miss Snee's purse, which was on an end table, disappeared with it, she told police.

She dashed to the window, on the first floor of 1514 Seventeenth street northwest, but the alleyway was empty. Miss Snee told police the purse contained $30 in bills, a diamond ring worth $50 and other valuables worth $4.

Economics of Peace

Dr. Eugene Staley, professor of international economic relations at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, will lead a discussion of "Economics of the Next Peace" here tonight.

He will address the eighteenth general meeting of the Academy of World Economics at 8:15 p. m. in the council chamber of the United States Chamber of Commerce, H street and Connecticut avenue.

Pastor to Tell of Trip

The Rev. George A. Ackerley, assistant pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, will discuss his trip through India at Goodwill Industries chapel services this morning.

The services will be translated into sign language for the benefit of the deaf mute workers of the Industries by Kenneth Huff, of Gallaudet College. This will be the last special service of the season, and will be held at 8:15 a. m. in the Industries auditorium, 1218 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Tuskegee Singers

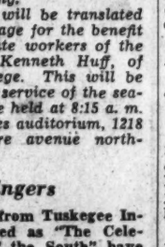
Five singers from Tuskegee Institute, identified as "The Celebrated Sons of the South" have been added to the Camp Letts benefit concert program to be given at 8:30 p. m. today by the Central Y. M. C. A. at 1736 G street northwest.

Juggling the Jug

There was water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink at Oscar Wathen's office yesterday at 1320 F street northwest. Wathen tripped over a doorsill and dropped a 5-gallon jug of drinking water. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for arm cuts.

Elizabeth M. Cox Elected President Of Women's Bar

Elizabeth M. Cox was elected president of the Women's Bar Association last night at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.



MISS COX

Kathryn J. Lawlor was named vice president; Elizabeth V. Franzoni, treasurer; Cecil Mignonae Roeder, recording secretary; Helen Goodner, corresponding secretary, and Helen Carloss Brown Stiles, directors.

The association heard annual reports from all its committees and learned that ten of its members will be delegates to Washington's first judicial conference Friday and Saturday at the Court of Appeals Building.

The conference will discuss speeding up of District Court cases, pretrial procedure, commissioner and assigned counsel in domestic relations cases, defense and sentencing in criminal cases, and the proposed new courthouse.

Delegates are Mrs. Cox, Miss Annabel Matthews, Mrs. Ernest Field Poole, Mrs. Roeder, Mrs. Mabel Benson Sakis, Mrs. Stiles, Miss Catherine L. Vaux, Mrs. Helen P. Reed and Mrs. Olive G. Faircloth.

Lights Sweep Skies as D. C. Militia Parades

Antiaircraft Backdrop For Review of 1,400; Rifle Trophy Presented

With antiaircraft searchlight beams sweeping the skies, 1,400 National Guardsmen passed in review on the Mall last night in a special exhibition.

Highlight of the parade was the presentation of the tri-State trophy to the National Guard rifle team which recently defeated sharpshooters of Virginia and Maryland. Members of the winning team are Maj. Just C. Jensen, Lieut. H. M. Boudinot, Staff Sergt. Harry B. Parsons, Corporal Milton Kurland and Private John Oehmann.

Among the guests of honor were Associate Justices James W. Morris and Bolitha J. Laws of the United States Court for the District; Edward M. Curran, district attorney; Charles H. March, William T. Kelley, and James A. Horton, of the Federal Trade Commission; Heber H. Rice, of the Federal Bar Association; Wilbur L. Gray, of the District Bar Association; John P Colpoys, United States marshal.

24 Are Indicted By District Jury; 4 Others Cleared

Twenty-four persons were accused in 30 indictments presented before Justice F. Dickinson Letts in the District Court yesterday. The grand jury dismissed charges against four persons.

Those indicted were:

Assault with dangerous weapon—Lewis James, 44; Nathan McDonald.

Nonsupport of wife—Frank G. May.

Nonsupport of minor child—Allen H. Artley.

Unauthorized use of automobile—Robert Johnson, 21; colored; Donald J. Mitchell, 20, colored; Horace W. Barnett, 21, colored; Albert W. Krause, 38.

Grand larceny—Tom James Brown, 23, colored; Ursula Coates, 22, colored.

Housebreaking and larceny—Elmer H. Day, 21; George F. Mockabee, 18; John F. Mockabee, 20; Joseph P. Stewart, 21, colored; Leon R. Jolly, 28, colored; James M. Smith, 35.

Forgery and uttering a forgery—Kenneth P. Turnburke, 25.

Having untaxed liquor—Robert Watson, 32, colored; Theopolis A. Miller, 43, colored.

Violating narcotics laws—Jerry J. Cunningham, 43, colored.

Robbery—Howard Action, 45, colored.

The grand jury ignored these charges: Assault with dangerous weapon, Matilda Richardson, 37, colored, and Dorothy Thompson, 18, colored; carnal knowledge, Harry Jackson, 25, colored; homicide, William H. McKenney, 45, who was detained in connection with the death of Raymond Lee St. John, 50, after he was found beaten in his boat on Kingman Lake.

Ad Club Members To Name Officers

The Advertising Club of Washington will elect its officers for the year at a luncheon meeting at noon today in the Raleigh Hotel. Balloting will start at noon.

Nominees are:

President, George B. Burrus; first vice president, F. Reid Wallace and A. D. Willard, jr.; second vice president, Louis D. Krakow; secretary, Charles J. Columbus; treasurer, Allen V. Deford and Ernest S. Johnston.

For director (three to be voted for), Walter D. Barkdull, Crosby Noyes Boyd, N. Ward Guthrie, George P. Kindley, Louis L. Louft, L. Charles Prichard, David B. Stein.

Williams Named Group Chairman

James E. Colliflower, president of the Board of Trade, yesterday announced appointment of Lawrence E. Williams as chairman of the board's new committee on employment and security.

Principal job of the new committee will be to study the District's unemployment compensation tax law, formerly the concern of the board's insurance committee.

Welfare Aide Hits 'Charity Racketeers'

Hyde Tells Meeting 'Number of Such Agencies Are Preying On People' Here

"Charity racketeering seems to be growing rapidly in the District and a number of such agencies are preying on the people," Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., chairman of the family welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies, declared at a welfare meeting last night.

Large sums of money "are being given to organizations that have no right to ask for it, and our reputable agencies are suffering as a result," Harry S. Wender, president of the Southwest Citizens Association, said.

He spoke at a joint conference of representatives from citizens and civic associations and the Council of Social Agencies family welfare division at a dinner at the Y. W. C. A.

Wender said under the liberal laws here, a charity racket can be incorporated, "receive a charter, have a president and vice president" and collect money "without answering to a living soul."

Cooperation Urged

He urged the cooperation of citizens associations and other civic groups in pressing for corrective legislation.

Wender told of an agency which, he said, has a corps of phone solicitors asking persons for $1 for a fund to feed children in Southwest Washington. He said the agency served about ten children a day "with watered macaroni and stale bread." The entire cost of the macaroni could not have come to more than 20 cents a day, and the bread is given by a bakery," he said.

Mrs. Miriam Lovins, chairman of the adjustment committee of the Southwest Children's Council, said neighborhood councils offer an opportunity for the pooling of information in handling child welfare problems.

Recreation Called Cure

"Eighty per cent of the children referred to our adjustment committee have a serious enough health problem to account for their maladjustment," she declared.

George E. Dieffenbach from the Chevy Chase Citizens Association raised the question of what a community could do about vandalism by children.

Hugo Wolter, recreation secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, answered by saying that "children who have adequate recreation facilities do not tend to get into difficulties of this nature."

The conference of approximately 50 persons voted to continue to hold such meetings in the fall. Last night's session was the second of its kind, the first having been held in March.

Mrs. H. O. Craver, of Petworth Citizens Association, told of a family that the organization had been helping while both father and mother were disabled for a time. Mrs. Helen Martin, of the public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare, in commenting on the case, stressed the value of "such neighborliness," especially when relief funds of public and private agencies are limited.

Imaginary Case Presented

The Rev. Harry V. Porter, pastor of Westminster Memorial Church, made a series of imaginary telephone calls from the head table to present the case of a family needing medical care. Miss Gertrude H. Bowling, executive of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, praised his procedure in beginning with a call to the Social Service Exchange, to see what agencies already had served that family and thus to avoid duplication.

Maj. Charles Dodd, of the Salvation Army, discussed the agencies to which a transient might be referred here. Robert Eaves, of the Mid-City Citizens Association, spoke briefly on child welfare.

Hyde presided at the dinner, at which reservations were made by representatives of Manor Park, Burroughs, Takoma, Columbia Heights, and Stanton Park Citizens Associations, Sixteenth Street Heights Association, Progressive Citizens Association, East Central Civic and Deanwood Civic Associations.

W. O. Hiltabidle To Quit as Aide Of Chest Director

The resignation of W. O. Hiltabidle as administrative assistant to Herbert L. Willett, director of the Community Chest, was made public yesterday. It will be effective June 30.

Hiltabidle has been affiliated with the Community Chest since 1932, when he retired from Y. M. C. A. work.

He served as general secretary of the York, Pa., "Y" from 1926 to 1932. He and Mrs. Hiltabidle expect to make their future home in York.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Marian Chace and her Dance Group present "Concert 1940" Tuesday night in Hearney Hall. Dance Group: Helen Hoyem, Mary Klingenhagen, Joan Leasure, Marian Lester, Nancy Marmer, Louise Nagel, Ann Powell, Marta Swing, Eleanor Thomas and Alyce Jane Walker. Pianist: Todd Gray.

A prelude of dances by children and junior students in the apprentice stage introduced "Concert 1940" last evening in Hearney Hall. This unusual adjunct to a dance concert was justified by Marian Chace as a demonstration of the preliminary training that approaches an arduous art, and the spectators obviously enjoyed the glimpse at the methods of rhythmic instruction.

BROWN

Miss Chace and the ten members of her group thereafter proceeded to present a program divided into sections that showed some of the motivations that influence the dancer and the choregrapher, as a composer, let us say, is influenced by literary subjects. Folk influence was the basis for a humorous dance of the middle European type, an East Indian nautch and an American polka.

The section devoted to the influence of historical periods began humorously with a combination of Mozart and swing dancing, and continued with a pavanne, a pantomimed "Borgia Incident" devised by Miss Chace to music arranged by Todd Gray from sixteenth century themes, a "Royal Rhapsody" to music by Dohnanyi and a waltz to music by Jacques Ibert.

For illustration of Negro influence Miss Chase drew upon the spirituals in a section of serious intent and dramatic effect. There was careful choreography and intensity of atmosphere in the treatment of "Were You There," "Weeping Mary," "I Want to Be Ready," "Ain't No Hiding Place Down There" and "Go Down, Moses."

In the final section the influence of the structure of music, as well as its rhythmic suggestions, was illustrated in Cherbachevs "Choeur Danse," a nocturne by Pierne, "Sappho" to music by Eric Satie, and three pieces by Bach: one of the chorale-preludes, an aria and the "Little" fugue in G minor.

Dancing to the pure patterns of music came out best in the fugue, where the movement of the themes was visualized in definite terms, and the relations of these themes to the complete structure made apparent. There remains but one more step to be taken in abstraction of the dance from all associations, and that is to create the mathematical dance. Some day we may see a danced quadratic equation.

Homemakers Told of Dresses Made of Milk

Md. U. Textile Expert Tells of New Fabric; Work Is Exhibited

Dresses made from milk may be the style of tomorrow, Washington homemakers were told last night at the Dennison Vocational School, Allison and Thirteenth streets northwest.

The new dresses will be woven from a fiber known as lanital, created from milk, prophesied Dr. Polly Kessinger Moore, textile expert of the University of Maryland, who discussed "Today's and Tomorrow's Textile Fibers" before "graduates" of the adult home economic classes of the District schools.

The program, which included an exhibit of work performed by more than 50 classes, marked the culmination of the first year's project to teach householders the art of making their homes better places in which to live.

Other speakers included Lawson J. Cantrell, assistant superintendent of District schools in charge of vocational education; Mrs. Nora Lowe, president of the Parent-Teacher Association; Miss Edna Amidon, chief of the Home Economics Education Service, U. S. Office of Education, and E. J. Lockwood, director of the District Evening School. Mrs. Ola Day Rush, head of the Home Ecomonics Department, presided.

D. C. Architect Wins Langley Scholarship

William V. Cash, Washington architect, of 3439 Mount Pleasant street northwest, received one of the nine Edward Langley Scholarships for 1940, awarded yesterday at the convention of the American Institute of Architects in Louisville, Ky.

The scholarships, created by the will of the late Edward Langley, Scranton (Pa.) architect, provide funds for research and travel.

Cash, who was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1925, received a traveling fellowship in Europe for a year following. He then taught at M. I. T. until several years ago, when he went to Texas. He has been back to Washington for about a year.

Dolls in Costume At Church Exhibit

Dolls, dressed in costumes of European, Asiatic and South American countries, will be exhibited today from 2 to 9 p. m. in the parish hall of St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran Church, 1611 Brentwood road northeast. Proceeds go to the church building fund.

The collection, belonging to Mrs. Mary Stephens, 4425 South Dakota avenue northeast, will include figures of King George and Queen Elizabeth in coronation robes; the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Napoleon, Marie Antoinette and Empress Josephine.

Engineer Fears Power Plant Sabotage Here

E. G. Moan Warns Of 'Blackout' Unless Precautions Are Taken

Washington engineers were warned last night to beware of a city-wide "blackout" created by saboteurs in District power plants.

The warning came from Edward G. Moan, of Lorton, Va., special deputy president of the National Association of Power Engineers, in an address before the organization's Washington Association No. 1 at the Raleigh Hotel. Moan spoke of "fifth column" and "Trojan horse" activities which he said were likely to break out momentarily in power plants of the Nation.

"Unless you take better precautions to prevent the entrance of strangers into your plants," he told the engineers, "there will be a blackout. You may have a watchman at your gates. But the trucks—are they inspected for unknown persons?"

Moan is the originator of what he has named the National Coordination of Power Engineers, dedicated to "eternal vigilance" for the protection of the nation's generation and transmission facilities.

He said he had obtained the indorsement of the White House, the Interior Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"We are telling our President, our Government and our Nation that we, the engineers, will do our utmost to keep the wheels of industry turning and the lights of the Nation burning," declared Moan.

W. C. Strickler of Washington, secretary of the National Association of Power Engineers, told the meeting that co-operation of engineers throughout the country was needed "to make the power plants of America safe from these subversive movements, financed and organized by foreign 'ism' elements."

Edward Larson of Washington, executive secretary of the National Society of Professional Engineers, discussed license laws as they relate to engineers.

Churches to Hold Forum Tomorrow

Ten Protestant churches of six denominations will meet tomorrow at Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, 756 Eleventh street southeast, for the third in a series of fellowship forums sponsored by the Southeast Inter-Church Council.

The Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard, will speak at 8 p. m. on "Does Jesus Make Any Difference in My Life?" The Rev. George H. Bennett, host pastor and council president, will preside.

Other congregations represented will be Washington City Church of the Brethren; Metropolitan Presbyterian; Reformation Lutheran; St. Mark's Episcopal; Fifteenth Street Christian, and First, Trinity and North Carolina Avenue Methodist Churches.

2 in Race For Union Presidency

Harry Cohen Opposes McCurdy At Convention In Hagerstown

By the Associated Press

Hagerstown, Md., May 21.—A contest for the presidency of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor was assured today when Harry Cohen, of Baltimore, was placed in nomination against Joseph McCurdy, also of Baltimore, the incumbent.

Nominations for vice president, six to be elected tomorrow morning, were John Locher, Washington; F. M. Kershaw, Baltimore; Harry Thompson, Washington; G. Kingstown Howard, Baltimore; John L. Geist, Hagerstown; George Conley and Paul W. England, Cumberland; Robert Lee Long, Baltimore, and Lester Lushbaugh, Hagerstown.

All other officers will be unopposed. They are: Organizer, Robert Buxbaum, Baltimore; secretary, Frank Coleman, Washington; treasurer, Robert Lester, Washington, and delegate to American Federation of Labor, Robert Lester.

I. N. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the union label trades department of the American Federation of Labor, declared that "if we are drawn into the present European conflict, every gain made by labor during the past 20 years will be destroyed."

Ornburn expressed hope the United States could stay out of war.

Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore was commended for his help in bringing about an increase in employment of members of the Baltimore Building and Construction Trades Council. The commendation was in the form of a resolution.

Dr. Judd Challenges Parents to Demand School Curriculum Meet Modern Needs

Mrs. F. J. Mangolier Wins WJSV Scholarship For Letter on University in the Home Series; P.-T. A. Convention Hears Mrs. Kletzer

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Dr. Charles H. Judd, of the National Youth Administration, yesterday threw a challenge to parents to demand a change in the curriculum which would meet the needs of young people.

Addressing the first day's session of the annual convention of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers at the departmental auditorium, he declared there was a crying need for revision of subjects to meet the changes in the social and economic life of the country.

Schools have a great respect for organized parents, said Dr. Judd and a demand coming from them would gain serious consideration. The trouble with parents is that they they like to have their children receive the same kind of training they themselves had, he said, and are slow to recognize the needs brought about by the rapid changes in the social and economic structure.

"We ought to do something about it," he declared.

Mrs. C. D. Lowe, president of the congress, presided at the convention, at which Mrs. William A. Kletzer, of Portland, Ore., new national president, was guest of honor and spoke briefly.

The entire parent-teacher program is slanted toward young people, said Mrs. Kletzer, adding that there was more opportunity now than in any period of the country's history to be of service to youth.

Mrs. F. J. Mangolier, of the John Burroughs Parent-Teacher Association, was presented the scholarship awarded by Radio Station WJSV for the winning letter on "What the University in the Home Series Has Meant to Me as an Adult Education Project."

The award was offered this year for the first time, in connection with the series of broadcasts given over that station with the cooperation of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers and the five universities in the Washington area. The scholarship, which was awarded yesterday by Lloyd Dennis, the station's program director will go to a senior high school student selected by Mrs. Mangolier and the Burroughs association.

Mrs. Lowe commended the local units of the congress for their cooperation in the children's crusade for children and announced that up to the present more than $200 had been sent into the headquarters office.

Reports of the various department heads were presented including that of the department of health of which Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley is director. Mrs. Buckley reported that Mrs. Mabel Hubbel, in conjunction with the officers of a high school association, conducted an experimental health project during which the children were given physical examination, indigent pupils were taken to clinics and personal visits made to homes where parents seemed apathetic toward making corrections of physical defects. The result was that 85 per cent of the recommended corrections were made.

She said that in the 1940 summer roundup campaign there were 48 schools registered with nine examinations yet to be held, and that 864 children had been examined. The department has given 64 pairs of eyeglasses to indigent children.

Mrs. J. R. Lyddane, chairman of the garden committee, reported the school garden project had been continued this year through the cooperation of the National Youth Administration, which had provided the services of 12 boys for the heavy work and through the appropriation of $1,200 in the budget.

Mrs. P. A. Taylor, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the names of the following candidates for office who will be unanimously elected today: Mrs. Alma Hudson, second vice president; Mrs. William A. Moyer, fourth vice president; Mrs. Louis Raebach, sixth vice president; Mrs. Richard J. Purcell, secretary; Mrs. Howard Jones, treasurer; Mrs. H. A. Duerst, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Russell J. Clickner, historian.

Mrs. Gene Starr is convention chairman and Mrs. Earl Sapp, chairman of program.

Exhibit of Historic Treasures Planned Sunday for Benefit Of St. Barnabas Church, Leeland

NEXT SUNDAY, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Zantzinger are opening Woodlawn, their home on Largo road, in nearby Maryland, to show an exhibit of antique silver, jewelry, china and historic treasures for the benefit of St. Barnabas Church at Leeland. The same afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. W. Beall Bowie will give a silver tea for the historic church at their home, Mount Lubentia.

Among the relics to be shown in the silver collection will be an epergne, consisting of 16 parts and belonging originally to the Carter family, and also the original communion service of the church, made in London in 1718 and inscribed, "St. Barnabas' Church of Merrieland."

The china collection wil include a Lowestoft platter which belonger originally to the Murray family and was saved from a cargo shipwrecked on its way to Maryland in colonial days. Among the other relics will be a mahogany lap desk presented by George Washington to his friend, Lord Fairfax.

Hostesses at the exhibition in Woodlawn will be Mrs. Brice Clagett, Miss Alice Roberts, Mrs. Otho Beall, Mrs. Charles Berry, Mrs. James Berry, Mrs. Harold Knapp, Mrs. James Kempton, Mrs. Julian Hall and Mrs. Chase Kirtley.

Those at the tea will include Mrs. Charles Collins, Miss Mary H. Marbury, Miss Karoline Klager, Miss Rosalie Bowie, Miss Juliet Bowie, Mrs. Reverdy Sasscer, Miss Helen Sasscer, Mrs. Edmund Shrewsbury and Miss Lucille Kurvers.

PARTY CANCELED — Mrs. Mary Carroll Greathouse, president of Chapter C, of the P. E. O., has announced, owing to the sudden death on Sunday of Mrs. Helen L. Bentley, past president and charter member, that the chapter has canceled the birthday party it was to have given on Friday. The affair was to have been at the home of Mrs. W. R. Bean, in celebration of its thirty-fourth anniversary.

SPRING LUNCHEON—The Hadassah has set June 4 as the date for its annual spring luncheon. This party, at the Mayflower Hotel, will be its largest social event of the season and will wind up its activities for the year. Mrs. Robert J. Rothstein is chairman, with Mrs. Charles B. Dulcan, co-chairman and Mrs. Louis Janof in charge of the hostesses. The proceeds from the gathering will be devoted to the organization's child welfare fund.

D. A. R. ELECTIONS—Both Mary Washington and Martha Washington Chapters of the District D. A. R. have elected their officers for the coming season.

Mrs. W. H. O. McGehee, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, is the new regent; Mrs. E. M. Weeks, vice regent; Miss Estelle Morrison, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Hassell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mary J. Loventhal, treasurer; Mrs. Howard Booker, registrar; Mrs. Carroll Power, chaplain, and Miss Janet Richards, parliamentarian and historian. Miss Richards, a charter member of the chapter and the oldest, in membership, of the District Daughters, was honorary chairman of the golden jubilee at the Continental Congress last month.

New officers of Martha Washington Chapter include Mrs. George Pariseau, regent; Mrs. Cecil Blake, vice regent; Mrs. John Compton, corresponding secretary; Mrs Mary Warner, recording secretary; Mrs. George Waters, treasurer; Mrs. Alfred Coates, chaplain; Mrs. George Evans, registrar; Mrs. Thomas C. Atkeson, historian, and Mrs. Angus Lamond, delegate.

Oriental Shrine Convenes Here

The Ladies Oriental Shrine opened its annual convention yesterday morning at the Mayflower Hotel, with 700 members attending the Su Zu Court, of Washington, as hostess group.

Mrs. Roy L. Craig, of Indianapolis, grand high priestess, presided at the business sessions which will continue today. Tomorrow, Mrs. George Duval, of this city, will be installed as grand high priestess to succeed Mrs. Craig.

Last night, the drill corps of various courts in the United States and Canada presented their annual costumed exhibition drills with music by the uniformed band of the Philadelphia court, under the baton of Mrs. Louisa Kuenzel. The costumes were in all colors and of Oriental design.

Su Zu Court's Oriental band also provided music under the direction of Mrs. Eva Smith. Mrs. Bessie Towson is captain of the Washington patrol, which was host.

Monday night, preceding the opening of the convention, there was a ceremonial and tonight the annual banquet will be held, followed by a dance to which local Shriners will be invited.

The organization acts as auxiliary to the Shrine, aiding in its work for the hospitals for crippled children.

French Society To Give Final Program Monday

Les Amities Feminines de la France, an organization formed four months ago to raise funds for milk for French babies in the war area, will have its last program meeting of the season Monday afternoon at 3:30 at the Arts Club. The society will meet regularly, however, on Wednesdays at the headquarters of Urgent Relief for France, in the Heigh-Ho, to knit for refugees.

Mme. Garzia will speak and there will be music by Miss Bernadette Crouch, soprano; Mme. Nyms, violinist, with Miss Gretchen Hood at the piano and by Felian Garzia, pianist.

Mme. Germains Johnson is chairman of the organization and Mme. Garzia, the vice-chairman, with Lady Leslie as honorary president.

Press Club Hears Women Party Heads

Division Chiefs Agree Coalition Cabinet Would Not Be Feasible

On at least two things the directors of the women's divisions of the Republican and Democratic parties are agreed—women should study the affairs of their community, State and Nation in order to take an intelligent part in improvement, and a coalition Cabinet would not be feasible for the country in the present emergency.

Mrs. Dorothy McAllister, director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, and Miss Marion Martin, director for the Republican National Committee, were guests of honor and speakers yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Women's National Press Club at the Willard.

Both emphasized the work of their organizations in training women to study the needs of their communities and acquaint themselves with the processes of government.

Miss Martin, as she invited the women of the press to call on her committee at the Philadelphia convention, added, "I think we'll be there long enough so you'll have time to come."

She said that 250,000 women, in 36 states, were paying dues to the National Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, formed only two years ago. Women must learn, in politics, to have patience to start at the bottom and work up, she said. Non-partisan efforts is not that for which party rewards are given, she pointed out.

She and Mrs. McAllister agreed that women who desired to take an active part in Government should do it through their parties.

Mrs. McAllister described the surveys conducted by Democratic women throughout the country to determine the benefits that have come to their individual communities from Government agencies. Their reports on these to National headquarters are being published on such "rainbow fliers" as, during the 1938 campaign, comprised 80 per cent of the compaign literature, she said.

Other representatives of the two national headquarters who attended the luncheon were Anne Wheaton, a member of the Press Club, director of publicity for the Republican Women's Division; Hazel Reavis, who holds the same position for the Democratic Women's Division; May Thompson Evans, assistant director of the Democratic Women's Division, and Mrs. Paul Henry, assistant director of the Republican. Ruby Black, club president, presided.

Sweet Briar Meeting

The Sweet Briar Alumnae Club of Washington tomorrow will hold the final meeting of the season at 5 p. m., at the home of its president, Mrs. Margaret D. Nohowell, 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Bulger Elected President Of Bethesda Woman's Club

Mrs. Jacob W. Bulger was elected yesterday to succeed Mrs. Louise A. Gravelle as president of the Woman's Club of Bethesda.

Other officers chosen at the annual meeting held at the clubhouse, Old Georgetown and Sonoma roads, were Mrs. Frank P. Farley, first vice president; Mrs. Hugh B. Johnston, second vice president; Mrs. Frank A. Bennett, recording secretary; Mrs. George Schmucker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry J. Pirie, treasurer; Mrs. Leonard Nicholson, historian; Mrs. David Lloyd Davies, parliamentarian; Mrs. Jack T. Irwin, director to the federation; Mrs. Reginald B. Looker, Mrs. Charles S. Moore, and Mrs. Edwin H. Etz, directors.

MRS. BULGER

The club has had the busiest season of its 29 years, reports of officers and committee chairmen showed. The clubhouse rentals have been more numerous and the organization is in the best financial position it has ever been. The more extensive use of the clubhouse followed its redecoration last summer.

A Red Cross unit was organized this year, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Farley and has been meeting every Monday at the club. It will continue through the summer and is open to those who desire to sew, and to knitters whether or not they are club members. The women meet at 10:30 and work until 4.

The charter meeting of the club will be held Monday, closing the season.

Birthday Banquet

U. S. S. Jacob Jones Post, American Legion, the largest post composed entirely of women who served in the World War, will celebrate its twenty-first anniversary with a banquet at the Kennedy-Warren, 3133 Connecticut avenue northwest, at 7 o'clock tonight.

Mrs. Ezekiel Is Club Leader

Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel was unanimously re-elected president of the League of Women Shoppers of Washington yesterday at the final membership meeting of the season at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, also was unanimously elected first vice-president.

Other officers for the coming year will include: Mrs. Harold Glasser, executive secretary; Mrs. Bernard Schoenfeld, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frances Doolittle Lesser, treasurer; Mrs. Cynthia Wentworth Hannum, director of publicity; Mrs. D. N. Shoemaker, education; Mrs. Michael Straus, investigating committee; Mrs. Floyd Dell, legislative committee; Mrs. William R. Osgood, living standards; Mrs. Robert W. Horton, membership; Mrs. Louise A. Wilson, ways and means.

Three members-at-large elected yesterday were: Mrs. Marion Bachrach, Mrs. Edward D. Hollander, and Mrs. Gardner Jackson.

The local league went on record as endorsing the 30 resolutions passed recently by the national organization including that in opposition to appropriations for armaments at the expense of social legislation.

The Same Family

He—Well, I see here where a Judge Ashbottom has been appointed——

She—Ashbottom! Say, there's an Ashbottom connection in our family!

He—Oh, but this man's from California.

She—I know, but there was one branch that went west. It must be the same family. What about him?

He—The President's just appointed him on a big commission——

She—Oh, then I KNOW it's the same family. He's a lawyer, isn't he?

He—Well—yes——

She—Well, law always ran in our family—that, is on my mother's side. Now her grandmother was an Ashbottom—Minerva Ashbottom. You know the Ashbottoms are a very old family——

He—I know . . . Say, what's this about Senator Tooner's son marrying this paper dolly heiress?

She—Who? . . . Patty Pelf?

He—Yes.

She—You don't mean Patty's getting married! You know, she's my cousin!

He—I never knew that!

She—I've told you time and again that her grandfather, old Cyrus Pelf, the one that started the fortune, was a second cousin of my grandmother Dizzard.

She—Let's see . . . Yes, she's a blonde. Now all the Dizzards are blonde——

He—You can't tell that from a newspaper picture.

She—Yes, but that's the Dizzard nose all right. I'd know it anywhere. Now you see her grandfather, he was of the New England branch . . . anyway his mother married a Dizzard——

He—Wait! Whose picture is that? . . . Oh, the man who won that Hawker literary award . . . Lester Chaff.

She—Chaff? . . . Chaff? . . . Where's he from?

He—Wait a minute . . . Oh, Mississippi.

She—I bet it's the same family.

He—Now don't tell me you're related to him too!

She—Well, there was a Chaff on my father's side, through his mother. You know her people came from the South.

He—But wait! It says here this man was born in Illinois.

She—Oh well, probably his father went West. I know it's the same family. All of my father's people were writers. As a matter of fact, I've always thought I could write. Now I know I must get it from the Chaffs——

He—Of course there are a lot of Chaffs in the world——

She—They're all the same family. Anyway that's the Chaff mouth all right. Just like my father's!

She—What?

He—(Reading)—"Alonzo Carbax, 48, who arrived here today from Geranium Grove, California, in a Rolls Royce motor car"——

She—Carbax? Isn't that an unusual name? . . . Say, you know I've heard that name before!

He—Well, now I KNOW he's no relation——

She—Wait a minute! . . . Carbax? . . . Carbox? . . . You know that name's in my family somewhere!

He—But this man couldn't be——

She—Why couldn't he be? You're always belittling my family.

He—But listen——

She—No, I know there was a Carbax on my mother's side. They went back to a Lord Carbax in England. There was even some talk at one time that we might get an estate.

He—Well if this man's a descendant of Lord Carbax——

She—He's bound to be! The Carbax branch was very well-to-do. It says he was driving a Rolls Royce, doesn't it?

He—Yes, but——

She—It's all the same family. We're all related.

He—Well if he's a relative of yours, you ought to do something about it.

She—Why?

He—Well for one thing he's been arrested.

She—No! What for?

He—For poisoning his last six wives!

White Wave Submerges Summer Fashion Front

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

GLEAMING white is a Washington hot weather formula that never goes out of style. Whether used in small doses as accent for dark town costumes, or in all-over effect for basic ensembles, the white wave will again cover Washington's landscape this summer. White is considered coolest of all colors, cool looking and cool feeling since it deflects rather than reflects light. Everything from glittering white plastics or buttermilk done in lacy jewelry to the sheen of white sharkskin (the whitest of all the whites) will be worn come June. The greatest personal success will go to the dead white costume relieved of all color except the wearers' own bright lipstick, nail enamel and sun tan.

YOUR WHITE HAT—The summer weight white felt is as perennial as the casual style pictured here. A hat by a famous maker, this one curls up or down in back, has a pinched crown and all-white band. As suitable with the snowy pearls and white flannel jacket, shown, as with country cottons

YOUR WHITE GLOVES—Doeskins are indispensable to most summer wardrobes and are real essentials for that white touch every dark town sheer must have. These neat social registerite gloves feature a bit of hand-stitching and require merely a swish in hot suds to keep them immaculate

YOUR WHITE SHOES—Regardless of present day boot trickery, the timeless spectator sports pump is still the basis of the American woman's summertime wardrobe. Rightly, too, for brown, calf-finished bucks with medium oxford heels like the pair above can be worn with absolutely everything but formal clothes

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 15, Regards Mother as Killjoy Because She Decrees 11 P. M. Curfew; Says It Alienates Friends

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As I am a constant reader of your column and approve the kindly advice you give to others in trouble, I feel sure you can give me the help I need. I am 15 years old and, so they say, very attractive. I got out a lot for a girl of my age, but my mother has been much opposed to this. For instance, she thnks I should be home by 11 p. m., whereas friends of mine don't have to be home until much later. If I do not come in by 11 p. m., she punishes me by canceling my next date.

I believe that a girl's parents have a lot to do with her popularity. The mother who is not forever pestering a boy about the time he brings her daughter home is well liked. But my mother seems to get a certain pleasure out of heckling my friends, whenever they come to my home.

Would you mind telling me frankly at what hour you think a girl of 15 should be home on Friday and Saturday nights?—taking into account the fact that boys generally want to treat you to something to eat after the "main entertaint event" of the evening. Sincerely yours,
UNHAPPY.

Mother Has Responsibility To Govern Girl's Actions

DEAR UNHAPPY: No doubt you have heard of those persons who, if given an inch, will try to take a mile by force or finesse. Well, it seems to me that you are behaving somewhat in the manner of such persons, except that I think your mother already has allowed you considerably more than an "inch" of social rope. Indeed, I think she gives evidence of playing a better brand of ball with you and your friends than you seem disposed to play with her.

While I am not prepared to say that I would arbitrarily order a 15-year-old daughter to be home at 11 p. m. sharp, I certainly would expect her to be home before midnight. Still—thinking it over—I believe 11 o'clock is the completely sensible dictate, considering your fledgling social status. When you are 17, midnight at the latest will be late enough for you to be out, on "ordinary dates," as the youngsters say.

Frankly, I don't see the percentage (as we say in the vernacular) in pleasing your come-day, go-day boy friends at the expense of displeasing your parents—when it comes to the matter of getting a late snack downtown after an evening at the movies, or whatever. Just tell your beaux frankly that you "have to be home," or you "promised to be home," or "the price of peace is home by 11 o'clock"—and you'll stand treat to an icebox handout. Tell them this is the best you can do, until you have reached the hoary age of 18, or whatever age it is that you will have to be before the curfew is moved back a notch.

As you say, "a girl's parents have a lot to do with her popularity." Therefore, don't delude yourself that your popularity and attractiveness — which provoke your present problem—have been achieved in spite of your parents. I imagine your parents have given you a happy, helpful rearing; a comfortable, inviting home; the kind of wardrobe, in ample quantity, which enhances your natural claims to beauty; and expensive opportunities for developing interesting athletic skills and captivating social graces. The very stationery on which you write me implies a person whose background casually provides all the so-called "niceties."

So I daresay your parents have invested rather heavily in that self-assured young maiden of 15 (i. e., yourself) who suddenly and gloomily decides that either they don't know what the score is, or else they get pleasure out of spoiling her life. Nothing could be more absurd or untrue than that assumption in your case, I am sure.

If your mother "heckles" your beaux in a lighthearted way it is probably because she knows they have to be kept in line, and she prefers the slightly mocking approach to scolding or downright command. It is her prerogative and responsibility to discipline you when you disobey, and by "canceling your next date," when you've cheated on the curfew, she is neatly suiting the punishment to the offense. My advice to you is to play along with your parents, rather than with your contemporaries, in the matter of learning the rules for living the most desirable sort of life. M. H.

Exercise Is Good Substitute for Girdle

Natural Foundation Much Cooler Than Artificial One

By Ida Jean Kain

A LITTLE informal research reveals that Juno was jealous of Venus' figure and that she borrowed the other divinity's girdle—so the story goes—to keep Jupiter at home where he belonged! The report that the ruse worked goes to show what a good girdle can do for a girl!

But in those early days corsets must have been something and we swelter to think of Juno's disposition if she wore it straight through the summer! Even today, with the girdle a featherweight affair, a girl likes her freedom.

One far-sighted reader with a vivid memory has already requested a figure program that will permit her to discard her girdle, except for state occasions, during the warm spell! If you will start with her, you can look forward to a very comfortable summer. What your figure needs is a good foundation of its own. And what that takes is a program of exercise that will slim the waist, flatten the midsection, firm the derriere.

Here's Firming Exercise

POSITION: Lie face downward on the floor, arms and legs at full extension and held slightly off the floor.

MOVEMENT: Roll from side to side, across the stomach and over to one side, then back across to the other. Keep it up for 20 counts. Then relax completely for a couple of minutes.

Now, over on the back.

POSITION: Assume a semireclining position with the arms flexed and weight resting on hands and forearms which are down at the sides. Have legs straight down.

MOVEMENT: Roll from one side-thighline over to the other, rolling away over on the side of the thigh to iron out the fat pads, and back and forth across the derriere.

Now for Waistline

POSITION: Still on the back on the floor, stretch the arms out from the shoulders at either side, and bring the legs straight up to form a right angle with the trunk.

MOVEMENT. Holding the legs together, drop them over to the right on the floor. Return to the righ-angle position and drop to floor on left. Continue for ten counts. This exercise is somewhat strenuous, but it can be increased gradually.

A Woman's New York

—By Alice Hughes

New York, May 21.

THE PLAGUE of old-time song revivals may be reaching its peak, but who knows? Maybe the original ideas or bright notions of snitching from the masters have left Tin Pan Alley flat on its G-clef. Some years back Maxine Sullivan had her little hour by swinging "Annie Laurie," and now Bonnie Baker is having a very big one with the resuscitated "Oh, Johnny," a chestnut of the older school.

ALICE HUGHES

I thought I'd better drop round and see what was with this 100 pounds of 22-year-old girl, so there I was at the Waldorf, where she has been working with Orrin Tucker's band. This mite was Evelyn Nelson, out of Houston, Tex., until she met Tucker four years back, when both were working at the same St. Louis hotel, and joined forces.

ග්‍රා

Neither Tucker nor his vocalist had kicked up much sand until they were looking around for an old song to re-do, and hit on the "Oh, Johnny." She has sung the the durned number over 2,000 times, but if you ask her if she gags on it now, she'll pipe, in that funny little voice of hers, "Oh no—not when I think how much it has helped!" And no wonder, for the kid has already made a goodish pile out of it—why, a record of it has sold 600,000 discs, with more to go.

Strange and wondrous how these items catch the public ear and fancy. Several girls have had these big shots, and cleaned up. Some go on to other hits, others are strictly one-shotters and quietly disappear into the shadows whence they issued when the vogue for the socko number dies out. Hope Bonnie keeps on clicking even when the "Johnny" scourge is blighted, for her odd, whining little voice may keep on pleasing the folks with the right material.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Capt. Allen MacMartin, the Canadian millionaire who is married to luscious Margot Grahame (remember "The Informer?") caused a lot of soup to be toppled into laps at the Barberry Room the other night. Cap, who is in a Canadian Scots regiment, came into the place with his sister, Melba Orr, accompanied by a bag-piper who tootled them to their tables. It seems he just likes pipe music a weird taste to non-Scot ears, but there it is. So he takes his pet piper along, and "he shall have music (?) wherever he goes."

Creole Soup

An Aid to the Gardener

FLOWER gardens are lovely, and take a great deal of care to keep them in good condition. But while out digging among the flowers and shrubs you can let your dinner simmer to perfection. Even though the weather is warm, you need one hot food for health's sake. The following recipe makes a hearty soup packed with vitamins and it can cook while you work.

Start cooking the soup right after breakfast. Cool, chill and finish during the rest of the dinner preparation, or finish cooking in the morning and reheat for dinner. Serve with it hard rolls or sliced French bread, a green salad, crisp from the refrigerator, a baked or chilled dessert and a beverage and you have a menu that will be as delightful as the spring day.

Creole Beef Soup—Buy a soup bone—with some meat attached. Wash and put in large kettle with about 4 inches of cold water. Add 1 tablespoon salt, 6 whole cloves, 2 bay leaves, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup chopped onions, 1-3 cup celery leaves and ¼ cup chopped green pepper. If pepper does not agree with the family, leave it out. Cover tightly and slowly bring to boil. Simmer an hour, then add 3 cups tomatoes, ½ cup rice and 1 cup carrots. Cook for 1 hour, remove the meat bone and strain soup through coarse sieve—pressing through as much as possible. Pick off any meat attached to bone and add to soup.

Tea Dance Honoring Debutante Pair Attracts 200 to Mrs. Gould's Home

Another Fete for Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser; Princess Rospigliosi and Daughters Among Guests at Indoor-Outdoor Festivity

By Hope Ridings Miller.

ONE OF THE GAYEST parties for debutantes thus far this season took place yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould entertained at a tea dance in honor of the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser.

Ever since those popular young ladies made their bows to Capital society a few weeks ago under the aegis of their cousin, Arthur Bradley Campbell, they have been feted right and left. Parties for them are still piling up, and come next Wednesday they will be honored again at a dance given by Mr. Campbell at Grasslands. Later, Mr. Campbell will take the debutantes to Newport. He has leased the John Jacob Astor house there, and signs of the times point to an exciting summer for the Misses Meuser.

Mrs. Gould, who has been active in Capital society the past winter—ever since she came here and leased the home of Prince Burhannedin on McGill Terrace, in fact—had invited more than 200 guests to her party yesterday, and if anybody missed it, he certainly wasn't missed. So far as I could see, Everybody was there. Capital E. And everybody seemed to stay until Sidney's orchestra played its final note.

The hostess and her guests of honor received in the library. Mrs. Gould had chosen a flowing frock, fashioned with a fitted white lace bodice and a full skirt of black net over taffeta. A corsage of gardenias accented her becoming ensemble. Miss Isabelle Meuser had chosen a bouffant dress of white lace, worn with a wide-brimmed hat of pink straw; while her sister stepped out in yellow organdy, set off with a picture hat of white straw. Both debutantes wore gardenia corsages.

Tall vases flanking the doorway to the reception hall sprouted bouquets of yellow and lavender gladioli. The tea table in the dining room was centered with a hugh bouquet of snapdragons, iris, sweet peas and roses; and low bowls of similar blossoms decorated the drawing room, which was a ballroom for the afternoon.

THE PARTY combined all the best features of indoor and outdoor fetes. In fact, it filled the bill on both counts. While younger guests whirled about in the ballroom, oldsters and the not-so-oldsters found their way outdoors, where small tables were set up in the garden, and where a bar beneath a canopy was a popular center of attention.

"Why this is just like Newport," said one guest, taking in at one glance the bar, decorated with balloons of many colors and low bowls of spring flowers. A strolling accordionist, and another musician who moved among the guests, strumming out lively tunes on a guitar were featured entertainers of the afternoon.

Especially popular among the guests were a trio of out-of-towners, Princess Laura Rospigliosi and her daughters, Princess Camilla and Princess Francesca Rospigliosi, cousins of the Misses Meuser, who recently arrived here for a visit and will stay until the latter part of next week.

When I say again that Everybody was there, I mean just that. Debs, sub-debs, and post debs; dowagers and diplomats were all over the place. To list them all would be like lifting page after page from the Social Register; so I'll pass that up this time. Anyway, you'll be hearing plenty about that party from now until the social calendar folds up at the close of the current season.

BEFORE THE LAST guest left the Gould party, a sizable number of others were on their way to one of the two dinners that crowded the 1925 F Street Club to the walls last night. Representative and Mrs. Frank O. Horton took over the left wing of the club to entertain a company of 22. Mrs. Emil Hurja was hostess to a larger party in the dining room, her party being planned in honor of her husband, who has been out of town so much this season that his return home, even briefly, is a signal for merrymaking.

The Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, whose social appearances have been few and far between this season, came in for dinner, but left shortly afterward. Others there were Representative Sam Rayburn, Representative and Mrs. Bruce Barton, Representative and Mrs. William D. Byron, Admiral and Mrs. George T. Pettengill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. John McClure, John E. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Warner, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Owsley, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon and Mrs. Hazel Reavis.

Coming in to join the party later were Attorney General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, who attended the party at the White House during the first half of the evening. Still others at the Hurja fete were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Diggs, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, George Abell, Miss Katherine Judge and Judge Justus Wardell, of San Francisco.

Miss Delaney is a member of the faculty of the Paul Junior High School, this city. She was graduated from the New York State College for Teachers in Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Ludewig received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from Georgetown University School of Foreign Service. He is the chief of the Division of Financial and Economic Information at the Pan American Union.

Marriage Announced

Mrs. Joseph Oliver Carter, of St. Petersburg, Fla., announces the marriage of her daughter, Elsie Marie, to Paul Johnson Clark on Saturday in the chapel of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church here. The couple will make their home in Glendale, Calif. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Florence Clark, of Washington.

Fourth Estate Entertained By Roosevelts

Guests Dine; Dance In Informal Evening At White House

Informality reigned in the stately White House East Room last evening when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at their annual party for the press.

Members of the fourth estate, with wives, husbands, "girl friends" and beaux gathered at 9 o'clock to be greeted by the First Lady. There was dancing in the East Room to the music of a swing orchestra, which also played some of the President's favorite tunes.

Guests Gather On Lawn

Japanese lanterns had been strung on the grounds of the lawn behind the White House, and many people chose to wander about the garden or sit in groups chatting on the steps. Others collected on the roof of the East wing, which is lined with little evergreen trees in white tubs.

Kegs of beer were set up in the main entrance hall, and there was also a cooling punch for those who preferred something non-alcoholic. A light supper was served later in the evening. Several members of the Cabinet and their wives were among those present.

Roosevelts Give Dinner

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt inaugurated this pleasant custom of entertaining the press annually at a dance shortly after taking up residence in the White House. No Chief Executive had ever done it before.

As is their custom, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were hosts at a dinner before the dance. Their guests were: Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, Mrs. William Phillips, wife of the United States Ambassador to Italy; Justice Samuel I. Rosenman, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen T. Early, Felix Belair, jr., president of the White House Correspondents Association; Mrs. Belair, Miss Ruby A. Black, president of the Women's National Press Club; Miss Katharine Brooks, president of the Washington Newspaper Woman's Club; Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bye, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deans, Mrs. Melvyn Douglas, wife of the movie actor, and known professionally as Helen Gahagan; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Foote—Mr. Foote is president of the Gridiron Club; William D. Hassett, Miss Marguerite LeHand, Herbert Little, Lowell Mellett, Edward L. Roddan, Hall Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt's brother; Dr. Kemper Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Wilson.

The table was centered with pink roses, snapdragons and maidenhair fern.

Achesons Lease New Home, Plan Cocktail Party

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Acheson have leased Miss Frances Sortwell's home at 3410 Volta place and will move there on June 3. Miss Sortwell will leave soon to spend the summer in New England.

One of the first parties at which Dr. and Mrs. Acheson will entertain at their new address will be a cocktail party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dominic on June 14. Most of the guests will go on later to the carnival at Wolftrap, the Shouse farm in Virginia.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

THE WIFE of a Southern Congressman is already going into training for the coming campaign by cutting down on cigarettes. By the time she has to accompany her husband on vote getting trips to rural districts, she will have stopped smoking completely so as not to shock the mountaineers.

WITH THE ARRIVAL of warm weather, the staff of the Czech Legation has spread out again into the entire chancery. Part of the offices which required a separate heating unit were closed off during the winter to save several hundred dollars. The legation is kept up through the voluntary contributions of Czech citizens in the United States. Czechs here and in other countries also support the legations in Paris, London and Cairo.

Danish diplomats in Washington don't have to worry yet about wherewithal. They expect to use the extensive funds which their government has in the United States.

WITH A $10,000,000 drive for Red Cross funds now under way, the spotlight is focused on the Red Cross Inquiry Service, which has cleared more than 24,800 requests to locate missing people in the war areas. Thirty-five men and women work on these inquiries in the Washington headquarters alone, and in Geneva, the clearing house for such requests, more than 500 are employed.

Anxious pleas for information come in from all over the country. During the first few months questions about friends and relatives in Poland led; last week Norway jumped ahead. Authorities now expect a vast flood of letters on persons in Holland and Belgium.

OFFICIALS HERE say that the German Red Cross is cooperating as it did in the last war in furnishing such information, but that Russia, though it has a Red Cross, is not helpful.

When the Red Cross has succeeded in locating a person, he is furnished with a printed form and allowed to send a strictly personal message not exceeding 25 words. The inquiry service forwards these gratis to the anxious friend in this country, the process usually taking about two months.

As one would expect, most of these messages are extremely touching. Here are a few selected at random:

"Entire family healthy. Lodging in good condition. Send hurriedly affadavit so Mejer and Rebekka can emigrate somewhere else."

Dear family. We are in straitened circumstances. Pray for us as we have nothing to live for."

"Dear one: We are living and all well. Try and help us. Please get papers of entry for us."

"We are all well. We have sent a lot of letters. In the fall the home, etc., were burned. Well wishes. Blessings from mother."

"Sorry to report all the family in prison. House burned."

MR. AND MRS. Gist Blair have issued invitations for a tea in honor of their debutante daughter, Laura, on Monday, June 10, at Grasslands. The debutante is now at Foxcroft.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MR. AND MRS. SNOWDEN FAHNESTOCK asked a few friends for cocktails the other day to meet Mrs. Albert Smith, of New York, who was spending a few days in Washington as the guest of Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey. The Fahnestocks' tiny walled garden is a perfect haven just now, with its thick, green turf, flowering shrubs and comfortable garden furniture.

Bea, who looked charming in a summer print, said that they are expecting Snowden's daughter, Fontaine, to come down from New York for Arthur Bradley Campbell's dance next week. Fontaine is lovely and dark, with a very white skin. She has many friends in the Capital, for, though she has spent most of her life in Brussels with her mother, she was presented to Washington season before last by the Fahnestocks at a gay and memorable ball. Remember the Hungarian Gipsy orchestra in the downstairs library and lots of the guests leaving the dancing in the ballroom to sing and dance with the Gipsies?

AMONG THOSE who came to meet attractive Mrs. Smith were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark, Mrs. Kent Legare, Miss Marion Trumbull, Keith Officer, James Beck and Count Filo della Torre.

M. AND MRS. FRANCIS COLT DE WOLF gave a very entertaining dinner recently at their fascinating old Georgetown house. Music was the order of the evening and it was furnished most beautifully by Mme. Renne Strakosch, who used to sing at the opera in Vienna. Mme. Strakosch is an American, whose husband was Austrian, and since his death she has come back to live in her native country. At present she is visiting Lady Pascoe-Rutter at her home in Leesburg, and accompanied her hostess to the de Wolf's dinner.

• • • •

ANOTHER INTERESTING new arrival at the dinner was Thomas Safford, who has been working in Hollywood, writing I believe, and who is planning to buy a place near Leesburg and settle down. Mr. Safford expects to do a good deal of riding and will bring his horses on from Hollywood once he is established in Virginia.

Also dining with the de Wolfs that night were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Constant Southworth, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flack, Mr. and Mrs. Royce Powell and Mrs. Leon Frost.

A WELL-KNOWN DIPLOMAT was discussing a trip which he had recently made to the Dutch East Indies. Someone asked him if the Dutch did a good job of administering in their colonies. "I myself asked the same question of the British Consul there," he replied, "and after my visit I thoroughly concurred in his praise, and it was the very highest praise possible from a Britisher. He said, 'We couldn't administer the Dutch East Indies better ourselves.'"

Mary F. Pitney To Wed June 15

Miss Mary Foster Pitney, granddaughter of Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, of Washington, has selected June 15 as the date of her wedding to Rowland Gibson Hazard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Hazard, of Narragansett, R. I. The ceremony will take place in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Morristown, N. J.

The prospective bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelton Pitney, of Morristown, will have as her matron of honor Mrs. Henry G. Bartol, jr., of that city. Miss Virginia Danforth, of New York, will be maid of honor, and the other attendants include Mrs. Rolf Stutz, of New York, sister of Mr. Hazard; Miss Evelyn Haskell and Mrs. Charles Dana, jr., of Morristown; Miss Valentine Edgar, of Hewlett, Long Island; Miss Barbara Bradley, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and Miss Nancy Calhoun, of Atlanta, Ga.

Peter Hazard will be best man for his brother, and the ushers include another brother, Charles Hazard; Shelton Pitney, jr., and James C. Pitney, brothers of the bride-elect; Ezra Prentice, jr., of New York; Joseph DuBarry 4th, of Philadelphia; Frederick Read, jr., and Harris Metcalf, of Providence; William Steele, of Ossining, N. Y., and Fitzhugh Green, jr., of Rye, N. Y.

A reception at the Pitney home will follow the ceremony.

Curley Club Meeting At Continental Hotel

The regular meeting of the Curley Club in the ballroom of the Continental Hotel occurs tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock, with the president, James J. Corbett, presiding.

A nominating committee will be chosen for the June elections. Dancing and cards will conclude the program.

Junior League Concert Given By Glee Club

Informal Reception Follows at Home Of Gaillards

The Junior League Glee Club entertained a group of friends last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David St. Pierre Gaillard with a concert followed by an informal reception.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Cecil Blair, included songs by Bach, Brahms, Handel and others.

Mrs. Blair, an accomplished pianist, has played for such artists as Mme. Schumann-Heink and Fritz Kreisler and has appeared with both the Duluth and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestras. She accompanied the Glee Club and also played several solos.

Mrs. Eugene Sloan and Emiline Boyer Kinnebrew, soloist at St. Thomas Church, were heard in the charming "Hansel and Gretel" music by Humperdinck. Mrs. Kinnebrew later sang a number of songs including one by such contrasting composers as Mendelssohn and Frank La Farge.

Mrs. F. Eberhart Haynes is chairman of the group and the members are: Mrs. George Beale Bloomer, Miss Barbara Bolling, Miss Barbara Bradley, Miss Louise Burke, Mrs. Charles Elmore Cropley, Miss Juliet Dulaney, Mrs. David St. Pierre Gaillard, Mrs. Edwin Haakinson, Mrs. Erskine Hamilton, Mrs. Bishop P. Hill, Mrs. Kenneth Holland, Mrs. Arthur Hudson, Mrs. Kinnebrew, Miss Sarah Tyler Meigs, Mrs. Robert Wallace Parker, Mrs. Sloan, Miss Dorothy Tirrell and Mrs. A. Z. Foster Wood.

Society to Meet

For the closing meeting of the season, the Washington Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society of Denver will hold a Mothers Day musicale and tea at 1:30 p. m. today, at the Jewish Community Center. Only paid-up members will be admitted. New members paying dues will receive a receipt including 1941. Mrs. Nathan Wallack, president, will preside.

Civic Theater Ends Season Gaily in 'Tonight at 8:30'

Three Coward Playlets to Continue Five More Nights at Wardman Park With Comedy Experts Heading Casts

By Nelson B. Bell

In the Wardman Park Theater last night, the Washington Civic Theater presented a trilogy of Noel Coward's pithy one-act plays, comprising his "Tonight at 8:30," with predominantly fine effect. The pieces chosen for the Civic's seventh and final bill of the 1939-40 season were "Hands Across the Sea," a one-scene light comedy; "Fumed Oak," a domestic comedy of London's lower social stratum, in two scenes, and "Ways and Means," the hilarious three-scene farce of impecunious, socialite house guests stranded on the Riviera. They were presented—and rather handsomely, too— in the order named.

"Hands Across the Sea" seemed to this observer the most spontaneously and best played of the three. The bitingly satrical incident of the visit of two Malayan colonists to the apartment of two "smart" Londoners, where they were utterly bewildered by the chattery vacuity of their "hosts" and a noisy procession of their self-centered friends, was played swiftly, sparkingly and with no loss of the brittle humor with which Coward has so tightly packed it. Sara Seegar, Day Tuttle, the Civic's director, turned actor for the first time this season; Eleanor Charris and John Pooley Wright, as the touring outlanders; Natalie Core and Kenneth Banghart carried the brunt of the playlet's comedy lightly and efficiently.

The same may be said of almost the identical cast in "Ways and Means," the skit in which the two social parasites wriggle out of a desperate situation by their wits and their versatile author's sophisticated cleverness in weaving substantial fiber into his flippant whimsies.

Human Touch Is Lost

It seemed to me that "Fumed Oak," which I have always deemed the best of the Coward symposium, lost most at the hands of the Civic group last night. An audience would have found me in an isolated minority. This "unpleasant comedy" of the worm that turned, nevertheless, partook more of the spirit of burlesque than of the deep human nature that Mr. Coward and Gertrude Lawrence breathed into it when "Tonight at 8:30" was accorded its premiere engagement of two weeks at the National. C. Kenneth Banghart and Patricia Lucas grotesquely overplayed the roles of Henry Gow and his slatternly wife, Doris, and Miss Seegar, in the character part of the irritating mother-in-law, seemed wholly out of her proper metier. Edith Sognier, as Elsie, the daughter, was the star of this skit—if it had one.

Paul Keyes and Thomas Rogers Blake supported the principals well in "Hands Across the Sea" and "Ways and Means" and William M. Girvan's settings made up in brightness and good taste whatever they may have lacked in variety.

"Tonight at 8:30" will be repeated tonight and continued through Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The Civic ends its season's schedule on one of the gayest notes it has struck this year.

Mayor Adams Ends Long Service In Takoma Park

John R. Adams will preside as Mayor of Takoma Park, Md., for the last time tonight at an 8 p. m. meeting in the Firehouse, Carroll and Denwood avenues.

Concluding four years in office, Adams served on the town council for 15 years before he was elected Mayor. Because of the Hatch act he was not a candidate in the town election May 6, when Oliver W. Youngblood defeated Dr. C. C. Galloway by 165 votes.

Retiring members of the council who will discuss business tonight are Frederick C. Duehring and Philip W. Huck. Col. A. L. Conger and Howard H. Harrigan were re-elected to the council.

Two Bright Stars Shine In New 'Waterloo Bridge'

Vivien Leigh, Robert Taylor Excel in Roles; Today Is a Muleskinners' Field Day; This, That and the Other About the Theater

WHEN METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S new picturization of Robert E. Sherwood's play of "Waterloo Bridge" opens on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater Friday—it seems that "Buck Benny Rides Again" only through a single week— it will be made evident that Vivien Leigh's superb performance as Scarlett O'Hara in GWTW was no flash in the pan, as the boys in the back room say. One surmises that Miss Leigh is the actress that everyone thought the Dresden Hedy Lamarr would turn out to be. Her beauty is a little less placid, but no less compelling, and her sense of faithful characterization seemingly infallible.

BELL

Yesterday afternoon's preview screening of the picture also made clear that "Waterloo Bridge" will cause Robert Taylor's stock to rise tremendously. He never has been seen to better advantage. To give a touch of timeliness to the story of the First World War—originally filmed by Universal nine years ago—the M.-G.-M. version is prologued and epilogued by incidents pertaining to the present war in Europe. Taylor is a stalwart and convincing figure both as the youthful Capt. Roy Cronin and as the gray-haired colonel of the present conflict.

There is another member of the cast who will do with a lot of watching, too, and that is Virginia Field in the role of Myra Lester's (Miss Leigh) closest friend in days of emotional as well as physical turmoil. Miss Field climbs several rungs upward in this one.

As noted in this column yesterday, it was the original intention of the Warner management to open "Twenty-one Days Together," co-starring Miss Leigh and Laurence Olivier, at the Metropolitan this morning. That plan overnight received a hefty kick over the heart for what no doubt were good and sufficient reasons. The new bill at the Met now will be featured by first Washington showings of "An Angel From Texas," with Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan and Ruth Terry. It will be augmented by Frank Capra's "Cavalcade of Academy Award Winners, 1928-1939" and will open tomorrow morning, instead of this.

However, there will be plenty going on in town today, what with the arrival of that twenty-mule team this morning to celebrate the opening of "Twenty-Mule Team," with Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo and Marjorie Rambeau, at the Capitol on Friday. The caravan will arrive early and at 9 a. m., will be found parked at Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Representative Jack Nichols will drive the team to the District Building in time for an official greeting at 11, and then will be a mere passenger—with Curley Eagles at the reins—from the District Building to the U. S. Capitol to be welcomed by a group of Western Senators. From 1:30 to 4:30 p. m., the outfit again will be on view at the parking lot.

Noel Coward's "Fallen Angels" will be produced for the first time in the Washington area by the Cross Roads Theater—over at Bailey's Cross Roads, Va.—this summer, according to the latest bulletin. The management seems a little surer of vehicles and players than of its opening date. At the moment, June 17 seems to be as good a guess as any.

As long as we are over in Virginia, you might as well know now as any time that the Mount Vernon drive-in theater, 'way down thar on the Richmond highway, will inaugurate a new radio stunt tonight, to be continued every Wednesday night in conjunction with Station WOL. The new wrinkle is dubbed "Tag, You're It" and goes something like this: Every Wednesday night from 9:15 to 9:25, the Mount Vernon will broadcast a general program of entertainment. From 9:25 to 9:30, the airwaves will be devoted to the selection and announcement of a Virginia, Maryland or D. C., automobile tag number. If the driver of the car hearing the lucky license plate can reach the Mount Vernon within 15 minutes, he will receive $100. It is not necessary to be within the theater's ramped enclosure to win. It will be necessary, though, to be careful about those speed laws if you are miles away when you hear your number through the loudspeaker. As I understand it, the cops are not winking at this aspect of the innovation.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 21 (INS).—These movie titles get me down! "The City That Never Sleeps" is the latest. I'll wager 10 cents to a dollar that you would never guess that this is the new name for "F. O. B. Detroit." The story tells of the automobile industry and is by Wessel Smither, a Los Angeles tree surgeon. Sounds much like a detective thriller. Well, anyway, now that you know, "The City That Never Sleeps" is the new name and you may be interested to hear it goes into production in the fall with Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea as the co-starring team.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Paramount is announcing Barbara and Joel in "The City That Never Sleeps" tomorrow at their convention and labeling it a William A. Wellman production.

Jack Warner said yesterday that nearly 10,000 letters and telegrams have been received following my article which stated that Warners were in a quandary whether to release "All This And Heaven, Too," in one or two parts. Rachel Field, author of the book, who was called in to edit the completed motion picture, stated that she believed the picture should run two hours and a half and be shown at one time.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Claire James, once Bus Berkeley's heartbeat, now concentrating on Bill Orr or "Meet the People" fame; the Oscar Levants leave for New York this week to get ready for the stork's visit. She was formerly June Gale; Martha Raye has lost 15 pounds to get ready for her New Work show; Orson Welles and Dolores Del Rio a devoted twosome at the Esquire Theater; That was Barry Trivers, Florine McKinney's ex, at Barney's beanery with Margot Stevenson; Marc Conolly, acting as host to Charles Lederer and his bride at Perino's sky room.

Alex D'Arcy back in town doing the rhumba at the La Conga with Dorothy King, local model; Capt. C. S. Forrester, having completed adapting his "Captain Hornblower" stories, goes to New York for a tonsilectomy; Monroe Greenthal, United Artists publicity director, reported to Frances Farmer's heart throb, is headed for Los Angeles; Hedy Lamarr and Marlene Dietrich listening to Greta Heller rehearse.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 21.

F. D. R.: John L. Lewis tells his friends that his breach with the White House has been widened, because you haven't invited him to your conference concerning the cooperation of American industry in the preparedness program . . . Ernest Hemingway: Because the descriptive, "The Fifth Column," has been used so often in the recent front pages, the film studios now are interested in acquiring the movie rights to your play. Your lawyer just flew to Hollywood to negotiate the sale . . . Edward P. Mulrooney: Didn't you, as ex-police commissioner and now czar of the hotel industry, dig up much of the evidence Dewey is using against George Scalise? Harry Woodring: Maj. Seversky has a new 500-miles-per-hour long range bomber, for the French government.

ELSA MAXWELL: Arthur Murray has process servers trying to find you, concerning a suit for entertainment supplied by his Big Apple dancers; the only Elsa Maxwells the process servers found were two residents of Harlem . . . Ralph Ingersoll: Dalton Trumbo, author of the anti-war novel, "Johnny Got His Gun," won't go to your Europe as your war correspondent. Mrs. Trumbo refused to permit it . . . Maria Eggert: The film critics who reviewed your latest European picture, "Waltz Melody," suggested that the talent scouts see Fritz Van Dongen, who was in the movie. Fritz has been appearing in Hollywood for almost a year. He uses the name Philip Dorn.

EARL CARROLL: This is the reverse of all Hollywood success stories: A year and a half ago a 14-year-old girl, who was born and raised in Hollywood, applied for a job as a cigarette girl in La Conga, one of the late spots in the film colony. She couldn't get the job and went to New York . . . Last week she returned to Hollywood, spurning movie contracts being offered her. Her first stop was La Conga. For during that short absence she had received as much publicity as any screen star, acquired 20 fur coats, and a famous husband—George Jessel.

CORDELL HULL: Bill Cleveland, who piloted W. K. Vanderbilt in his expedition to Sumatra, revealed this Sunday night. It was told to him by the Chief of Radio Netherlands Indiesche, in Sumatra: A monsoon washed up on the shores of Sumatra a fleet of fishing boats, whose Japanese crews had died. Inside one of these sampans was found the most modern radio transmitting set the Dutch had ever seen. Immediate protest was registered at Tokio. The Japanese government demanded an apology, insisting that no Japanese boats ever went near Sumatra, and certainly no spies had been transmitting radio messages . . . The radio chief therefore sent for 12 Dutch warplanes, which were flown to regions 25 miles out at sea. They machine-gunned every sampan there. Within 24 hours the Tokio government protested without explaining how it got the news so fast. The Dutch commissioner merely cited the Japanese assertion that no sampans ever went near Sumatra.

GENE TUNNEY: Jack Dempsey had a busy week-end. He acquired complete control of his Broadway Cafe, and now is the sole owner. News about his Eighth avenue restaurant will be announced later this week. Jack also arranged his settlement with Mrs. Dempsey. He'll retain custody of his children, and Hannah will receive a weekly sum from him, except during those periods when she's working.

JIM FARLEY: Some of McNutt's closest advisers have told him that because of the crisis he should abandon his campaigning and urge a Third Term . . . Westbrook Pegler: The man who sat next to you in the Press Gallery, while you watched the President deliver his defense message, was the Washington correspondent of the Daily Worker.

FRANCES FARMER: The hostess at the Iceland Pavilion at at the World's Fair saw a handsome young man studying the statue of Leif Erikson, the Viking who was one of the first white men to reach these shores . . . The hostess approached the man—who was Leif Erikson, your estranged husband, and asked if she could be of help . . . "Yes," Leif. "Tell me—did he ever have any trouble with his wife?"

GRETA GARBO: The five housemaids in the film version of "The Boys from Syracuse" will be named Greta, Myrna, Hedy, Lana and Carole . . . Eddie Rickenbacker: Perhaps you can help get the appropriation: The Civil Aeronautics Authority has thousands of students ready to wind up their work in the civilian pilot training program, but there aren't enough inspectors on hand to test them for licenses . . . Milton Berle: Universal is buying "See My Lawyer," the show in which you starred, for the Ritz Brothers.

Three pages of stage and screen appear in Sunday's Post.

Two Bridges

In reality, M-G-M had to build two Waterloo Bridges for "Waterloo Bridge." One is used for the 1940 sequences, being a modern bridge, with the old bridge in the background. The old bridge, which was used in 1917, was employed for other sequences. The original bridge was built more than 100 years ago. Because of public opinion, the bridge was never torn down but a steel structure put up parallel to it to handle traffic.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 21.

Walter Wanger's mind turns over like an electric fan. He not only was lucky enough to get Eugene O'Neill's most dramatic sea stories with John Ford to direct, but has arranged for the finest artists in America to come and do portraits of the actors in that picture, "The Long Voyage Home." Seven are already here and two more on the way. Grant Wood is, perhaps, the best known American painter. Others are Thomas Benton, Robert Phillips, Raphael Soyer, George Biddle, Ernest Fiene, Louis Quintanilla, James Chapin, and Georges Schreiber.

HOPPER

All have canvases in the Metropoletian Museum and are thrilled over coming to Hollywood. While here, Reeves Lowenthal, head of Association of American Artists, will put on an exhibition of their previous convases. Grant Wood's "Daughters of the Revolution," which I first saw at Eddie Robinson's house, 'cause Robinson owns it, has been loaned out more than any other convas painted by an American.

Wanger's idea will cement ties between all arts, and should have a vote of thanks from Hollywood.

There's nothing more stimulating than new blood in a community or in a business.

George M. Cohan once said, "Talk well of me if you can, badly if you must, but don't stop talking." And that's what we're doing about Sam Goldwyn, who's trying to get an eight weeks' leave of absence from the British government for David Niven, so he can make a picture for Sam.

And speaking of that, the gossip hounds will soon have another rally, now that the Bob Montgomerys are on their way back to America. On the last two return trips, they tried to separate them, and mark me words—they will again. But Bob and his wife will come through with flying colors. They always have!

Warners think they have another Freddie Bartholomew in 4-year-old Richard Nichols, who plays the son of Charles Boyer in "All This and Heaven, Too." While they were

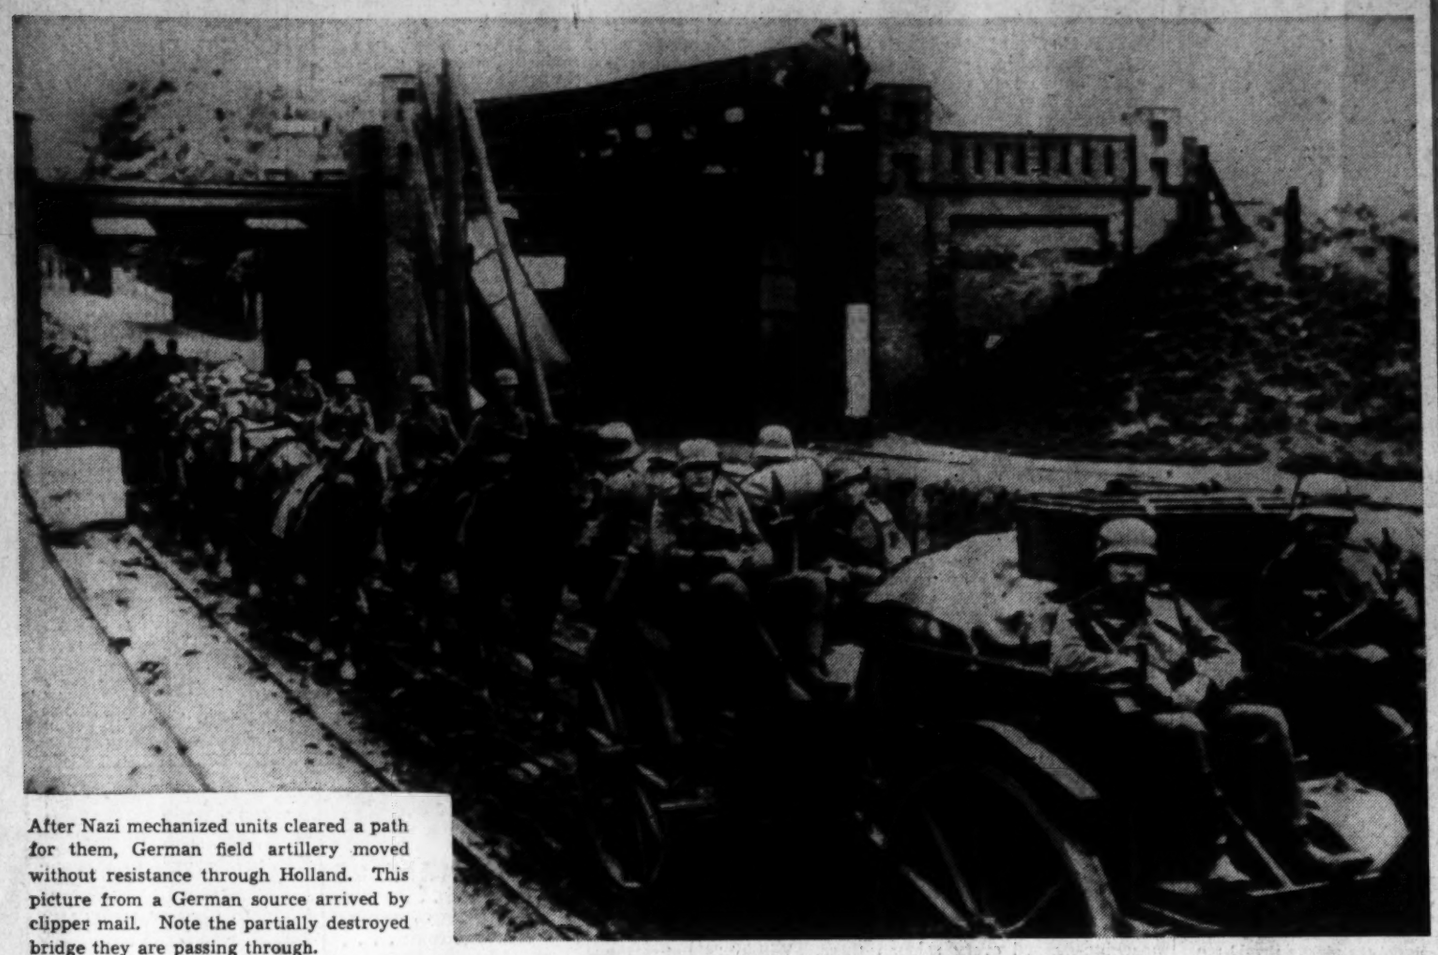
The German Advance Rolls On . . .



After Nazi mechanized units cleared a path for them, German field artillery moved without resistance through Holland. This picture from a German source arrived by clipper mail. Note the partially destroyed bridge they are passing through.

Shot Down?—Belgian refugees crowd roads leading from the ever advancing German lines. President Roosevelt charged yesterday that the thousands of Europeans fleeing before the Nazi blizt troops were being machine-gunned by pursuing planes.

Zoo's Who in the Zoo

We Get a Look at a Water Civet, (No Plumbers Needed), at Zoo

"Isn't he a beauty!"

Object of the affections of Ernest G. Walker, acting director of National Zoological Park, was a brown, furry creature about the size of a raccoon which was attacking a platter containing a mixture of sliced bananas, hamburger, fish and carrots.

"That," Walker announced proudly, "is a water civet."

THE WATER CIVET, BROWN AND AGILE, WITH AN APPETITE FOR ANYTHING

The Zoo's acting director is a small mammal fan and this specimen, which arrived yesterday from Liberia via New York, especially struck his fancy because of its rarity. This is the first civet ever seen in Washington and Walker believes it may be the first ever bought into the United States.

Collected by the Smithsonian-Firestone expedition to West Africa, led by Zoo Director William M. Mann, the unusual animal was one of approximately 60 new arrivals that went on exhibition in their permanent quarters yesterday.

MRS. POLLARD JEFFRIES, A VISITOR FROM GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., FOCUSES ON A "HINGED" TORTOISE

The African newcomers included 25 box tortoises, whose upper shell has a queer "hinge" that produces a rudder-like effect; a falcon that is so new in these parts Walker and his aids don't know what to call it; 20 deadly cobras, vipers and pythons, and several miscellaneous creatures of lesser distinctions.

"Falconry enthusiasts will be wanting to borrow the new falcons, see if they don't," said Walker. "The one that's so strange to us may possibly be a newly discovered species. The other two resemble the goshawk of North America but are smaller."

Among the reptiles introduced to their new homes yesterday were eight rhinoceros vipers, so called because of hornlike protuberances above the eyes, four black cobras which blow their venom into the victim's eyes, three dangerous gaboon vipers, two young pythons; a broad-nosed crocodile, the 25 tortoises and several palm vipers and lizards.

Yanks' World Series Team Throttles Tribe

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Chicago, May 21.—In those departed days when the Yankees had simply to swagger out on the field and cause any club in sight to curl up and play dead for the next two hours, a fellow named Lou Gehrig used to play first base for the Yanks.

POVICH

Now look at 'em. Where are they? In the cellar, or so close to it they need only another gentle shove.

When Gehrig was stricken last May and removed from the Yankee lineup by a tragic illness, it was a devitalizing blow to the Yankees. Sure, they won the 1939 pennant, but at the time they were already under way. They had the momentum. Babe Dahlgren did a nice job of it at first base and Gehrig's hitting was not unduly missed.

They were still the Yankees, to all purposes. Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Bill Dickey and Red Rolfe still represented hitting power. They could carry such as Dahlgren and Crosetti. The defensive skill of the latter pair justified their presence on a team that didn't exactly need more hitting. At least when the Yanks won the pennant by 17 games, it seemed as much.

But the degree in which the Yankees miss Gehrig is only lately being established. Whenever Gehrig was in the lineup and the Yanks could bring to bear one more good hitter, they had a potent one-two punch. For years it was Ruth and Meusel. Then for more than a decade it was Ruth and Gehrig. For three years, until last season, it was Gehrig and DiMaggio. Who is it now? Humph, there ain't none.

Young Charley Keller paired with Di Maggio last year to present a potent dual threat, but there is a growing suspicion that Keller is a flash in the pan. At least he hasn't hit this season, and the grim reminder is that he won his slugging reputation merely with one brilliant season.

Any season during the past 10 years, Bill Dickey could have stepped into the twin-threat role with any of the Yankee sluggers of the Ruth-Gehrig-DiMaggio type, but Dickey is no longer on call. He can scarcely buy a basehit this season, and last week he was benched for cause by Manager Joe McCarthy. Dickey's batting average has been dropping steadily more than 10 points a year for the past four seasons.

No longer is there anything awe-inspiring about the Yankee batting order. Who's leading off? Bill Knickerbocker. He is not exactly the guy to strike any terror into opposing pitchers. When he was with the Indians and the Browns he was no ball of fire, and on the possibility that he will outhit the hitless Frankie Crosetti, the Yankees are sacrificing defensive skill for his presence.

With increasing frequency, the Yankee catcher has been young Buddy Rosar, late of Newark. But Rosar in his best days will never approach Dickey either as a run producer or a clever backstop. That is, he will never approach the palmy-day Dickey. But with Dickey aging, he's 33, Rosar is the best the Yankees have.

The fellow in left field for the Yankees is Buster Mills who was shipped from the Red Sox to the Browns and re-shipped to the minors because he couldn't hit. Mills is wearing a Yankee uniform, but he doesn't strike the enemy pitchers as a proverbial Yankee, if we are not being too subtle.

As a result of it all, the toll taken by advancing years, the Yankees are no longer able to cower the opposition. There has been a great deal of courage-taking among the other clubs in the league since the Yanks have hit the skids. For years the cry was that teams were licked even before they took the field against the Yanks. The daily box scores of this season don't show it; not with the Yankees playing .360 ball.

The Yankees have been a particular set-up for left-handed pitchers this season. Guys like Al Milnar, Eddie Cmith, Chubby Dean and Al Smith have been beating 'em and badly. What would the old Yanks have done to that gang? It would have been a plain case of murder. But the old Yanks are no longer with us. This season the Yanks are just a human bunch of guys with not too many good ball players among 'em.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 21 (INS).—Notes so hot: Dumb Dan Morgan, who isn't, gives Ken Overlin, the underdog, a strong chance to win the world's middleweight championship of New York . . . Morgan, who picked Tony Galento to knock out Lou Nova, thinks Tony is through as a result of Joe Jacobs' death. "Tony was a hundred dollar fighter before Joe got him, and now without Joe's fenagling he's a hundred buck guy again." Dan says . . . Don Budge, the pro, plays Elwood Cooke, the amateur, at the Perth Amboy, N. J., tennis club Saturday a week . . . A gent in Goshen, Ind., has written us to ask us how he can get in touch with Jimmy Collins, the all-time big league third baseman. Can you help?

One of the best jockeys who ever lived—we'd better not mention his name—told us last Friday that Bimelech would lose the Withers because he has been brutally mishandled. "They worked him hard all winter even though the weather was bad," he told us, "and then they were afraid he wasn't right and put him in a race a few days before the Derby. He went into the Derby a tired colt, and he's too tired from the Preakness to run in the Withers." . . . The years take little out of Gene Sarazen's golf game . . . For the 72 holes of the Goodall Tournament Gene was only three shots back of the score by which he won the 1932 open at the same Fresh Meadow course.

For the third time since 1925, the National League ought to come up with the home-run champion of the big leagues this year . . . Johnny Mize hit 12 homers in his first 27 games, which would make 70-odd for the season, if he could keep it up. There's not much chance that he will, but there's an excellent chance the he'll outpace the American League sluggers. Rogers Hornsby and Hack Wilson were the only other National Leaguers in more than 20 years to win the home run crown. Joe McCarthy, who managed Wilson the year (1930) Hack hit 56 homers, insists to his friends that Hack was the greatest slugger he ever saw—though Joe eventually managed a little number named Ruth. Ruth, by the way, is Mrs. Mize's cousin.

Exterminator, rated as one of the four or five great American thoroughbreds, lost 50 of its 100 races . . . Ken Overlin was married in a prize-fight ring in Virginia, just before meeting a bloke named Spike Webb in a cheap eight rounder . . . Webb, also in his trunks, served as best man, but as it turned out Overlin, the groom, also was the best man that night, for he slapped tar out of Webb just after the ring was cleared of bride, parson and rice . . . Jimmy Demaret, who had no luck in the Goodall Golf Tournament, has won $7,777 this year.

The talk is that Challedon badly hurt his leg this winter and won't run until fall . . . Ben Hogan's best performances on each of the 18 holes at Fresh Meadow gave him an 18-hole total of 51 strokes . . . John Maguire, a literate Brooklyn bleacherite, scoffs at our recent ranking of Ty Cobb, Jack Lait, Jack Doyle and Gen. Peyton C. March as the champion "sympathetic participation" baseball fans. Maguire says Ebbetts Field possesses a guy who swallowed a wole live cigar over a Dodger pop fly; Hundreds of silent sufferers who quietly moan "oo-oo, them bums!" from April until October; Indigant old-timers who believe they ruined baseball when they added two bases and stopped calling it "one o' cat," and pleasure-shunning customers who sit glaring through every game, repeating over and over, "Dey never should of got rid of Bissonetty."

Russo Gives Three Hits, Wins, 10 to 2

Champions Amass Double Figure Score 1st Time This Year; Keller Socks Homer

Cleveland, May 21. — The New York Yankees reinstated their world series lineup today and turned the tables on the Cleveland Indians 10 to 2, the identical score by which they had been beaten yesterday.

It was an old-fashioned 12-hit Yankee assault that the world champions loosed and their first double-figure victory of the season, but the hitting was no more sensational than the three-hit pitching of young Marius Russo.

The first run against him was unearned and each was tallied on one hit.

New York won the game with three runs in the first on the combination of a couple of doubles, an error, two walks and a forceout. They tallied two more in both the sixth and seventh and finished up with three in the ninth and the bases still loaded.

George Selkirk led the attack with two doubles and a single, driving in four runs, and Charley Keller hit a homer in the seventh.

Bosox Defeat Tigers, 11-8; Foxx Stars

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 21.—The Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers fought it out with home runs today, Boston prevailing by a score of 11 to 8 to gain a split in the two-game series.

Jimmie Foxx, Boston first baseman, provided the winning margin with his second home run with the bases loaded in two days, equaling a record held by Babe Ruth and Bill Dickey. Foxx came to bat in the third inning with the Sox trailing 2-1 and teammates on all sacks, and blasted Paul Trout's first pitch into the leftfield pavilion for his eleventh homer of the season.

Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr and Roger Cramer also connected with circuit clouts for Boston, and Hank Greenberg and Rudy York hit homers for the Tigers.

Detroit outhit the Sox, 16 to 11, Barney McClosky and Charlie Gehringer getting four safeties each, but ten Tigers were left on base.

Worm's-Eye View of Third at Charles Town

Dodgers Shake Slump, Defeat Cubs in 9th, 4-3

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 21.—The Dodgers escaped from a three-game losing streak today by beating the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3, on Dolph Camilli's single with the bases loaded in the ninth.

It was the only game weather permitted in the National League and closed the margin between Brooklyn and the first-place Cincinnati Reds to one game.

The Dodgers' squeeze was tighter than even the score indicated, for up until the final frame Claude Passeau had them almost helpless on four hits and all indications pointed to the Cubs sweeping the series.

The Cubs got to Whitlow Wyatt for all their runs in the second and third innings—first on a homer by Bill Nicholson and then on a two-run circuit clout by Jimmy Gleeson. And even though they didn't score after that they kept right on hitting against relief pitchers Van Mungo and Tot Pressnell, the later working only the ninth inning and getting credit for his second victory.

In the meantime Brooklyn was shut out on two hits in the first five innings and apparently had fallen short with two runs in the sixth on John Hudson's double, Charley Gilbert's triple and a long fly by Dixie Walker.

But in the ninth Gilbert opened with a single and Walker and Cookie Lavagetto waited out passes to fill the bases. Then Camilli broke up the game with a sharp liner off Glenn Russell's glove.

Gus Dorazio Beats Boyd Before 12,000

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, May 21.—In a fast ten-round contest, Gus Dorazio, Philadelphia heavyweight, tonight won a unanimous decision over Wild Bill Boyd, of New York, before an estimated crowd of 12,000 persons in Pittsburgh's first outdoor fight of the season.

The Philadelphian crowded Boyd all the way, landing punishing body blows from close range, while Boyd swung wildly with looping rights. Both fighters weighed 188.

The decision gave Dorazio a non-title bout with Light-Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn some time in late June or early July.

Irish Jimmy Webb, 173, of Texas, won the unanimous decision over Johnny Kapovich, 173½, Baltimore, in another ten-rounder.

Frisch and Marty Are Given Fines For Bad Behavior

By the Associated Press

New York, May 21.—President Ford Frick of the National League today plastered a $75 fine on Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates and a $50 fine on Centerfielder Joe Marty of the Phillies as an outgrowth of a disturbance in the ninth inning of yesterday's game at Philadelphia.

Frisch was fined for "actions and gestures designed to ridicule umpires before spectators." Marty for "cursing and using vile language."

Both Frisch and Marty, as well as Bob Elliott of the Pirates, were banished from the game during the wild ninth frame, in which the Phillies scored seven runs to win, 8 to 7.

Nelson Takes Lead In 20th Ohio Open

Toledo, Ohio, May 21 (AP).—National Open Champion Byron Nelson clipped four strokes from par for a 36-hole 140 today and forged a three-stroke lead at the half-way mark in the twentieth annual Ohio Open golf championship.

Even in second place at 143 were Billy Burke, of Cleveland, the defending champion; Tony Joy, of Youngstown, and Tony Penna, Dayton veteran.

Don't Worry About Those Bouncing Cubs, They're Doing O. K. and Having a Lot of Fun

By the Associated Press

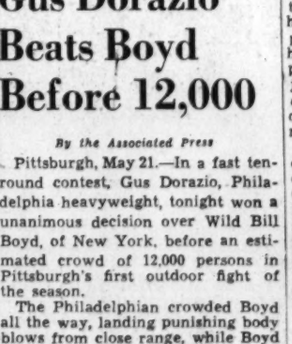
New York, May 21.—You might think the Chicago Cubs would be grumpy with all their injuries, but Manager Gabby Hartnett is gayer (if grayer) than we've ever seen him and the whole entourage is having a lot of fun . . . Which goes to show nothing matters as long as you win.

Including today's game the Cubs had 227 runners stranded on the base paths in 29 games and the Chicago writers are planning to award a trophy to the 250th Cub left on base . . . It will be one of those cane seats like spectators carry at golf matches . . . The scribblers have it figured that the presentation can be made in the waiting room of the Pennsylvania's Broad street station in Philadelphia.

• • • •

Hartnett's master-minding has the second guessers dizzy . . . Maybe you noticed in one game with the Giants he had a different pitcher for each of four consecutive New York batters . . . Gabby's appearance on first base over the week-end was the first time he had been out there since six years ago when Babe Phelps was with the Cubs . . . Until he got his two hits yesterday against the Dodgers Bill Rogell was hitting .542.

Al Todd doesn't have all the



GABBY HARTNETT

Chicago fans happy, even though he is hitting with the National League leaders . . . He has let a lot of pitches get through him . . . Since returning from John Hopkins hospital, Dizzy Dean and his missus have given a different version of the findings to every person who has asked.

• • • •

Everybody around here was surprised when the Boston Bees let Les Scarsella go . . . Charley Gelbert had been pestering Buddy Harris for weeks for a chance to pitch, which explains his appearance on the mound the other day when Washington was trailing, 15-0 . . . The Brooklyn Dodgers play "The Star-Spangled Banner" before every game these days.

• • • •

Paul Derringer looks away overweight, which may account for his difficulties thus far . . . Frankie Frisch is out in front in that competition with Leo Durocher to see who gets banished from the most games . . . The Dodger pilot hasn't been chased yet . . . The longest hitting string we've noticed so far is 16 consecutive games by George McQuinn, of the St. Louis Browns.

• • • •

Take a look at the leading major league hitters who started the season on the bench—Lou Finney of the Boston Red Sox, Earl Averill of the Detroit Tigers, Dixie Walker of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Frank Gustine and Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates . . . Before the season started the Brooklyn Dodgers made several conditional sales—Al Hollingsworth to Washington, Goodie Rosen to Columbus and others. . . . Nearly every player was returned except the one who nobody thought would stick—Cletus Elwood (Boots) Poffenberger, the eccentric pitcher . . . He won his first four starts for Nashville in the Southern Association.

Ken Overlin Fidgets While AwaitingBout

D. C. Lad Can't See Use of Training For Tomorrow's Title Shot in the Garden

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Staff Writer

New York, May 21.—Given a bit of Conga music and a couple of "zombi" rum bombs at ringtime, Ken Overlin might wrest the middleweight crown from Ceferino Garcia at Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

That's Overlin for you! King of the cocktail lounge—the matinee mollz' delight! He's the jiving, streamlined successor to such primrose path pugilists as Mickey Walker, Maxie Rosenbloom and the late Harry Greb.

This Washington, D. C., walloper with the wardrobe of 40 suits—plus tux, tails and mess jacket—believes he has more on the brawl than did Mickey, Maxie or Harry in their heydey. As Conga Ken explains it:

"They were pretty good steppers, too. But they only burned the candle at both ends—just played the night spots. I keep the mazdas lit around the clock—get a running start at the cocktail lounges in the afternoon and then play the boob traps at night until I meet my trainer coming home from doing my morning roadwork for me."

Fought 173 Fights

The secret of Overlin's social success is this: He doesn't look, act or talk like a fighter. He's a middle-sized, smooth-muscled chap who wears clothes well. His rather attractive, regular features are unmarred by glove traceries. Which is downright amazing, because he's a veteran of 173 professional fights. Of course his brownish hair is always freshly shorn. In those tailored suits, he looks like Mr. Park Avenue.

Although Ken's a helluva man with the ladies, he isn't married—any more. And he says he'll never be again. After doing a lengthy hitch in the Navy, Overlin became a professional fighter, and—as a stunt—was married in the ring with boxing gloves on.

"I should have kept them on all the time I was married," says Ken, "because my wife and I were always fighting. We were divorced last year. I guess I was mostly to blame, but anyway I wouldn't try it again."

Mike "Censored" Ken

This play-boy challenger is the frankest-spoken fellow ever, to invade Gladiators Gulch. He was so frank when he first started training at Summit, N. J., three weeks ago that Promoter Mike Jacobs and his henchmen frothed at the mouth and put the snaffle on poor Ken. This happened when an afternoon newspaper quoted Overlin as saying: "Im just a bum and so is Garcia. Walker or Greb could have licked the both of us in the same ring on the same night. We're both just bums."

When Promoter Jacobs read this quote, he screamed, "By the holy elephant's britches, this is too much! Galento calls everybody he fights a bum. And now this cluck comes along and calls himself a bum. An' me trying to sell tickets. I gotta get outta this business or go nuts." Overlin later denied giving off the quotes—under pressure.

Abrams Beats Arellano in N. Y.

New York, May 21 (AP).—George Abrams, 163, of Washington, who does his fighting out of New York, tonight outpointed Augie Arellano, 154½, New York, in the eight-round windup of a boxing show at Queensboro Stadium.

In other bouts, Lou Barbetta, 121, New York, outpointed Dom Fantini, 125, Reading, Pa., in six rounds and Phil Siriani, 136¾, New York, did the same to Norman Rahn, 135¾ Philadelphia, in another six.

Latin Legion Dissipates Late Lead

Kuhel Gets Winning Run When Jacobs Issues Free Trip With Bases Loaded

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

(Chicago, Ill., May 21.—Editor's note—The first three paragraphs of Mr. Povich's dispatch were censored, he says. Now go on with the story.)

Anyway, the Nats lost the ball game, 9 to 8. With the bases full in the ninth and the score tied, Joe Kuhel walked across the plate. It was the only time during the afternoon that Kuhel was observed in anything but a brisk gallop. He pounded out five straight hits, including a homer and a two-bagger.

It was a dismal denouement for the Nats, that winning run being forced home. They had a 7-4 lead in the eighth, and an 8-7 lead at the start of the ninth. Then Bucky Harris unhappily entrusted the lead to Alex Carrasquel and Rene Monteagudo, of his Latin Legion.

Carrasquel's contribution in the ninth was brief. He opened the inning by pitching a double to Bob Kennedy and then he pitched Joe Kuhel his fifth straight hit. Monteagudo came in at that point, and his first offering was a single to Kreevich, which scored the tying run. He got Taft Wright out, but then he walked Appling to fill the bases.

Then Moneagudo pitched three balls to Larry Rosenthal. With a 3-and-1 count on the batter, Bucky Jacobs was called in. He ended the game with one pitch, a high, wide and unhandsome fast ball that missed the plate by a yard and forced the winning run home.

The Joe Kuhel-Zeke Bonura trade of 1938 reechoed unhappily for the Nats today. While Kuhel was making his five hits, Bonura was letting in the tying run in the eighth with a dismal muff of a ground ball at a time when two were out.

In the early innings the Nats began to have their suspicions why the Indians released Willis Hudlin. He had a horrible time getting any of the White Sox out. Bob Kennedy hit the first pitch he threw for a single to right, and Joe Kuhel, the next batter banged a double into the rightfield corner for the first Chicago run. A sacrifice bunt moved Kuhel to third, and he scored while Taft Wright was grounding out.

Hudlin Meets Misery

Hudlin encountered more misery with the start of the second inning. Larry Rosenthal walloped one of his pitches into the lower deck in rightfield for a homer, and the White Sox thus upped their lead to 3-0. After Knott reached base on a muff by Bonura, Johnny Welaj delivered Hudlin from further grief by galloping far into deep right center for Kennedy's long drive.

They came back at Hudlin for more in the third and got one more to make it 4-0. Joe Kuhel did it with his second straight double into the rightfield corner. Taft Wright scored him with a single to right. The only reason the White Sox were held to a single run was because Bonura meanwhile made a diving catch of Kreevich's bunt and Appling lined a pitch to Travis, whose throw doubled Wright off first.

Jack Knott was having a fine time for himself while the Sox were giving him his comfortable 4-0 lead. He didn't give the Nats a hit of any description until two were out in the fourth. But it seems that with one out, Buddy Lewis walked to become the first Nat to reach base, and a bit later Gee Walker pounded an immense triple against the centerfield wall to fetch the Nats a run.

All of a sudden, in the sixth, the Nats got tough with Knott, who had been holding them to two hits. George Case singled to center, and

Without a hit in his previous 22 official times at bat, Eddie Palhamus slapped a clean single over second base to account for Woodrow Wilson High's second triumph in the interhigh series yesterday. The blow sent Nino Briscuso and Frank Hettenkemer home with the runs that beat Anacostia, 7-5.

Palhamus' blow lifted Wilson from sixth place in the standings to fifth, and made it possible for the Presidents to take a place in the final-round robin. It closed out the Nebraska avenue school's regular series season and left Anacostia with a perfect record, five losses in five games.

Until the eighth, when Palhamus' unexpected single sewed things up, the Indians appeared the likely winner with a skimpy 5-4 lead. Then Gene Nunnally, Anacostia's starting hurler, weakened. He walked the first man, Norman Harry, and threw wild to second to give Bart Fugler a life. The ball was fielded by Ernie Shaffer in time, however, to throw Harry out at second when he overran the bag and hurt his ankle in the process.

Nunnally's last act was to pitch a single to Briscuso, after which Art Faircloth was called in from left field to stem the flow. Faircloth proceeded to load the bases by walking Hettenkemer. Shortstop Kowaleski grounded out, short to first, but Fugler scored to tie the game at 5—5. Then came Palhamus and his epochal sock.

Two Interhigh Games On Schedule Today

Two games, with the final place in the round robin which will cap the series at stake, are on the interhigh baseball card today, both at 3:30. Roosevelt moves over to Eastern and Western entertains Tech.

Tech will virtually clinch a berth with a victory, the only team able to afford it competitions being Roosevelt. Both have lost three games, though the Manual Trainers have won two compared to Roosevelt's one. Wilson, idle today, must depend on a Trainer loss to send the series into a playoff.

Briarley Holds Central Nine To 7-3 Score

Ammendale, Md., May 21.—Victim of a 24-0 beating by Central High in the first start of the season for both nines, Briarly Military Academy showed the extent of its improvement yesterday when it held the powerful Washington club to a 7-3 victory.

In the first two innings Briarley appeared the likely winner when it scored single runs for a 2-0 lead. Then Pat Felon's homer with nobody on base and Sam Di Blasi't with two mates aboard in the third removed most doubt as to the outcome. The District nine added a single run in the eighth and two more in the ninth, while Briarley was held to one more tally, also in the ninth.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald

Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

Gerald Walker was the stand-out performer among the Nats yesterday. Man of the Month awards follow:

To Walker, seven points, because his third inning triple accounted for the Nats' first run, because he drove in a run in the sixth and put the potential tying and winning runs in position to score, and because his single and stolen base in the eighth figured in two more runs.

To Buddy Lewis, three points, because his sixth inning single was an important blow in the tying rally, and because his ninth inning double put the Nats in front at that time.

To Johnny Welaj, two points, because his sixth inning two-bagger scored a run and put the tying run on base, and because he scored a safe bunt in the eighth.

To Rick Ferrell, two points, because he led off the ninth with a single and later scored.

The totals:

Gerald Walker	52	Johnny Welaj	14
Cecil Travis	33	Ken Chase	10
Jimmy Bloodworth	33	Joe Haynes	7
Zeke Bonura	30	Jimmy Pofahl	6
George Case	30	Al Evans	4

Roller Derby Makes Debut Before 2,500 Bewildered Fans

D. C. Squad of Speedsters Wins, 13-10, in Opening at Riverside

Combining the thrilling speed and spills of six-day bicycle races, the grimaces and sham battles of "rassling" and the grind of marathon dancing, the Roller Derby made its local debut last night before an estimated 2,500 fans at Riverside Stadium.

More an exhibition than sport, the Roller Derby nevertheless proved a good crowd-pleaser and judging by the reception accorded its first appearance it should draw well in its 27-night stand here.

Last night's match was between two teams representing one of the four units that have shown in most of the larger cities in America, Mexico and Canada during the 4½-year existence of the derby. One was the Chicago Aztecs and the other a team designated for this stand as Washington which, of course, won, 13-10.

Since Roller Derby is an innovation here and confusing even to the spectator, it should be explained briefly that:

A derby is decided on a cumulative point basis. Points are scored by passing members of the rival team within a 2-minute period begun when a "jam" is started. A "jam" is an effort to score in which one or more members of one team suddenly leap out ahead of the pack. Should the leader fail to overtake a rival inside the 2 minutes then than jam is over. A jam may also be halted by the original leader or a rival who passes him if either puts his hands to his hips as a signal to the referee.

Roller Derby consists of two halves consisting of four 15-minute sessions at the end of each of which there is an "open house" period of five minutes.

A team consists of five boys and five girls and not more than six alternatives. The boys and girls are coupled but do not compete with each other except in the event of an injury to their partner. Then a team might be composed of four boys and one girl or vice versa.

The boys and girls alternate 15-minute skating periods.

Open house is different from the regular periods, being divided into three sprints of continual action. The female members of the teams start and skate 1½ minutes, at the end of which time whoever is in the lead receives credit for one point for his team. Contact is then made with the male partners who skate for the next minute and 30 seconds for which the leader gets one point. In the final two minutes of open house partners relieve at will and the leading skater is awarded two points.

Mt. Rainier Nine Loses

The pitching staff of Washington-Lee High got a workout yesterday as three moundsmen contributed to a 2-hit, 7-2 victory over Mount Rainier on the Arlington diamond. The Little Generals were never in danger of losing after overcoming a 1-0 Mount lead with a 3-run spree in the third.

Kuhel Forced Home In Ninth by Walk With Bases Loaded

that's what Buddy Lewis did also. Johnny Welaj swatted a double down the leftfield line to drive home a run, and Walker then met the issue with a single to center that produced another. Zeke Bonura got the Nats' fifth straight hit of the inning before anybody was out. It was a single to center that scored Welaj with the tying run and moved Walker to third.

It also moved Knott out of the ball game. In came their old pal, Pete Appleton, and he finally got the side out, but not before the Nats moved into a 5-to-4 lead, with Walker scoring on Travis' infield out.

In the eighth, the Nats nudged Appleton around a bit and came up with two more runs, to improve their lead to 7 to 4. Welaj popped a bunt over Appleton's head for a freak single, and Walker moved him to third on a hit-and-run single to right. When Walker drew a wild throw from Tresh on a steal of second, Welaj scored and Walker moved to third, from which point Bonura's long fly brought him home.

After pitching ruthless ball for a four-inning stretch, Hudlin slumped in the eighth and dissipated his three-run lead. Joe Kuhel greeted him with his fourth straight hit, a wallop into the rightfield stands for his eighth homer of the year, and then Kreevich beat out a rap into the box. With one out, Appling singled to right, and a bit later Kreevich scored from htird as Rosenthal was forcing Appling at second. McNair followed with a single that moved Rosenthal to second, and then Bonura came up without Tresh's sofe grounder, which rolled into rightfield, Rosenthal scoring with the tying run.

Rick Ferrell and Buddy Lewis reclaimed the lead for the Nats, 8-7, at the start of the ninth. Ferrell singled against Clint Brown, was sacrificed to second by Pinch Hitter Sammy West, and scored on Lewis' double into the leftfield corner.

But that was before the Nats' Latin legion took charge.

Cameo Takes 5-1 Contest From Heurich

Revenge for its only setback of The Washington Post Industrial League season was taken yesterday by Cameo Furniture nine when it went out in front in the fourth inning and coasted to a 5-1 judgment over Heurich Brewers, the defending champs.

Eight-hit ball hurled by Otis Printz, along with no bases on balls, accounted for the Furnituremen's victory over the team which won the first engagement between the clubs, 8-3. As a result, Cameo and Heurich are tied for the lead with four won and one lost apiece.

Each scored a single run in the first inning. After two and a half hitless innings, "Hoggy" Albert sent Cameo into a lead it never lost with a timely single. In all, Albert batted in three of the winners' runs. Knight and Murphy had doubles for the Beermen but they were unable to score after the first inning.

Qualifying Play For Nationals To Be at Friends

A special qualifying tournament to determine District of Columbia eligibles for the National Interscholastic Tennis Tournament at Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, July 1 to 6, will be held Saturday at Sidwell Friends School courts, it was announced last night by Tony Latona.

The tourney, according to the Friends' net coach, will bring together all quarter-finalists of the recent Friends' Invitational Tourney, as well as over-age players who might wish to gain a berth in the national meet. Winners and runners-up will automatically take the coveted spots.

First action Saturday will be at 10 a. m. Entries close Friday at 3 p. m., with Latona, at Friends.

Table Tennis Body To Elect Officers

The annual meeting for election of officers for the District of Columbia Table Tennis Association is scheduled tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Argyle Country Club.

Following the meeting there will be an exhibition match between Stanley Fields, District champion, and Elias Schumann, second ranking player.

Sligo Creek Rodeo Carded Saturday

A group of University of Maryland students will hold a Sligo Creek Rodeo Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, a show designed to interest spectators in horseback riding "just for the fun of it."

There will be 18 classes, many of them novelties. Entrance fee is 25 cents a class, Post entries will be accepted. Admission will be free.

G. W., Hoya Nines Clash At Stadium

Final Home Game Gives Colonials Chance for Revenge

Hoping to end its home season with its first major local victory, George Washington's nine will meet Georgetown at 3 p. m. today at Griffith Stadium with Frank McGinnis, right-handed ace, slated for the pitching assignment.

Beaten twice by Maryland and once before by the Hoyas, George Washington expects the much-improved McGinnis to somewhat ease the sting of those setbacks.

McGinnis, a product of local high school baseball, has won four games against one defeat this spring and was very effective in a relief role in the first Georgetown game. Taking over the mound in the fifth with the Colonials trailing 5-0 McGinnis gave up only one run in finishing the nine-inning game.

George Washington will close its season next Wednesday with Navy at Annapolis. Its present record is eight victories and five defeats.

Georgetown also finished up today, but the Hoyas already are assured of a successful season. They hold the unofficial District college title by virtue of their defeat of George Washington and double victory over Maryland, which twice beat the Colonials, and their only losses were to Fordham and to Princeton. The former loss was later avenged.

Local Sailor Signed for Rassle Card

Promoter Joe Turner dipped into the ranks of the Navy yesterday to conscript a groan artists for tomorrow night's parade at the W street arena. The newcomer is Ed Franer, formerly of the battleship Tennessee and now on duty at the Naval Hospital here.

Franer will swap heaves with Fritz Zigfrid in a preliminary to the business between Karol Krauser and Gino Martinelli, who are going to meet in a return feature bout.

Reports describe Franer as the "hero" type, never the lad to harbor an evil thought about an opponent.

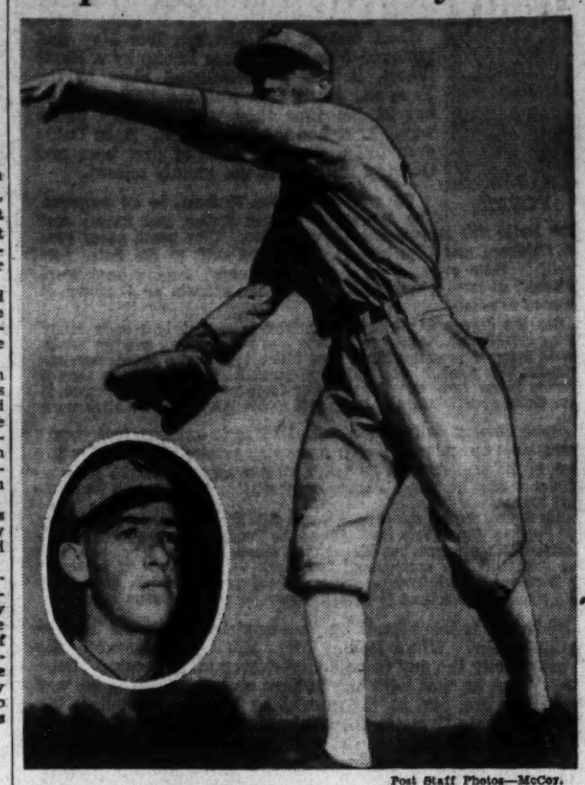
Terp Freshman Is Mound Star Despite Infantile Paralysis



Post Staff Photos—McCoy.

Shown in action as he appeared in a recent game against Georgetown Frosh is William John Fulton, Maryland's unusual freshman pitching ace. Note how he holds glove loosely in crippled right hand while delivering pitch. On release of delivery Fulton slips his pitching hand into the glove to await any balls hit to him

Fulton, Right Arm Useless, Catches and Pitches With Left; Proficient at Golf and Swimming

By Jack Munhall

What courage and perseverance can accomplish in athletics was once again forcibly illustrated this past baseball season in the case of a University of Maryland student who, despite a right arm crippled by infantile paralysis, was the star of his freshman nine.

This is a story of handsome William John Fulton, a happy-go-lucky 20-year-old from Roselle Park, N. J., with the rosiest cheeks you ever saw; a kid who pitches and catches so artfully with his left hand that he is rated a great varsity prospect by Coach Rosy Pollack.

Though his righ arm and hand were rendered practically useless by paralysis which struck him suddenly in the summer of 1924, when, as a child of 6, he romped about his family's cottage at Grove City, N. J., Fulton not only has become a fine ball player but a talented swimmer and golfer as well.

By constant practice and through sheer determination that his misfortune was not to deprive him of the thrill of athletics, Fulton now is able to play 18 holes of golf comfortably under 100 and swats the ball unbelievable distances of 200 yards and upwards. In the water he is fish-like, having developed a terrific leg kick to compensate for his one-sided arm power.

But since it is in baseball that we are considering the accomplishments of this game youngster, let us examine his record this past season at Maryland, the infallible gauge of his prowess on the diamond.

Despite inconsistent support from a none-too-steady infield, Fulton won three of four starts and his only loss was by one run to the powerful Georgetown Frosh. He shackled the strong Central nine to three hits, struck out 12 and walked but two in nine innings.

He held Southern High of Baltimore, another scholastic baseball power, to one hit, fanned seven and walked five in a seven-inning game, and he defeated Roosevelt High, 10-9, on six hits, though the Riders scored several unearned runs.

His victory over Central was the crowning achievement of Fulton's season, for in that game he hit his batting stride with a double and

Chevy Chase Women Golfers Rout Army-Navy Team, 12-0

Champions Gain Lead in Title Battle

Kenwood Scores 12-0 Victory in First Team Competition; Finale Is Slated Tuesday

Chevy Chase rolled up a surprising 12-0 count over Army and Navy in the Women's first team matches yesterday at Manor Club to take the lead in defense of its title with only two matches to play.

In fifth place with a 36½ point total, the service club team was expected to give Chevy Chase a good battle for the dozen points and win at least three of four, but the match was not even close.

Kenwood scored its fourth shutout of the season as the team clicked in all four foursomes to sweep Washington Golf and Country Club, 12-0, and pass Manor Club to go into second place. The hosts drew a bye.

Congressional dropped a point in the third match to Woodmont, winning, 11 to 1, while Columbia passed both Woodmont and Washington in the standings with a 11½-to-½ victory over Argyle.

Chevy Chase now leads Manor by four points. Kenwood is only 1½ points back of the leaders but draws a bye next Tuesday when the race is over at the Kenwood Club. Chevy Chase and Manor meet on that date with the championship at stake.

The second teams were not scheduled yesterday, Chevy Chase having already won the title although a postponed set will be played Friday. The third team season is over with Manor the champion.

Guldahl Sees U.S. Open Gone With the Wind

Lake Erie Winds Will Hamper Play, Former Champion Believes

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 21.—Big Ralph Guldahl believes this will be the "year of the big wind" at the National Open golf championship and he's certain it will blow a lot of scores and title hopes sky high come June 6-8 at Cleveland.

Guldahl, who won the Open championship in 1937 and 1938, has been hearing a lot of stories about the Lake Erie breezes which whip over the Canterbury course—and he believes all of them. For he won the 1937 Western Open there against those steady, irritating winds and he's convinced the breezes are going to be doubly troublesome when they're working on a National Open field.

"I've bet Vic Ghezzi $25 that 290 won't be broken next month," said the big star who will go to Cleveland Thursday and start practicing for the Open Friday. "I won the Western Open there on a playoff after tying Horton Smith with 288. To the best of my knowledge 288 is as low an aggregate as ever has been scored at Canterbury in a major tournament.

"Another reason I don't think the boys will take the course apart is that it is extremely long, more than 6,900 yards, and one which will have narrow fairways and long rough. With the tournament being played next month the fairways will be soft, holding down roll on drives. And when some of the boys start worrying about that Lake Erie wind which will keep coming at them for three straight days, something's liable to give way in their games. Only a dead calm, I think, will enable someone to break 290—and I've been unusually accurate in forecasting winning scores in big tournaments the past two years."

Guldahl has just finished a long tour with Sam Snead and thinks Snead has the best chance to win at Canterbury. Guldahl pointed out Snead always has played that course well. Behind Snead he ranks the current champion, Byron Nelson, and Jim Demaret, Ben Hogan and Clayton Heafner as "most likely" winners. What does he think of his own chances?

"I'm not saying," he laughed. "Maybe I'll be around to slip in if someone opens the gate. You know, Bobby Jones once said open championships are seldom won because they're usually lost. If that happens at Canterbury I'll try to be within knocking distance."

Kenwood Women Golfers March Into Second Place

Harper Leads Va. Contingent In Open Trials

At Least 7 to Try For National Berth At Manor Golf Club

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., May 21.—Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, Virginia's 1940 State Open golf champion, will head a squad of at least seven Virginians who will attempt to qualify for the National Open at the Manor Country Club, Norbeck, Md., next Monday.

Others slated to complete at Norbeck are Errie Ball, Charlottesville; Darrell Napier, Petersburg; John O'Donnell, Richmond; Jack Isaacs, Langley Field; Rut Coffey, Winchester, and David Thomas, Arlington.

Bobby Cruickshank, Richmonder who was ousted from the State Open throne by Harper last week-end, will be exempted from qualifying because he finished among the top 30 players in the 1939 National Open.

D. C. Cricket Club Defeats Baltimore By 97-to-71 Score

A note of cheer was injected into a local sports world made sad by the plight of the Nats yesterday when it was disclosed the Washington Cricket Club had its third straight victory of the season, a 97 to 71 triumph over the Colonials of Baltimore.

Harold Bennett, with 45 runs, again led his mates to victory in the English version of baseball at Langley Park, Md., the country home of L. McCormick-Goodhart, of the British Embassy.

176 Women Golfers Entered In Star Cup Play Tomorrow

High Handicap Players Dominate Field; Defending Champion Is Out

The high handicapped players outnumber the better golfers in the Star Cup Tournament scheduled tomorrow. In Class A play for the low handicappers played at Congressional, 83 will compete, while in the Class B competition for a second trophy at Capital, 93 are entered. Handicap limits are scratch to 18 in Class A and 19 and up in B. The total field is 176.

Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg, the 1938 and 1939 champion from Kenwood, will be unable to defend her title. Mrs. J. C. Dale, who tied Mrs. Kreuzburg and lost in a playoff last year, is entered.

WomenGolfers Batter Par in Dixie Meet

All But One of the Favorites Survive In Fort Worth Play

By the Associated Press

Fort Worth, May 21.—Leveled to the favorites, with one exception, the Women's Southern Golf Association tournament went through the first round today with par battered, equaled and bruised.

Out of the opening round came only one surprise. Miss Edna Saenger, of Shreveport, La., former champion of her State and only two years ago the Texas Women's Open champion, collapsed before the errorless short game of Mrs. W. T. Stafford, of Dallas, 2 and 1.

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, yesterday's medalist; National Champion Betty Jameson, Defending Champion Marion Miley, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, the Texas champion and hometown idol; Miss Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, Ga., runner-up in the National last year, and the rest methodically wrestled par in easy triumphs.

Bill Ackerman — On Fishing

Ingrained in humans, from the time they had to take their sustenance from woods and waters or starve, has been the lust to kill. Easier means of living has dimmed the urge but slightly.

ACKERMAN

Only a few years back, on almost any dock in the bay country, could be found the results of satisfying that craving—dead, stinking carcasses left to attract the buzzards. But scavengers though they may be, they were still many notches above those unwittingly feeding them, for they were probably created to clean up the filth of their human brethern.

Today, few anglers take more of nature's water-born bounty than they have use for, yet there is considerable unintentional waste, that with an adequate and sporting manner of pursuing the sport of angling might lessen even this.

This adequate sporting means of fishing we have in mind is the use of cotton thread—a type of tackle we have had in mind for many years, that once each season has been the excuse for a fishing excursion by local Ike Waltons, and which never endured because there was little competition to be had with its use.

The "Pappy" of cotton thread, Capt. Jim Jordon lives now at Colonial Beach. He has advocated its use for many years—started the old Baltimore Cotton Thread and Light Tackle Club—you will shortly hear him tell on a local radio program how simple and sporty is its use, for his idea after many, many years has taken enough hold on the angler's fancy to supply real competition.

The initial effort in fish cotton thread started this past winter at Everglades on the Florida Gulf Coast. Last Wednesday evening at the Hotel New Yorker it gained momentum through the organization of a club with Van Campen Heilner elected as president, Bill Baxter, treasurer, and Ray Camp, secretary.

We know more than a few local fans are for such an organization here, but just how many would care to join a similar movement we can only ascertain through letters to this column. If you favor it, let us know.

The use of cotton thread does not place a handicap on any angler with the right type rod and after he has learned just how much his cotton-thread line will stand. It isn't possible to set the hook in the old accepted manner, because the thread will not stand it. Number 24 O. N. T. will break with a strain of 2½ pounds.

The return in sport and enjoyment by its use will be many times that to be had with the heavy tackle that has been in general use in bay waters for longer than we can remember. There will be fewer fish taken naturally, but these few, instead of the many, will assume greater significance because of the sporty manner of their taking. Even the lowly hardhead will assume characteristics of a game fish when taken with a cotton threat line.

Roman Boy Closes Fast to Win Feature at Charles Town

Ravenhurst Takes Place; Obert Is Hurt

Veteran Jockey Is Injured in Opening Event When Saddle Slips After Finish

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 21.—F. H. Faulconer's Roman Boy, sprint champion of this neck of the woods, turned on the heat his first appearance of the year and coasted to a three-length victory over seven others in the Doddridge Purse, featuring today's program. Showing his best form while burdened with 125 pounds, the 4-year-old son of Ha Ha gave the horse laugh to his rival, under hte guidance of Jockey Sammy Palumbo.

Installed a 1-to-2 favorite by the crowd of 4,000, Roman Boy paid off right at that figure, or $3. He scampered over the 4½ furlongs course in a creditable 0:49 4-5, four-fifths over the track record held by Irene's Bob.

S. G. Bailey's Ravenhurst, a colt with a yen for running out at the turns, tended to his knitting today and came with a rush at the end that sent J. T. Harris' Time Her into third position. However, it was Time Her that looked for a while as if she were going to spoil the afternoon for Roman Boy backers.

The daughter of Timemaker set sail for the turn with a wild burst of speed that opened a length and a half advantage over the usually fast starting Roman Boy, but Palumbo gave Roman Boy his head and he came around Time Her to begin opening his winging lead.

Time Her, hard handled from the start, began to show the wear and tear in the stretch and Ravenhurst, coming gamely, took the place in a camera decision.

Jockey Willie Obert, oldest active rider in this country, was slightly injured for the second time at the meeting. The saddle slipped on Millray, his mount in the first race, and Obert was tossed among the flying hoofs just after the finish line. He hobbled off the track and examination determined that he suffered a strained right leg.

Jockey E. Churchill was suspended for rough riding in the fourth race. He was aboard Squawker. The horse broke late and Churchill rode through the leaders to the front in wild style.

Balkanese, trained by C. E. George, of Washington, won the second race from the favored Timber Storm, to pave the way for a $19.40 mutuel in the daily double. Cautious Bo was third to the $7.80 shot. The thrid race went to the Shenandoah Stable's Wale Signal, a $7.20 shot, which turned back, among others, Grouchy and Molasses Julia.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CUT EMERALD, $26.20, $9.40, $4.40; MILRAY, $16.40, $5.80; NAY NAY, $2.60.

CUT EMERALD bounded to front at once, opened a good lead at once, drew out and won with speed in reserve. MILRAY, off slowly, worked way up on outside and closed gamely with saddle slipping and Obert unable to do her justice. NAY NAY held forward position to stretch and rallied mildly. BET WICK was forced wide for racing room early, moved up, but weakened in stretch run. FREDERICK was well placed to stretch and tired badly. ASTERISK could not keep up. WOOD DEAR flashed early speed. VEE EIGHT had early foot and stopped.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:02½. Winner, Mrs. E. C. Moyer's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALKANESE, $7.80, $3.60, $3.00; TIMBER STORM, $3.20, $2.80; CAUTIOUS BO, $6.20.

BALKANESE, closest to pace of TIMBER STORM from break, came around pacemaker to take command approaching stretch and drew out gradually under drive. TIMBER STORM was hustled into lead, was under slight restraint until challenged by BALKANESE and was held safe while under intermittent punishment. CAUTIOUS BO was hard ridden throughout. GOLDEN KEY lost ground at turns. PRINCESS LADY could not threaten. SENOIA had some early speed and faltered. FRED'S WARNING was off very slow.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30. Off 3:31. Winner, Shenandoah Stable's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WALE SIGNAL, $7.20, $4.20, $2.80; GROUCHY, $4.60, $3.40; MOLASSES JULIA, $3.60.

WALE SIGNAL, off well, came to outside entering stretch and closed with bold rush to win going away. GROUCHY was a forward factor from start and showed a good effort. MOLASSES JULIA set pace while saving ground, but tired in final stages. BANK NOTE went wide throughout. SO-FONG had a rough trip. HIGH AIM faltered. SIMMER and EQUIPAGE could not keep up.

Daily Double, BALKANESE and WALE SIGNAL, Paid $19.60

FOURTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:59. Off 3:59½. Winner, D. Shea's br. f. (4), by Peace Pennant—Vanishing Lady. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VANISHING HOPE, $5.20, $3.60, $3.00; COUNTER MARCH, $11.20, $6.80; TOBIAS, $10.00.

VANISHING HOPE, off alertly and hard ridden while on outside, responded to driving tactics in stretch and barely was up in time to collar COUNTER MARCH. The latter saved ground while bettering position, took brief lead, but failed to stave off winner. TOBIAS saved ground from start and showed good effort. SQUAWKER was hard used getting to front and stopped suddenly. DIXIE S. raced wide and tired. LADY BUCK was caught in jam along rail at start and had no chance. CHASTE had a rough early trip and stopped.

FIFTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500. The Doddridge Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:30. Off 4:31. Winner, P. H. Faulconer's ch. c. (4), by Ha Ha—Roman Girl. Trained by C. H. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:49⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROMAN BOY, $3.00, $3.00, $2.80; RAVENHURST, $4.60, $3.80; TIME HER, $4.60.

ROMAN BOY, going in best form, was steadied along while closest to TIME HER'S pace, came around latter when urged to take command and was coasting at end. RAVENHURST, off alertly, closed gamely under pressure to show good effort. TIME HER went to front at once under hustling tactics, could not resist winner and was weakening at close. CHARMING BOY was held safe while under strong handling. TIMBER NET could not keep up. HANDLE'S QUEEN and TRAPSHOT were outrun. LITTLE HARPIST was slow to come out of gate.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:35. Off 4:55½. Winner, Mrs. A. M. Cail's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAUGH SCOUT, $4.20, $2.60, $2.40; REIGH TETRARCH, $5.40, $4.00; BARRACA, $5.40.

WAUGH SCOUT raced in pocket to backstretch while under restraint, moved through opening between leaders entering stretch and drew out under strong handling. REIGH TETRARCH saved much ground while setting pace and held on with good courage. BARRACA raced on outside and showed a fine effort. TROSTAR raced wide and evenly. BLIND TALK saved ground to improve position and weakened. BEAU BON closed gamely. GOLDEN MAYNE and GEMWICK stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:23. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. G. O. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARMING MARY, $13.60, $7.80, $4.80; ABBOT'S LARK, $18.20, $12.20; SEA FINN, $5.00.

CHARMING MARY, going in best form, came around leaders to take command and won in gallop. ABBOT'S LARK was hard ridden while setting pace accompanied by SEA FINN and held on gamely under punishment. SEA FINN took command after a half, but could not resist winner and was weakening at end. HEART PLAY was held safe. SPOTLESS saved ground and had no excuse. SEDATE could not reach serious contention. EXTRA GOOD was bumped soon after break.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:51½. Off 5:52½. Winner, Mrs. J. B. Bond's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARBY DU, $6.40, $3.00, $2.40; COUNTER PASS, $4.40, $2.60; NEVER IDOL, $3.20.

DARBY DU worked way around outside, responded gamely when shaken up, disposed of WAR RUMOR to take command and held away thereafter under driving tactics. COUNTER PASS, closer than usual in early stages, moved up boldly, but did not appear to have been driven in closing sixteenth. NEVER IDOL closed a gap from a slow beginning. WAR RUMOR bore out while forcing pace of HOFFBERG, took command and weakened. TRANSMAC raced wide and forwardly and tired. IRISH LOVER had early speed and quit. HOFFBERG was used up setting paced and faltered badly.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al,

Jockey Tony Vessili seems to have the "hole card" on the mare Sandy Belle. He has ridden her nine times and has won seven races, finished second in the other two. Vessili, incidentally, is riding in excellent form now. Going into yesterday's program, he was tied with Joe Hernandez and Sammy Palumbo, with six winners for the riding lead here. Charlie Feltner and John Bosley are tied for the lead among trainers. Each has saddled four winners. Sandy Belle and Erada have been the only horses to win two races at the session. In all, 54 different horses, owned by 43 horseman, have won. Frank (Voice) Cronan has been showing excellent form on the public address system this year. I'm slated to broadcast today's feature race, the Jefferson Purse, over a hook-up that will include WOL. I'm letting you know early so you can tune off. The infield here will be graded as soon as the present meeting is concluded, I have been informed. Brother Al Boyle and his associates were all set to do it this spring but decided that it might affect the running surface so the action was delayed. The flower beds, etc., which have added much to the beauty of the track this year, were planned and in some cases planted by Mrs. Boyle. Incidentally, her Dalmation dog has a brand-new family of ten. Among other reasons that Racing Secretary Fred Burton is popular with the horsemen is the fact that he gets the entries closed and ready for distribution early. This gives the fellows who are out at sunrise, a chance to get in a nap and quiet meal before returning to the track in the afternoon, which is as it should be. Bryan Field is doing a fine job as publicity director for Delaware Park and Russell Oakes is doing equally as well here in his role as assistant to President Boyle. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Way Out is the speed of this party, and the abbreviated sprint route seems to suit. I'm going to string along. Cat's Cradle is rounding into form and could be dangerous in this sort of company. Small Devil and Travelo have had their innings over this oval and could be close.

Second race—Sail By is in good shape and ready to show one of those front-running efforts, the kind that win over this distance. Kitty's Rival will be right there. Hi Ada promises to be a threat in a field of this brand.

Third race—Wayriel is the natural choice in this field. Lost that last in the final jump. Any price will be a good one. Stingy Lady has a good race in her record. Walli has plenty of early foot and will be a factor.

Fourth race—Red Wings is improved by the electric gate and promises to make her appearance felt. I believe this one can take it all. Royal Veil is a hard-running mare when right and seems ready to handle the 116 pounds. Happy Miracle, making a first start here, could be a surprise.

Fifth race—Royal Marriage gets in this with 105 pounds and, from where I sit, needs only the right handling. Blabah will do a lot of running from that post position. Schley Goree has been consistently close with the best around here.

Sixth race—Tavern gave evidence of good form in a recent effort and, when right, can whip this caliber of horse flesh. I'm going to be there. Frank Brooke is another bad actor who has been improved by the new starting gate. Deserves attention. Yankee Lad will be right there on a fast oval.

Seventh race—Erada, twice winner at the meeting, is the logical horse in this distance affair. The 118 pound assignment won't stop this. Clymene won here first out and is fit as hands make horses. She might surprise the top one. Sea Boy has been closing like the wind of late.

Eighth race—Arachne ran out at the stretch turn here the other day. This one is rounding into form and today could be the right day. Goldun probably needed that last. Should get to the top from that inside post and is a threat. Silvery Way's last was good.

Sub race—If this event is used, I'll take Vendor's Lein, Small Change and Lyde.

Best bet—Royal Marriage.

Buddy Rosar Out For Three Weeks

Buffalo, N. Y., May 21. (AP).—Buddy Rosar, New York Yankees catcher, predicted at his Buffalo home today he will be "out about three weeks" with a split little finger.

Rosar suffered the injury to his right hand when he caught a foul tip in a game at Cleveland yesterday. He expects to rejoin the Yankees next Monday.

The 24-year-old backstop attributed the world champion baseball team's hitting and pitching slump to the fact they have been idle "three or four days" at a time because of the weather, and predicted an upward climb as soon as the "weather stays warm, and we begin playing every day."

Marlborough Show Opens Saturday

Hunt Club Events At Upper Marlboro To Run for 2 Days

By Anne Hagner

With the Washington Horse Show barely over, local horsemen already are getting prepared for another fling Saturday and Sunday when the Marlborough Hunt Club gives its annual show at Upper Marlborough, Md.

The morning events of the first day, when the show opens at the Marlboro Fair Grounds, will be devoted to ponies and junior classes. Listed are divisions for jumping and saddle ponies of all sizes; a horsemanship class; and a pony championship.

Saturday afternoon will have road hacks, working hunters over the outside course, open jumping, novice hunters, pairs of hunters, ladies' hunters, knockdown and out, hunter hacks, handy jumpers, and open hunters.

Sunday's events begin at 1 p. m., and include open jumping sweepstakes, Marlborough Hunt Club event, road hacks for horses owned in Southern Maryland, touch-and-out, green hunters, triple bar sweepstake, Southern Maryland jumpers, scurry, open hunters, a consolation class for hunters and jumpers who have not won money or trophies during the show. The afternoon will wind up with hunter and jumper championships.

Exhibitors are expected to include Representative Lansdale Sasscer's Virginia Lee; Ruth Ellen Patton with her Waihou, with which she won the championship last year; Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho, scurry class victor in 1939 with a spectacular trip over the outside course; Mickey and Bucky Magill, Roland Hartman, Fenton and Mercer Fadeley, Eddie Talbert, A. R. Heinrich, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Hallman, Donald C. Bradley, Dean Rathbun, jr., George Rexrode, Elizabeth Marsh, Laura Ann Hughes, Mrs. N. H. McDowell, Charles Carrico, Mrs. Richard H Hawkins, jr., Margaret Hill and many others.

Horses to Watch At Charles Town

Blue Prelude—This one wants an off track and the short sprint route.

Brain Child—There's a race for this mare and she will be ready.

Life Insurance Sales Brisker During April

Research Discloses 22% Increase Over 1939 Month

By Thomas M. Cahill.

April was a brisk month for life insurance in Washington. Sales in this city rose 22 per cent above those of April a year ago and new policies presented an aggregate value of $5,760,000. These returns are from a survey of Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, Hartford, Conn., which reports the country's gain for April as 15 per cent above

New life insurance business written in the National Capital during the first four months of the current year totaled $20,086,000, or 9 per cent below the amount for the corresponding period in 1939. The the month last year.

Maryland agents wrote $8,261,000 new business in April, representing a 3 per cent gain over the month a year ago, and $31,128,000 for the first four months, reflecting an 8 per cent decline from the 1940 period. In Virginia, new sales of $8,549,000 were announced. This was a gain of 36 per cent for the comparative April and led the local territory. Business in the Old Dominion for the four months of 1940 amounted to $30,473,000, a decrease of 2 per cent from last year's total.

In the local district, North Carolina's business in April revealed an advance of 26 per cent and was within 1 per cent of 1939 for the four months. South Carolina transacted 18 per cent more business in April and 12 per cent more in the four months. West Virginia showed an 18 per cent gain last month and one of 3 per cent for the four months of 1940 over 1939. All parts of the nation took part in the April gains, the South Atlantic region leading with a 24 per cent rise.

Sales Here By Months

Sales in Washington by months this year compare as follows with the corresponding months of 1939: January, $4,671,000 and $7,183,000; February, $4,624,000 and $4,628,000; March, $5,031,000 and $5,240,000; April, $5,760,000 and $4,684,000.

John P. Bergan well known in the financial district, has become associated with the Washington branch of Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt, whose offices are in the Transportation Building. Mr. Bergan has been connected with local stock exchange firms for 15 years and until recently was comanager of the local office of Mackubin, Legg & Co.

Iron Ore Consumption Declines During April

Cleveland, May 21 (AP).—Blast furnaces consumed 3,934,853 gross tons of Lake Superior iron ore in April against 4,087,767 tons in March and 2,799,769 in April, 1939, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported today.

Ore on hand at furnaces May 1 totaled 15,155,399 tons, and on Lake Erie docks 2,950,752 tons, for total lower lake supplies of 18,106,151 tons —lowest since May 1, 1937, when the figure was 14,632,038 tons. The April 1 figure was 21,862,302 tons, and 22,790,933 tons were on hand May 1, 1939.

These earnings compare with net profit of $121,687.28, or 54 cents a share, for the corresponding period in the last fiscal year.

Ticker Falls Behind

Trading was so fast that frequently throughout the day the ticker fell behind in its race to keep pace with quotations. Four times during the day this tardiness amounted to 5 minutes, making it difficult for customers in brokerage offices to know what price they could get for their securities.

The sharp declines contrasted with the tenor of business news. Operations in the steel industry have been boosted sharply to take care of war orders and the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation's Ohio works open-hearth department went on a 100 per cent production basis today.

Despite the late rally, which was accompanied by an increase in the volume of trading, there were numerous losses of from 1 to 9 points. United States Steel closed off 6 points net. Curtiss-Wright was the day's most active stock and ended 1½ points down. Loft broke 4½, General Motors 3¾, Bethlehem 7⅝, International Paper 1¾ and Lockheed 3⅜. Losses of other prominent issues included Allied Chemical, 9⅛; American Smelting, 6; Chrysler, 5¼; duPont, 7; Johns-Manville, 5; Sears Roebuck, 3; Union Pacific, 8⅝, and Westinghouse, 7.

Bond Issues Slump

Abruptly lower prices ruled in most of the bond market here today, including Treasury issues, foreign and domestic corporate obligations, while trading volume on the stock exchange increased to $13,702,000, compared with $6,372,000 on Monday.

The principal exception to the downward movement was in major obligations of Germany, and this strength extended likewise to many Danish and Norwegian loans. Declines in United States Treasury bonds ranged up to 21-32 point at the close on the exchange.

Prominent issues sold down to new lows for the year. British Dominion issues continued under severe pressure, Australians selling off 4 points or more. Canadian government bonds were down a point or more while Canadian rails had declines ranging up to more than 4 points.

Stocks, Bonds, Commodities Crumple Before Blitzkrieg's Swift Advance; Losses Range From 1 to 9 in Heavy Day

New York, May 21.—Rapid-fire successes of the German blitzkrieg wrought havoc on the New York Stock Exchange today, with leading issues off 1 to more than 9 points in trading of 3,939,510 shares, the heaviest since last September 12.

The United States Government bond list was weak and foreign bonds, except for the German issues, also broke badly. The tendency in virtually all commodities, notably the grains and cotton, was to sharply lower levels.

At times stock selling reached panic proportions, but the situation was saved by a brisk rally just before the close, which replaced from 1 to 3 points on some of the heaviest sufferers. At no time was the situation regarded by the exchange as disorderly enough to justify closing. The view of the Stock Exchange, and presumably of other security markets, is that trading shall remain as free and unrestricted as possible.

New Low for 2 Years

The stock market was carried to a new low for nearly two years, or since June 3, 1938. An apparent anomaly was that while the market here was breaking, the markets in London and Paris were calm and strong.

The decline on the big board measured 2.74 points on the average or exactly the same as a week ago. The bond average also broke badly, falling 4.58 points to the lowest level since June 20, 1938. The number of stock issues traded in on the big board was 1,042, or within seven of the record total made a week ago and of these issues 768 made new lows for the year.

Rubber Quota Set at 80 Pct. For 6 Months

Authorities Believe U. S. Can Build Reserve With Total

By the Associated Press

London, May 21.—The international rubber regulation committee today fixed the export quotas for the last six months of this year at 80 per cent of the basic quotas, the same as the quota for the current quarter.

In addition, the committee requested governments of rubber-producing areas to issue as soon as possible export permits for the whole period covered by the announcement.

U. S. Reserves Permitted

Rubber authorities in New York said the action of the rubber regulation committee, controlled by British-Dutch interests, apparently would open the way for further accumulation of reserves in the United States, the biggest consumer of the staple.

One authority estimated the 80 per cenet quota represented a surplus of 10,000 to 15,000 tons over ordinary consumption requirements.

The request for immediate issuance of export permits, it was said, probably was motivated by a desire to move rubber to consuming countries as soon as possible to avoid shipping obstacles if the war continues.

Guilder Value a Factor

The question of the value of the Netherlands guilder, rubber men said, threatened to interfere with shipments but importers were attempting to solve this problem in conjunction with banks.

British Malaya and the Netherlands Indies in the South Pacific are the chief sources of rubber. The action by the committee was the first it has taken since the German invasion of Holland and apparently indicated that the control would continue to operate from London, rubber sources noted.

There had been some talk in trade circles of a 10 per cent cut in export quotas.

Harry A. Debutts Is Elected To Southern Railway Board

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., May 21.—President Ernest E. Norris of the Southern Railway called for adoption by the Government of a definite national transportation policy in his annual report submitted to a stockholders' meeting today.

A meeting of the board of directors for the election of officers was postponed until next Tuesday in New York City.

The stockholders elected Harry A. Debutts, of Washington, a vice president of the railroad, to the board of directors to succeed R. S. Reynolds, of Richmond, for three years. Directors reelected for three-year terms were President Norris, of Washington; Guy Cary and Jeremiah Milbank, of New York.

The purchase by the Southern Railway of the rights, franchises and all the properties of the Georgia Midland Railway Co, Georgia Midland Terminal Co., Asheville & Craggy Mountain Railway Co. and Asheville Southern Railway Co. was authorized and approved by the stockholders, subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In his report Norris listed four "needs" for future improvement of the Southern and railroads in general:

"A normal and sustained rate of industrial, agricultural and business activity.

"Adoption by the Government of a definite national transportation policy providing for fair, impartial regulation of all modes of commercial transportation, so administered as to preserve the inherent advantages of each. A fair field for all and special favors for none.

"A compensatory level of rates so that the financial credit of the railroad industry may be fairly earned and maintained.

"A reduction of costs, impossible for management alone to control, such as taxes, public impositions and other expenses to a level that can be fairly paid with justice to the employes and owners of the properties."

Listen! with Slocum

Brooklyn's contribution to the glamour belt is currently trotting gaily about our unsuspecting town, leaving a wake of startled orchestra leaders, headwaiters, and doddering gallants. She is Miss Gertrude Neisen, of radio, motion picture, stage, and Stork Club fame.

Miss Neisen was just a nice Brooklyn gal who suddenly discovered that a throaty, though melodious voice, a rather interesting chassis and a slight case of astigmatism made her something of a "wow," as the Variety boys say, in nightclubs and theaters. She has been doing extremely well for quite some time, but she remains the same sweet, unspoiled headache she was when going to school in Brooklyn.

In the interests of her income tax and her health Miss N. has taken a few weeks off and is currently spending some of that vacation here in Washington making the night hideous for unsuspecting milk-wagon horses and taxi drivers. The other evening our paths crossed slightly and after mentioning in our own vague way that we had heard her sing once and thought it was not much fun we got along quite well, indeed.

Miss N. loves to sing. She sings all the time. When she is getting paid for it, she sings as I suppose she should. When she is singing pour le sport it's pretty trying.

It seems a pity she has to waste her time singing. She could easily become one of the country's best comediennes, if they'd let her write her own stuff. She has that fine, frank, and funny outlook on life that distinguishes all true Brooklynites. Briefly she doesn't think anything is very important, particularly Miss Neisen. If you had to mingle with actors and actresses as much as this department does you would realize what a unique and refreshing outlook that attitude is. Most of the boys and girls take themselves pretty seriously.

Orphans in Love

By Marion White

SYNOPSIS

Red-haired Ellen Carlan, a stenographer, has loved Peter Storm, 25, since both of them were children living in an orphanage. While picnicking near the orphanage, they take refuge from a rain storm in the old Tucker house, an unoccupied mansion, and notice the resemblance of Jonathan Tucker to Peter. As the result of a tenement fire, Peter becomes Public Hero No. and the papers connect him with the Tucker house when he tells a reporter Jonathan Tucker was the inspiration of his heroic act. Attorney John Abbott and his wife, Cora, who manage the Tucker estate, fear their deception many years earlier, when they abandoned the only heir at the orphanage, will be discovered. Abbott offers Peter, who is a law student, a position in his law firm. Ellen is wounded when Peter tells her Millicent Abbott, the Abbott's daughter, is the most beautiful girl he has even seen. Mother Rosa at the orphanage hears Ellen's plight and sends her to Rosalind, a famous fashion designer. Ellen asks for a position as a seamstress, but Rosalind hires her as a model. Peter calls for Ellen to celebrate their new positions.

Chapter 16

HIS VOICE, when he had phoned her early in the week, still retained the jubilant, victorious ring.

"I've got my first month's salary and we're going to celebrate. Exactly the way I promised. Remember? Orchids and champagne and lobster. How about Saturday night?"

"Fine, Peter!"

She had almost cried for sheer joy. What a silly fool she had been to think for one moment that Peter had forgotten her.

"I have a new job, too," she told him. "We'll both celebrate!"

"You have? Where? What doing?"

Special Surprise

"It's a very special surprise. I'll tell you all about it Saturday."

Throughout the week she planned furiously. She must have a new evening outfit, a glamorous outfit, even if it took every penny she had put aside for Christmas.

She knew exactly what she wanted. One short week with Rosalind had taught her many things. The dress would be cloth of gold, similar to the one she had modeled her first day at the shop.

It had sold 12 copies, and Rosalind had been delighted.

"You were made for cloth of gold, Ellen! With that shining head of hair, and your white skin——"

So, for Peter, on this tremendous occasion, nothing else would do. The dress was ready now, lying across the bed.

Gold lame, with a little jacket to match, lined with deep black velvet which folded over the front in wide lapels. There was a ridiculous black velvet muff, too, just so that her hands wouldn't have to dangle awkwardly at her sides.

In front of the mirror, she piled her hair high upon her head, after the new fashion which Rosalind's hairdresser had taught her.

There were other tricks she had learned this past week—something about eye-shadow and vaseline, so that now her eyes were large and luminous, with secret depths which had never shown before.

Wears Make-Up

Nor was her face so plump and childish as it had been; she had applied the orange rouge high on her cheek bones and accented depth and length with lighter powder.

Her hands trembled from the long strain of holding them over her head as she rolled red-gold curls over her finger.

She stopped a moment to let them rest. The girl who stared back at her from a mirror was almost a stranger. A tall, slim stranger who seemed to have gathered a great deal of poise and assurance and womanly dignity.

The high hairdress added three inches to her height and fully ten years to her age.

Sophisticated

"I look 30, at least," she thought with the gratification any 20-year-old would feel. "I look sophisticated."

She squared her shoulders, raised her chin a slight half-inch, the way Rosalind had instructed, and raised her eyebrows.

Standing so, her glance toward the girl in the mirror was charmingly, condescendingly down-the-nose.

"Don't try to be so Judy-friendly," Rosalind had cautioned. "It gives the other fellow too much assurance. In the case of a customer, right away she'll ask us to cut the price.

"Hold your head high, that's it, and show them just the ghost of a smile for courtesy. Try a little arrogance, Ellen. It won't hurt you."

Tonight, she'd remember all those details. Not for Peter, of course! How could she ever be arrogant with him? She laughted at the very idea of it, spoiling the picture in the mirror.

"Trying to high-hat me?" he would ask. "A little freckle-nosed kid whose face was always covered with purple jam . . ."

She'd save her pose for moments that called for assurance. When she stepped out of the hired limousine and entered the restaurant . . . while she waited in the lobby for Peter to check his top hat.

People would turn about and stare at them approvingly. Who is that unbelievably handsome man?

Smiles Over Shoulder

She backed off, spun about foolishly and smiled over her shoulder, enjoying her anticipation with the girl in the mirror. "It's going to be the most wonderful night!" she confided.

"The most wonderful night you've ever known, Miss Carlan. When you're an old, old lady with white hair and a cane, you'll remember this night."

At last she picked up the golden dress, held it out lovingly before her. The neckline was smooth and well finished; the wide skirt rippled in graceful folds.

She slipped it over her head, holding her arms wide apart, so not one hair in the piled-up curls would be touched. She adjusted the shoulders, pulling the gleaming material snugly over her hips.

Dress Fits

The dress fitted like a glove, accenting slim curves like a golden sheath.

She stood on tiptoe to get as complete a view as possible in the small mirror, wishing, at the moment, that her room in the residence club might have been paneled with a few of Rosalind's full-length, flattering mirror.

She surveyed the back, and as she did so, she could almost hear a shocked exclamation from Mother Rosa, her hushed criticism: "It isn't a nice dress, Ellen! Why, there's scarcely any back to it . . . I don't like it! No, indeed, I don't like it!"

It would have done her no good to point out that the dress was fashionable, that her back was all right—at least, it had no freckles across the shoulders . . . and anyway, didn't girls wear bathing suits all summer with no backs and no skirts?

No, Mother Rosa would have chosen a plain black velvet dress, perhaps, with a demure square neck and puffed sleeves, a dress of sweet, girlish simplicity which would cause no man to hold his breath in wondrous appreciation.

Skips Beat

The phone outside her door jangled suddenly, and her heart skipped a beat. That would be Peter surely, and now the glorious evening would begin in earnest. She felt, all of a sudden, that she didn't want it to begin.

The anticipation, the eager, joyous hours of preparation, had been too wildly expectant; she almost feared that the realization might not bring fulfillment.

Ten minutes later she was walking down the wide, circular staircase which led to the front hall. Every last red-gold curl was in its proper place, the black velvet lapels of the golden jacket stood out strikingly, the skirt swished about her ankles with pleasing grace.

She had left her room and turned to the elevator, thinking with determined common sense that it would be a silly pose to walk down the two flights of stairs just to make a dramatic picture coming down.

She needed no silly, affected poses to attract Peter.

Walks Down

Against her better judgment, she walked down the stairs.

The light in Peter's eyes, as he came forward to greet her, dispelled all doubts. At first she could not see him! She could not see the striking picture he presented in the well-fitting black broadcloth, with white tie and tails.

She saw only the astonishment which brightened his face and quickened his steps toward her.

"Ellen! This isn't really you!"

To Be Continued.
